Goblin Night

This montage of Freeman photos gives a look at three of the many Halloween parties and hijinks in the area — Chambers School Town of Ulster, the Rondout Neighborhood Center, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ludena and at the Rondout Recreation Center, where the old standby, apple dunking, was a highlight. All in all, it's easily seen a good time was had by all.

UPI DATELINE

Communion for Franco

MADRID — Generalissimo Francisco Franco suffered renewed internal bleeding Saturday but mustered the strength to take communion with his family and aides. His sister said only a miracle could save him.

The new problem facing doctors treating the Spanish leader was disclosed in an afternoon medical bulletin. By evening a later bulletin said there had been no change in Franco's grave condition.

Conscious and aware of his surroundings, the 82-year-old general, his 37 years of strongman rule at an end, summoned his family and military and civilian aides to mass at his bedside. He took communion from the same Roman Catholic priest who had given him the Sacrament of the Sick a week ago.

Urgent Plea to U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Spain requested an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council Saturday night to discuss the Spanish Sahara crisis, but diplomats took no immediate action on the request.

The 15 members of the council instead talked informally Saturday afternoon and evening, then recessed for dinner and agreed to meet later Saturday night for more talks.

Sources said a private meeting of the council was possible but that an open session was unlikely.

Sino-Indian Clash

NEW DELHI, India — Chinese troops ambushed and killed four Indian soldiers in the first reported armed clash between the first two countries in at least six years, the Indian government said Saturday.

The government described the Oct. 20 skirmish near the northern frontier as an "ambush" well inside Indian territory.

Sadat In Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Florida welcomed Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Saturday with bands and flowers and quickly sailed him off in a Navy gig to a magnolia-shaded mansion for a four-day rest and a talk with President Ford.

In Washington, government officials said the United States is negotiating the possible sale of nuclear reactors to Egypt—and Israel—but it seemed doubtful an accord could be completed before Sadat leaves for home.

A New Beirut Truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Warring Moslem and Christian political factions lowered their guns late Saturday in a new cease-fire at the end of a daylong battle across Beirut. U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley advised strongly remaining dependents of embassy personnel to leave immediately.

The exodus of Americans and other foreigners was moving at fast pace, diplomatic sources said.

Will July Lottery Winners Be Paid?

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An analysis by staff of two Senate committees of the now-suspended State Lottery alleges that 1 million tickets for the special $3 million July 4th drawing were never offered for sale to the public in order to prevent a loss on the game.

That is one of the "curious management practices" described in a report released Saturday by Sen. John J. Marchi, chairman of the Finance Committee and Sen. Bernard G. Gordon, chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

All lottery operations were halted by Gov. Hugh L. Carey Oct. 22 after a computer programming error resulted in 400 duplicate numbered tickets to be printed for the last of the controversial Colossus drawings planned for Friday.

The computer scramble was caused by an attempt to correct shortcomings of the lottery pointed out in a series of newspaper articles.

The newspaper stories charged that the public was being cheated in connection with the Colossus game, one of several variations of the lottery offered in its eight-year history, because several unsold tickets were drawn as winners.

A Boston-based systems analysis firm is now conducting a top-to-bottom overhaul of the lottery. In the meantime, however, the state is losing $1 million a week in revenue the game generates. The report stated that the lottery, directed by Gerald Bruno, a top official of Gov. Hugh L. Carey's election campaign last fall, advertised that 40,000 cash prizes would be awarded. However, that estimate was based on the sale of 5 million tickets.

Bruno was informed April 10 by staff memorandum of "the high probability of a substantial deficit" being incurred from the Independence Plan Special Lottery, the report said.

"It was proposed that 5 million tickets be printed," the report said, "but that the lottery would 'keep one series of 1 million tickets under our control in the local offices and central administration.'"

Based on a sales projections of 2.5 million tickets of the 4 million actually offered for sale, the report said, "the potential for loss was projected at $350,000."

The prize pool for the special tickets actually sold was limited by law to 40 per cent of overall sales, or $2,501,268, and resulted in a deficit of approximately $499,000, an examination of records in the Department of Audit and Control showed, the report said.

Bruno reportedly sought to have the deficit made up out of the 45 per cent of sales earmarked to go into the state treasury for use for education, but he was turned down by state auditors, who pointed out that such a move would be against the law.

The lottery has paid the first installments of the three top prizes in that drawing, but has yet to determine how to finance the full top prize payoff of $50,000 a year for 20 years, the report said.

"Pending approval of a method to finance the balance of the prize money due the three grand tier winners," the report said, "there is no assurance that these obligations will be met."

Commenting on the report, Warren Anderson, majority leader of the Republican-controlled Senate, said, "The curious management practices of the Division of the Lottery clearly underscores the need for an overhaul in procedures."

"If the state is going to conduct gambling operations of any sort," Anderson said, "the public has a right to at least be aware of the odds and know it is not being conned."

The report recommended "appointment of experienced, competent management to provide effective program leadership."

A 'Particularly Brutal' Slaying

ESOPUS

Ulster County Sheriff's Department detectives are investigating the brutal slaying of a 21-year-old Rosendale man whose body was found Friday afternoon by a hunter in the town of Esopus.

Sheriff's Department personnel were called to a wooded area off Tooley Lane in New Salem at 3:30 p.m. Friday after a hunter, not identified by police, found the body of Kenneth Taylor of 95 Main Street, Rosendale.

Deputies called the slaying "particularly brutal," saying that Taylor had been severely beaten and stabbed.

Detectives roped off the immediate area around the spot where the body was found and took plaster casts of footprints near the body. An intensive search was conducted in the immediate area for clues and turned up the victim's coat and watch, but failed to yield any other clues to the slaying, Sheriff Thomas Mayone said.

Mayone said that robbery might possibly have been a motive for the slaying. The back pocket of the victim's pants, where most men normally carry a wallet, was pulled out and his wallet and identification was missing.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser was called to the scene and issued a preliminary report indicating that the victim had died of a stab wound and heavy bleeding. A complete report is expected Monday from the State Police Laboratory in Albany, Mayone said.

Mayone said that Taylor had left his home in Rosendale at about 11 p.m. Thursday without saying where he was going. Detectives are trying to reconstruct his activities between the time he left home and the time when his body was found.

Taylor, a black male, was described by police as being five-foot-10 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds, with brown eyes and dark brown hair. He was wearing a pair of white, red and brown plaid pants, a sweater-type maroon jacket with a leather front, a black three-quarter length coat and sneakers.

Detectives have requested that anyone who may have seen Taylor between the time he left home and the time his body was found to contact them at 338-3640. All information concerning Taylor will be kept confidential, Sheriff's Department personnel said.

Utah Deputies on Way for Area Suspect

KINGSTON

Two Iron County sheriff's deputies from Cedar City, Utah, were en route Saturday night to Kingston to pick up a 15-year-old boy who has admitted killing a hitchhiker whose body was found alongside a southern Utah freeway.

The teenaged murder suspect has been held in the Ulster County Jail without bail since his arrest Oct. 20 by Hurley State Police while walking along a highway in the Town of Ulster. The youth, from the Kingston area, had escaped Aug. 19 from the State Agricultural and Industrial Training School in Rochester.

The youth, not identified because of his age, told authorities he had killed a hitchhiker near Cedar City, and a motel manager at Las Vegas, Nevada, in mid-September.

Following directions given by the youth, Iron County deputies found the partially decomposed body of an unidentified man leaning against a fence alongside Interstate Route 15 near the town of Kanarrville on Oct. 21. Murder charges were filed against the youth by authorities in both Utah and Nevada. However, Nevada decided to let Iron County prosecute him first because he could be tried as an adult under Utah law but not under Nevada statutes.

Iron County Attorney Hans Chamberlain filed a motion Thursday in Fourth District Juvenile Court seeking to have the teenager certified as an adult for trial in Fifth District Court. Juvenile Court Judge Sterling R. Bossard set a hearing on the motion for Nov. 11.

County Bldg. Elevator Goes Down . . . Not Up

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

A visit to the Ulster County Office Building can have its ups and downs. Two young men probably would have settled for either direction Friday afternoon.

The two were stuck for about 10 minutes inside one of the two passenger elevators that serve the six-story building. The elevator car stopped at the first floor — no problem there — but the doors refused to open.

One of the lads, after a moment of reflection, coolly pushed the emergency button. County workmen leaped into action, but they couldn't pry open the doors either.

Figuring the doors might work better in the basement, the balky car was sent to the bottom floor. It stopped with a disconcerting — but apparently harmless — thump.

"I think we hit bottom, baby," said a disembodied voice from inside the elevator.

After another few minutes, the workmen were able to pry open the door. The two somewhat nervous passengers — after asking what went wrong and getting no reply — stomped up the stairs and out of the building.

Kenneth Whispell, Ulster County's Superintendent of Buildings and Construction, candidly admitted that much the same thing happened Thursday, when a piece of dirt got caught in one of the hydraulic valves. "We had a serviceman here and we thought we had it fixed," he commented, "he's on his way back now." Whispell added that the elevators in the building have got stuck on other occasions, as well.

He emphasized, however, that the technical problems don't represent a physical threat to the county's elevator riders. "They are hydraulic elevators, they don't run on a cable," he said, "so it would be virtually impossible for them to fall to the basement. There's no physical danger."

But for those who have a tendency for claustrophobia, the two stairwells that connect the six floors of the county office building might be a sensible alternative. Besides, the exercise would do most of us some good.

CBS Reflections: Redhead, Great One and Cowboy

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of eight articles on CBS: Reflections in a Bloodshot Eye, written by Robert Metz, detailing the candid, explosive inside story of America's greatest entertainment factory. Today's installment is The Redhead, the Great One and the $20 Million Cowboy.)

Hollywood sneered at the new arrival on the entertainment scene—television. The small tube couldn't compare with the big screen and television performers and performances were also regarded in comparably diminutive scale. Not surprisingly, few Hollywood stars could be tempted by TV offers.

But by the early 1950s, TV had a few good cards to play in the talent competition game. For one thing, a network show could offer a performer a bigger audience than the average movie. For another, television could lavish riches just as great as the movies promised. Quickly and inevitably, TV established its own star system. And three of the biggest proved to be CBS's Lucille Ball, Jackie Gleason and James Arness.

If it were possible to stay awake for all the 495 Lucille Ball telecasts and view them without interruption—179 I Love Lucys, 156

The Lucy Shows, 144 Here's Lucys and 16 specials—this madness would consume 10 days and 15 . . . hours. Which is not to say it would be over. Reruns will continue. Her face has already been seen more often than the face of any human being who ever lived.

Says Lucy: "I never changed. People could tune in and see what they expected to see. The only changes were of necessity when I divorced Desi (real-life husband Desi Arnaz who co-starred in the initial series) and when I sold the reruns and had to change the title. But my character always remained the same. I think that accounts for my longevity."

Lucille Ball, if you take a second look, is an uncommonly beautiful woman. Even at age 60 or thereabouts she displays legs that are the envy of women a third of her age. She might even have become a sex symbol with her flaming red hair and dazzling good looks. But this gorgeous creature with a mouth as flexible as a rubber band used her face to stop custard pies and pizzas. She walked into walls, fell off ladders, dangled from tall buildings, make up as a clown and set her nose on fire.

And she kept the CBS network in Lucys—always a contender for top ratings—for 23 years.

When a show lasts a generation it is perhaps inevitable that a performer's personal life becomes folded into her professional life. Less than a year after I Love Lucy began its run in 1951 Lucille Ball became pregnant. By November 1952 the publicity mills began grinding out news of the impending event. There was such sensitivity to questionable language in those days that Lucy wasn't pregnant—not on the CBS network—she was enceinte.

Lucille delivered right on schedule and everyone sighed with relief when the child turned out to be a boy. Desi Jr. There's just so much waiting you can do in television. It was necessary to write scripts in advance and the sex couldn't be left indeterminate. Fortunately, the writers had decided on a boy.

News of the birth was carried on page one in many parts of the nation—along with a story about Dwight D. Eisenhower's inauguration as the nation's 34th president.

The Jackie Gleason Show—and especially "The Honey-moerers," a domestic comedy segment—was an instant hit on Saturday nights in the early 1950s. Gleason always knew how to parlay success into money. He managed to negotiate a contract with CBS that called for a $7-million commitment for two years of shows, plus a guarantee of $100,000 a year for 15 years even if CBS never put him on the air.

A CBS lawyer who specialized in contracts, and describes himself as "rather tired" after years in the wearing business, remembers one "terrible session" with a calm, cool Gleason in the dressing room one evening before a Gleason show.

Gleason wasn't dressed and he wasn't going to go on unless he got his concessions. He outbluffed me. Thirty seconds before 8:00 p.m. when the show was to start, we capitulated. By the time the overture was over, he was fully dressed and on stage. I firmly believe—or would like to believe—that he wouldn't have gone on if we hadn't given the concessions. I never even told Paley about that one.

Gleason was good at this sort of thing—even when he wasn't.

Call Triggers Rescue Of Teeners in Boat

SAUGERTIES
Amelia Zell was sitting in her Malden Road living room looking out her picture window late Saturday morning when she noticed two young men in a small boat out in the Hudson River waving and shouting.

After three unsuccessful attempts to reach the Coast Guard, she contacted Saugerties Town Police who coordinated a rescue for two Claverack teenagers out for a duck hunt, Joseph Demsky, 18, and Joseph Neck, 19.

"They started drifting," said Mrs. Zell. "The current was very fast and the water rough. Nobody in a small boat should have been out there."

As the wind whipped up whitecaps on the Hudson, the boat drifted north in the current out of sight. It had no motor and two oars were all but useless in the rough water.

Several hours later, the two Columbia County youths were rescued by the Coast Guard nine miles upstream near Catskill and returned, shivering and wet but unharmed, to Saugerties where they dried out. According to town police, the lengthy delay in rescue operations was brought about because there were no Coast Guard personnel available.

Three metropolitan area men were pronounced dead Saturday morning at the scene of a one-car Thruway accident near Cornwall, Orange County, according to state police. Troopers said the northbound car crashed through a guard rail, flew 180 feet in the air, and landed in the Modena Creek at about 4:30 a.m.

They were identified late Saturday as Frank Burgess and Andre Figueroa, both of Manhattan, and Roberto Figueroa of Union City, N.J. Police did not know who was the driver.

Another Thruway accident early Saturday morning resulted when a tractor-trailer lost a wheel, running the rig into a culvert. State police reported that Felix Loverro Jr. of Utica, the driver, was removed to Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, near the scene of the accident. He was later reported to be in "good" condition at the hospital.

A Saugerties woman is in serious condition after being injured Saturday morning in a one-car accident on Old King's Highway.

Hurley State Police said that Vesta Hornbeck, 55, of Box 56, Saugerties, was driving north at 10:55 a.m. when her car went off the right side of the road, crossed back over the pavement, struck a utility pole guy wire and rolled over. She was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance Service suffering from a possible fractured pelvis, cuts on the jaw, and a cut over her right eye. She was reported in serious condition late Saturday.

Police said she had been issued a summons for speed too fast for conditions.

Volunteer firemen from Big Indian Friday night fought an extensive blaze that ultimately destroyed the old abandoned Green Acres Hotel on Lasher Road.

Called out at 6:15 p.m., about 50 men remained until the fire was out at about 3 a.m., Saturday.

Big Indian Fire Chief Alfred Ignor Jr. reported that the three-story frame building, owned by the nearby Rudi's Restaurant Corporation, was completely destroyed. When firemen arrived, flames in the rear of the building were shooting through the roof.

Ignor said the fire is under investigation by Town of Shandaken constables and New York State Police.

More Grant Stores Will Be Closing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The W.T. Grant Co. will close 280 additional stores by late December, the company has announced.

Grant had previously announced the closing of 301 stores by late December. The additional closings will reduce the number of stores in operation to 493, the company said. The new closings are subject to approval of the bankruptcy court, which is now handling the company's affairs.

Robert H. Anderson, chairman and president, said the new shutdowns will mean a restructuring of store operations to a market primarily east of Cleveland and north of Baltimore. The company said the new closings "essentially" will complete its store shutdown program.

The closing of the additional 280 stores will result in an annual tax and rental saving to Grant of approximately $23.9 million, bringing such savings for the total store closings to approximately $51 million, a company statement said.

Olean Sniper Suicide

LITTLE VALLEY, N.Y. (UPI) — Anthony Barbaro 18, of Olean, described by his attorney as a "deeply troubled young man," was found dead in his Cattaraugus County jail cell Saturday, five days after his murder trial began in county court.

Sheriff Charles B. Hill said Barbaro, 18, who was accused of shooting three persons to death and wounding 11 others during a sniping spree last December, was found shortly after 6 a.m. during a routine check of the jail. Coroner Dr. Harry C. Law pronounced the youth dead a short time later.

Sources said the youth apparently hanged himself sometime between 5 a.m. and the time his body was found, although sheriff's officers refused to confirm the cause of death.

The youth used a sheet to hang himself, the sources said. They said suicide notes were found in the cell.

Burglary Sentencing

KINGSTON
A young Walden man arrested in June on burglary charges stemming from a series of burglaries allegedly committed with three other persons in the Town of Margaretton over the Memorial Day weekend was sentenced Friday in Ulster County Court to 60 days in the Ulster County Jail.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino additionally sentenced James Ormsby, 20, to four years and 10 months probation on the single third degree burglary charge to which he had previously pleaded guilty in connection with the Memorial Day weekend incident. Ormsby was represented by Attorney Andrew Gilday.

Also sentenced in County Court Friday was Harry Hungerford, 20, of 69½ Greenkill Avenue, who was placed on three years probation and ordered to make restitution on a misdemeanor charge of criminal possession of stolen property in the third degree, to which he had previously pleaded guilty. The charge stemmed from an alleged March burglary at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. store in Kingston. Hungerford was represented by Attorney Joseph D. Hill.

League Favors Charter

KINGSTON
The League of Women Voters of the Mid-Ulster County has announced that it "favors passage of the proposed city charter on Election Day."

In expressing support for the charter revision, League President Dorothy Vilches stated, "The proposed revision, while it does not satisfy every guideline we support, does provide for a strong but highly accountable mayor and a Common Council which is equitably elected and whose primarily legislative responsibilities are not diluted by administrative ones."

She noted that the proposed charter revisions have "attempted to eliminate some of the duplicative, hence expensive, administrative procedures which exist under the present charter," and added that the document provides for "open, orderly methods to ensure that the charter remains responsive to the people it governs."

FRANK KOENIG

Did you ever reflect on how Frank Koenig has conducted himself during his tenure as Mayor?

It's really hard to recall when this able young administrator was ever involved in political controversy or self-seeking publicity.

The reason is simple.

Frank Koenig knows — as does his running mate Bob Gallo — that to get work done, you don't do it looking for headlines.

This may explain the remarkable record of accomplishment he set for the entire City of Kingston. But beyond that — his real contribution has to be the leadership he provided at a time when his City was beset with problems — a City now revitalized and on the move.

We're fortunate to have Frank Koenig. Let's not lose him!

Francis R. Koenig 51 Fairview Avenue

Koenig, 41, is the incumbent seeking his fourth term as mayor on the Democratic ticket. He is a native Kingstonian and attended local schools. He is a graduate of Siena College. Koenig has been an active participant in government since 1959 when he served as secretary to former Mayor Edwin Radel. He was elected alderman from the old Ninth Ward in 1961 and reelected in 1963; elected alderman-at-large in 1965 and mayor in 1969.

Question No. 1—What are the accomplishments of your administration (for Koenig). What are the priorities for your potential administration (for Darling/Singer).

"There's been over $15 million in construction since I've been mayor," Koenig said. He cited the "financial responsibility" of his administration and its ability to secure federal and state grants. "We've provided decent housing for our residents, programs benefiting young and old, major civic improvements such as streets. We've updated equipment in the fire department, police department and department of public works."

Question No. 2—Do you favor the new charter?

"I'm opposed to the new charter for reasons stated frequently in the campaign. I don't think we could implement it if it passed. I think the water department should retain some of its autonomy as it is doing the job well under its existing setup," Koenig does not think the charter commission's recommendations on "central maintenance" of all city equipment by the department of public works is feasible.

Question No. 3—What is your solution to the landfill problem?

"I think it's going to have to be a continuing working relationship with the members of the Common Council and the board of public works working out an economical and financially feasible program that will benefit the entire city of Kingston. We've investigated many alternatives to our present situation including incineration but it's a question of financial feasibility and we will continue to work to come up with the proper solution to benefit the taxpayers of our city."

Question No. 4—List your priorities under community development and urban renewal.

"Our priorities on Community Development are on record and have been approved by both state and federal agencies. We have concentrated our efforts in the downtown section of the city where the greatest problems exist. I think the No. 1 priority is Central Broadway and Broadway West. As for the urban renewal programs, we will continue working towards getting developers who are financially responsible which will add assessments to our tax base at the same time bringing much needed construction programs to our community."

Question No. 5—Proposals for attracting new business/industry to the city.

I think the key to attracting new business and industry to our city is going to be the completion of our urban renewal programs, a redevelopment of our Broadway East urban renewal land and working closely with the Central Broadway Businessmen with their endeavors to bring about a shopping complex in Central Broadway."

DARLING

William K. Darling Ringtop Road

Darling, a Republican, who marks his 55th birthday today, is making his first attempt at political office. Born in Kingston, he attended city schools and the State University College at New Paltz. Employed in banking for some 20 years, he has been president of H. F. King Corporation on Broadway since 1961. Darling has been active in civic affairs for many years. He has served two mayors, John Schwenk as a member of his industrial development committee and Francis R. Koenig as a member of his mayor's advisory board. Darling is also a member of the Kingston Hospital Board of Directors.

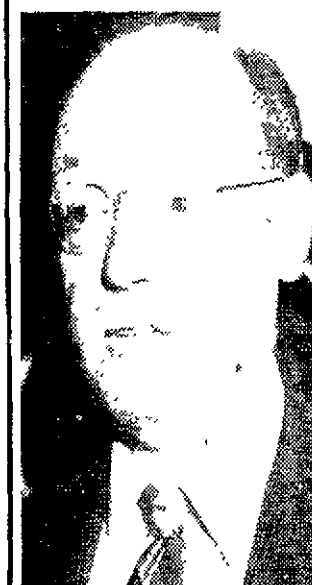

"I feel we need a real going over of all departments down there" (at city hall). "I feel that is the first order of business. I think that a reorganization and reevaluation of all our city services is in order and I would think that after the number of years that the Democrats have been in there the first priority is to get our house in order and run this city in a businesslike manner."

"Yes, I favor the charter although I have some reservations about it, obviously. I think that the fact that the present charter was originated in 1896 that it's been a number of years and that it's time for a change. I think it's time we stopped wasting time, get something on paper and run with it."

"We have to take a very long term view of the landfill situation. I think we might have to take a very short term view of it immediately down the road. If you were looking for a landfill site that would be ideal you would be looking for a large industrial site hopefully next to a large energy user." Darling's talking about recycling trash for electrical energy. He sees regionalism as inevitable. "In the meantime we have to have a dump."

"I don't know how much state and federal aid we're going to get in the future. I see this New York City situation as affecting the entire money market. We may get funding that will permit us to upgrade some of our housing, but I don't think we're going to see the large scale construction we saw in the past. As for urban renewal, we have tried to get developers. I feel this concept of holding out for the big developer has been ineffectual. I think we'll have a lot of problems trying to attract large developers, particularly downtown. I think that parcel should be subdivided."

"I think that getting out from behind your desk and selling the city is the best way to attract new business and industry. This has not been the case recently. We've got good water and good transportation with the Thruway and it looks like the railroads are coming back some. We have square footage for manufacturing. The Industrial Corporation Council on which I serve has been successful to a degree. We think there's a lot more out there."

Bernard Singer 425 Pearl Street

Singer is the same age as Darling and they also have in common their life-long association with Kingston and their experience as businessmen most of their adult lives. Singer has been involved directly in politics for the better part of 20 years, beginning with the old Economy Party back in the late '50s. He has been a staunch Conservative since that party was formed in 1962, in fact, one of its leading spokesmen locally. Singer was an uptown businessman before being forced out by the city's plans for parking lots on North Front Street some 15 years ago. A former member of the Kingston School Board, he ran for mayor in 1969 and for alderman-at-large in 1971.

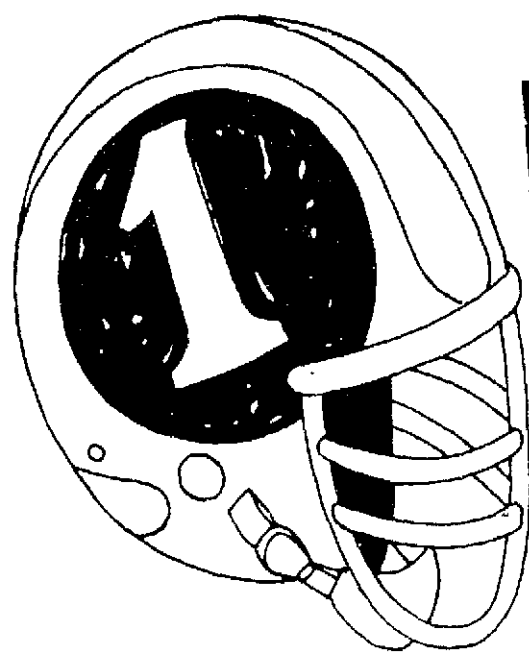

"I see streamlining city government as my number one priority. We have to eliminate waste and increase efficiency. We must also eliminate secrecy and closed door decision-making. I will run an open door program; if necessary I will take the door (of the mayor's office) off its hinges so I would be available and responsive to the people of the city. I would think people and not politics. And that's a sincere statement."

Yes, I favor it. It will update the city's programs. Everyone says it's not a perfect document but the constitution's been amended and there's no reason why the city charter couldn't be handled the same way. It would modernize our operations."

"I would say that my strongest efforts would be directed toward establishing a recycling center and reclamation center and it would not take me six years to do so."

"I would phase out urban renewal as a function that has long been obsolete and expensive but of dubious value. As for the Community Development Program I would explore and use it to its fullest."

"I would go anywhere anytime to solicit new industry and business to the area and I would make that one of my major priorities. I would do whatever is necessary to stimulate the growth and economy of the city of Kingston. The citizens have not received this treatment to date."

Gallo Defends Spring Lake Water Meetings

KINGSTON Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo has defended his discussions with Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino concerning water for the Spring Lake area, largely on humanitarian grounds.

"While those 60 some families are outside the corporate limits of the City of Kingston, they are still members of our community," Gallo said in response to criticism. "They are still human beings. We have an obligation, at the very least, to give serious consideration to their problems."

Gallo denied any "deals" between the City of Kingston and the Town of Ulster where by the town would get city water for Spring Lake and the city would get a landfill site. He did not deny that the matter was discussed.

"I have met with these people," he said. "At the request of Supervisor Sabino we did discuss problems of mutual interest. I have met with several residents of the Spring Lake area whose wells are polluted and proven to be polluted. I have a great deal of compassion for them and their problems."

Gallo said, essentially, that no deals were made because he as alderman-at-large did not have the authority to speak for the city.

"I have no authority to make any agreements," he said, "especially in regard to water. Decisions on water are made by the water board which is an autonomous agency. We can recommend, but the final decision is the water board's."

The water board says Sabino has never approached them. Criticism of Gallo's meetings with Sabino has come from a number of quarters, including Alderman Brian Smith (R-Third Ward), minority leader of the Common Council.

"He did not make his fellow members of the council aware of what he was doing," Smith said, "although it is my understanding that he told Sabino he could deliver the necessary votes in the council."

Smith also expressed some doubts that Sabino and Mayor Francis R. Koenig never met on the matter of water for Spring Lake.

"My information is that they met at least once where Koenig demanded the annexation of Spring Lake in exchange for water rights and Sabino refused."

Sabino and Koenig both insist they did not meet. Koenig says he never made any promises to Sabino at any time about water.

Election . . . 1975 ★

Mrs. Johnson on Fluoride

Republican alderman-at-large candidate Emily Johnson has again emphasized that she does not favor mandatory fluoridation of the city's water supply.

"Although I personally believe the use of fluoride is beneficial," she said, "I would never force mandatory fluoridation on the city's residents. I am in favor of freedom of choice."

She assailed her opponent, incumbent Democrat T. Robert Gallo, "for resurrecting a dead issue such as fluoridation which has no bearing in this campaign."

Instead, she suggested that Gallo "get his own home in order first" — a reference to Gallo's partnership in a recently dissolved funeral business. She asked her opponent to "define his role" in the demise of the business.

"Mr. Gallo has clearly proven that he does not have the ability to administrate his office, let alone the necessary dignity and respect required not only for the funeral profession of which he was a part, but which is so essential to the proper administration of public office," she said.

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Chapter of the Civil Service Employees Association in conjunction with the chapter at the State University College at New Paltz has announced its endorsement for Ulster County clerk, coroner, surrogate court judge, as well as its endorsements for city of Kingston mayor and alderman-at-large posts.

Tom Phillips, president of the Ulster County chapter, explained that these endorsements were made by direct vote of the membership during an endorsement program held recently at the Dolphin Inn. Candidates seeking these offices were invited to make a five-minute address and answer questions from the membership.

After the ballots were tallied, the following candidates received endorsement: Ellen Becker, Liberal candidate for county coroner, William Mullany, Democratic and Liberal candidate for Surrogate Court judge, Lewis Kirschner, Democratic candidate for county clerk, Francis Koenig and T. Robert Gallo, Democratic candidates for mayor and alderman-at-large, City of Kingston.

Connolly Says Facts Not Straight

ROSENDALE

Charged with ineptitude and lying by County Legislator Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist. 6), Rosendale Assessor Edward Connolly has responded by scoring Debrosky for putting his foot in his mouth by sounding off "without first getting all his facts."

Election . . . 1975

Connolly countered a charge of nepotism by Debrosky, by explaining that when he was appointed assessment board chairman for the Town of Rosendale in 1973 there was no office space provided or available for assessors.

"I therefore had to make room in my home and provide this room and utilities at my own expense," Connolly said. "My wife was therefore placed in a position where it was only practical for her to accept the clerical work, which she did for over a year at no cost to the town's taxpayers. Due to the updating and the substantial increase in the work load, the board felt it only proper to compensate her for hours worked on a part-time basis."

Connolly said his son worked no more than 40 hours during a two-month period for the assessment board, "and his position was not that of a data-collector, as Mr. Debrosky stated."

Connolly also asked several questions of Debrosky: "Does your wife not also enjoy county employment? Is it not a fact that due to our work throughout the town that you and others enjoyed a substantial decrease in taxes? In your years as legislator what have you done to relieve the property owner of the burden of school and property taxes?"

Daily Freeman Endorses

Koenig and Gallo

At a time when the largest city in our state is on the brink of bankruptcy, it is good news to know that the City of Kingston is financially sound, due in large part to the present administration.

For that reason in particular The Freeman strongly endorses the team of Mayor Francis R. Koenig and Alderman-At-Large T. Robert Gallo for re-election.

Since taking office six years ago, Koenig and Gallo have shown sensitivity to the needs of the city and its residents.

Koenig is a dedicated servant. His accomplishments in the field of housing have been outstanding. Proof can be found in the construction of Dutch Village Apartments, Broadway East Housing, Stuyvesant and Kingston Pride Apartments — all of them tax-paying properties.

Improvements in recreational areas, increased fire and police protection and completion of the uptown Pike Plan bear further testimony to the accomplishments of the incumbent administration.

Gallo serves as a right arm to the mayor. In addition to his duty as presiding officer of the Common Council, he is an ex-officio member of its committees and serves as acting mayor when required to do so.

Koenig and Gallo have spent hours beyond the call of duty in serving the city and their re-election would assure its residents two more years of good leadership and good government.

While endorsing Koenig and Gallo, The Freeman also notes the campaigns of Republican candidates William Darling and Emily Johnson and Conservative candidates Bernard Singer and Roberta Kolts.

Singer has attacked the administration for failing to adequately staff the assessor's office, thus costing the taxpayers an additional $120 for every $20,000 worth of property they own. His suggestion is a sound one and should be implemented by whom ever is elected to the office.

The Freeman takes exception to Singer's latest proposal — to build the Kingston Hospital on the vacant land across from the new city hall. There isn't enough room for a small hospital on that land, not alone one the size of Kingston Hospital.

Darling has waged an energetic campaign. He has for the most part, emphasized that a change is needed because six years in power is long enough for one party.

He has been critical of the administration on a number of relatively minor issues such as the swimming pool and municipal auditorium but has failed to propose concrete solutions to most of the major problems facing the city in the next two years.

His plea to elect a new mayor simply because the Koenig-Gallo team has been in office for six years doesn't hold water in light of the fine record of the incumbents.

'Yes' to ERA

Simply stated Amendment No. 1 (the Equal Rights Amendment or ERA) says "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the State of New York or any of its subdivisions (cities, counties, towns, villages, etc.) on account of sex." On a broader base, it is a proposal that if it becomes law would legislate expanded rights, equality, dignity and respect for women.

The Freeman heartily endorses this proposal.

Weighing the pros and cons and trying to make sense out of some of the finer lines of the proposed law, the Freeman feels that if respect for the rights and dignity of others must be further legislated in this state, this nation, so be it.

Seldom in recent history has any item on any ballot anywhere caused as much furor as this.

Why? . . . Fear of the unknown, basic in most people is one reason. And, in baser discussions, the term 'Commie Plot' has been used by detractors. Actually, in more academic circles, the main objection voiced is that while trying to expand their rights, women will actually lose many of the rights and privileges they now have.

It has also been stated that the law would leave too much to judicial interpretation following test cases. And, a lot of us have apparently lost faith in the ability of the high courts to handle such a delicate task.

Biological differences notwithstanding, supporters of ERA state that women will not be adversely affected, that the law would simply state once and for all that women are to receive equal respect and consideration under the law.

This country is approaching its 200th birthday. If the court system isn't mature enough to handle something like this it's time it was. And, if on the eve of the bicentennial we have to reinforce one of the building blocks of our nation—respect for the rights and privileges of others, regardless of sex, race and religion, let us do so without fear.

'Yes' on Amendment 4

Amendment 4 deals with extraordinary sessions of the legislature. These have been the province of the governor alone. The executive has been the only one able to call a special session of the Legislature.

Amendment 4 would change all that and The Freeman recommends its passage.

It would provide that if two-thirds of the members of each house agree, the legislature could call itself into special session. Critics of state operations have long held that the legislative branch has been subservient to the governor.

'No' on Amendment 6

Amendment No. 6 to the State Constitution would sanction something the state's highest court has already ruled unconstitutional: payment of pension costs with money raised beyond the constitutional tax limit of a municipality. In short, it's a loophole.

What happened was that free-handed politicians agreed to exorbitant pension programs for public employees and then found they couldn't pay for them.

They got a compliant legislature in 1969 simply to pass a law saying that—for purposes of pension costs, retirement funds—the limit on taxation didn't apply. Such an outright violation was declared unconstitutional in 1974.

What is obviously needed is total reform and curbs on the present multitude of pension systems which are bleeding dry both state and local governments. Until the legislature moves in such a direction, it shouldn't expect, nor is it likely to get, much sympathy from a fed-up public that looks to the legislature's own pension program as the most exorbitant in the state.

The Freeman urges a "no" vote on Amendment 6.

Berry's World

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—New York City's embattled Mayor Abraham Beame, who is in desperate need of money to save the city from bankruptcy, nevertheless turned down a secret $2.8 billion loan offer in Arab petrodollars.

We have traced the mysterious financial proposal from the Persian Gulf to London and New York. George Meisner, a private attorney, approached the mayor with the city-saving offer about two months ago. The $2.8 billion could be made available through London's Burlington Bank, he said.

The city used the American Bank and Trust to verify the offer. Stanley Kreitman, the bank president, acknowledged his role in the negotiations. The terms, he said, called for a compounded 8.8 per cent interest, with all principals and interest payable in 20 years. The money would have been paid out in increments of $950 million every 90 days.

A major stumbling block, according to other sources, was that four large New York City banks had to guarantee repayment. The city failed to obtain the guarantees, but a source close to the negotiations blamed Mayor Beame's "uncooperative attitude."

For example, a lender's agent waited two weeks in a New York City hotel for Beame to contact him, but the mayor never bothered to get in touch with him. The loan offer was finally withdrawn on October 20, although it could still be reopened if the mayor acts quickly.

Our sources asked us not to identify the Arab nation which offered to bail out New York City. They speculated that the mayor, who must answer to a large Jewish population, considered it impossible politically for him to accept Arab petrodollars. A spokesman for Beame told our reporter Marc Smolonsky the city has not received any "concrete" loan offers.

'Just Pitch It Over the Fence'

By William F. Buckley

Old Hubert Ho is, they say, running for President again, and even with only 21 per cent of the vote in the preference poll, is probably the leading contender. So once more we need to fasten our seat belts and anticipate a protracted period of turbulence as reasonable thought is bulleted by the senator's antique liberalism, the main characteristic of which is populist illogic. Like the other day, when he said: Not one cent of foreign aid to Zaire (the Congo) as long as no money is voted for New York City.

What's wrong with that statement?

It's like the one about, How come we voted aid to Lockheed? If you say: If we help A, why should we not help B, it is required by the laws of logic that A and B be generically identical, or at least similar; and that it be generally conceded that helping A was a good idea in the first place. I have previously divulged the difference between Lockheed and New York City, giving also the reasons why the Democrats who prevailed in the House of Representatives in the matter of Lockheed made a mistake in doing so. It is now required that we explain to Senator Humphrey the difference between aid to Zaire and aid to New York City:

1. The purpose of foreign aid is to help backward states victimized by the vicissitudes of history, or industrialized states laid waste by war, to effect modernization, usually through industrialization. New York escaped colonization 199 years ago, and has not yet been bombed.

2. A second purpose of for-

On the Right

Senator Humphrey's Snake Oil

Parenthetically, Senator Humphrey is an old hand at threatening Zaire. Two years ago, he sent word through our ambassador to the United Nations that if Zaire cut off relations with Israel, Zaire would be cut off by the Senate without a cent. Zaire went ahead anyway, and the Senate, blushing, went ahead with its aid anyway. New York City, although its record of friendship for the rest of America is spotty, is not yet in danger of being colonized by the Communists.

3. The purpose of giving aid is to help, not to hurt. One does not give alcohol to an alcoholic one is seeking to help. It is the general conviction of those opposed to federal aid that New York City has got to work its way out of its own problems—cold turkey is the phrase being used.

Assuming that five billion dollars could be doctored from the air over our heads, it would still be open to question whether five billion dollars rained down upon New York City would hurt or help the city strategically. Obviously it would help in the short run, but it is not the short run that aid is supposed to be concerned with, barring flood or famine.

If New York really needs to do something about its finances, then it is going to have to wrestle with economic reality, rather than promenade happily through the pastures of Utopia. As it happens, the money proposed for New York City is money taken from the pockets of a lot of Americans who don't live in New York City—policemen, and firemen, and teachers, and cabdrivers, and nurses, and pensioners—who have problems of their own. One of their problems, though they perceive this only dimly, is Hubert Horatio Humphrey.

Nicholas VonHoffman

Let Them Eat Bananas

WASHINGTON (KFS)—John McClaughry is a man looking for a fight. This Republican State Committeeman who has served two terms in the Vermont legislature even came all the way down here to Washington to see if he could sell somebody on putting his quarrel into the papers.

McClaughry is reversing the usual order of things in politics. Instead of using great principles as a masquerading device to argue over trifles, he is hoping to us a trifle to start an argument over great principles. That is why he is objecting to the invitation to Big Bad Dawn Connally to be the main speaker at the 1975 Vermont Republican Dinner next week.

As one who has worked on the staff of two Republican U. S. Senators, as well as former President Nixon's, McClaughry is entitled to be listened to when he says that he has never met and holds no grudge against the former Johnson Democrat, who switched parties to become Secretary of the Treasury under Mr. Nixon. Nor does McClaughry seem to be drunk on morals and off on an indignation jag because Connally was indicted, tried and acquitted of bribery in one of those many tangential Watergate cases. "I accept his acquittal by a jury . . . as proof that he was innocent," says McClaughry, who has more on his mind than greasy money in smudged envelopes.

No, he objects to Connally because he thinks that Connally, the friend and advisor of Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, is a fascist. He doesn't use that word. What McClaughry says is, "John Connally's economic program is essentially that of Mussolini, shorn only of its objectionable trappings. John Connally is, so far as I know, the only prominent politician at large today who advocates using the coercive power of the Federal government to compel every young person at age 18 to perform a year of involuntary servitude under penalty of law. This is the universal draft—not to protect America from military peril, but merely to absorb labor in times of high unemployment. In other words this is slavery."

In fact Connally has said what the Vermont man accuses him of, but the tight between the two of them, should it ever take place, really runs deeper than the former Texas governor's advocacy of an imbecilic bit of totalitarianism, albeit one which is also advocated by people like Margaret Mead who enjoy a reputation as liberals. What's involved here is a dispute over a whole philosophy of political economy.

John Connally is the symbol of concentrated political and economic power; our small government man from Vermont asserts. "His record in public life reflects his sincere determination to weld Big Business, Big Labor and Big Government into what might be variously described as state capitalism or corporate socialism. This plan is directly opposite to the Jeffersonian tradition of diffused power, decentralized government, free enterprise, widespread property ownership and individual liberty," which McClaughry takes to be the best and true tradition of his party.

Whether or not it is too close the 21st century to realize those ideals, McClaughry's immediate problem is that he can't get anybody in his party to debate him seriously. Dear Old Dad in the White House will use the same language as McClaughry, when he's out on the stump risking his life getting reelected, and then turn around to propose a $100 billion energy scheme that would do Mussolini Proud. That has been the schizophrenic dilemma of the Republican party at least as far back as the 1936 campaign . . . preaching a form of Jeffersonianism while drifting ever more into the parlor of Fascism of state capitalism. Hence Barry Goldwater at one and the same time pounding the podium for individualism and diminishing government while supporting a huge Federal political police force lawlessly tapping phones and reading the citizenry's mail.

Such contradictions bother Goldwater no more than they do most of his fellow Republicans, 90 per cent of whom are, as McClaughry observes, party members "by peer-group pressure or as part of a bunch of bandits . . . A few crusty, old guys who just don't like to spend money are the closest thing to a radical position."

McClaughry's own right-wingism is far, far more positive than that, but the conservatives who, you'd think, might listen to him are really not so much politically conservative as they are socially grouchy. These dyspeptics suffer from the sort of bad public dispositions which permit them a morose, angry joy out of making students ineligible for food stamps, although they basically support the program inasmuch as it is primarily designed to keep food prices up and not to feed the needy.

Party members by tradition, social class or the hope of boodle, it follows that McClaughry's fellow Republican activists can't understand why he should turn into a boat-rocker. Disagreement over ideas is almost totally outside their political or even personal experience, so they have to interpret what he's doing as a ploy to further his ambitions. As he says, "All they want to do is sell tickets to the dinner and fill the house. They'd bring in King Kong as banquet speaker if he could do that, and we'd all eat bananas and like it."

There must be some monkey serious enough to take John McClaughry on.

figure Koenig to beat his nearest competitor, Darling, by about 1,500 to 2,000. Bernie Singer will run well, but alas, was unable to convince the populace he could win.

The Common Council will go either 9-4 or 10-3 with the Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth and 13th Wards, the ones to watch.

The county legislature, we think, will remain about the same — 20-13 — with the Republicans offsetting any losses in the county by picking up in the city.

Someone with a name beginning with the letter 'S' will be elected supervisor in the town of Ulster.

Finally, we have to say something about City Registrar Jeannette Kelly, not that we owe Jeannette Kelly any favors. Mrs. Kelly takes umbrage at our report of the Common Council meeting in October whereby we said that the Council discussed her office and the water department in regard to the new charter.

In fact, only a letter (from Mrs. Kelly) was read (not discussed) at that meeting. Repeat: There was no discussion of Mrs. Kelly's office at the Common Council meeting.

At the risk of sounding ungrateful for all he's done the one question that wasn't asked was "what's he done for us lately?" That means the past two years, which should give some idea of what he might do the next two years.

Koenig's first four years were probably the best two terms any mayor has ever had. The opportunities were there — Urban renewal had to go boom — and Koenig took advantage of them.

The last two? Ho hum. Many, all too many, of the issues from "Campaign '73" were issues this year indicating either that the mayor had the worse luck of any mayor in recent history or he's been coasting for the past two years.

Predictions? Why not? We

In Kingston, one has a whole host of incidents to choose from beginning with the now famous Darling "monkey ad" and ending, thank God, with the Mayor's mother defending her son against allegations that he was quote, unquote, a political animal.

The mayor, of course, got in his shots, attacking his opponent's "ignorance" on the auditorium issue. Frank, who doesn't really need his mother to defend him—after all, he's 41 years old—also ripped Darling for his "vicious" remark on the political animal bit.

Emily Johnson ran a relatively responsible campaign for alderman-at-large but she too fell victim to the mania sweeping political ranks, offering her "undertaker" attack on Bob Gallo at the end.

Gallo, not to be outdone, resurrected the "fluoridation" issue to add some more nonsense to that campaign.

And after all that, the politicians wonder why people stay away from the polls in droves.

CITY BITS—Well, the party's over, and hardly soon enough. None of the candidates had much to say about the future and when one did say something about the past the other two usually managed to get it all tangled up.

But, let's be positive. The mayor had the best ads, purely from the standpoint of advertising. His radio stuff gave us headaches — when will politicians ever learn to

Sabino took that for awhile and then blasted back with an attack on one of his opponents (accountant George Starkman) for doctoring up

More on ERA

Editor, The Freeman:

Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment have sound reason for believing that its mandate will be absolute and that no classification whatsoever based on sex will pass muster. Its wording is that of a generalized slogan . . . "Equality of rights under the law . . .", with no definitive guide. Its stated equality is totally ambiguous.

ERA proponents at the federal level fought relentlessly to prevent any change whatsoever in its wording from limiting its scope. Yet, the Senate Judiciary majority report states that the intent of Congress will be to interpret the ERA in accordance with the 14th Amendment.

Senator Birch Bayh, chief proponent in the U.S. Senate, offered the wording of the 14th Amendment . . . "Equal protection of the laws shall not be denied . . . on account of sex." This was acceptable to many, but some advocates intransigently rejected it because a court or legislature might find some compelling reason to make a classification based on sex, and this was totally unacceptable to them.

Can you seriously believe that the Supreme Court could ever find such an unrealistically formulated intent of Congress embodied in the ERA as it is presently worded? In our haste to end remaining discrimination are we perhaps throwing all caution to the wind? Should we not rather be insisting that our state and federal representatives enact sensible and specific legislation that will provide more estimable results?

A resounding defeat of the proposed state ERA, Amendment 1 on the ballot, would be a mandate to our State Legislature to rescind its 1972 ratification of the federal ERA.

Sincerely,
Alice M. Preisendorfer,
Ulster County Chairman,
Operation Wake Up

Getting Active

Editor, The Freeman:

Open Letter to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony DeLisio, Woodstock: Congratulations! It's good to see some of our more prominent citizens getting active in what's going on around them. Your letter has certainly stimulated many people. I am only sorry that you weren't active four years ago, and then again two years ago when Vern May was a candidate. What a letter you could have written then!

After all, he was and 8 to 5, 5 day a week, 12 months a year employee at IBM, making even more money than Mr. Kronenberg.

And you know, while we're on the subject of part-time, full-time I think you really have a point. The vast majority of Woodstock taxpayers are paying much higher taxes this year due to Ms. Cadden's part-time efforts. Can you imagine what she could do, given the opportunity, full-time?

I also want to compliment you on your candidacies. You don't like Mr. Kronenberg and you make no bones about it. Could this be traced to the time he raised the assessment on your pride and joy, the Woodstock Country Club, when you wanted it lowered?

Why shouldn't the rest of us non-members pay a little extra taxes for the privilege of looking at this place as we ride by?

Thank you for taking the time and effort to write a letter.

IRWIN GOLDSTEIN
Woodstock

ERA Amendment Meanings

Editor, The Freeman:

Most people do not understand the meaning of the Equal Rights Amendment being proposed and a group in the area is capitalizing upon this to use illogical and untrue statements to frighten people that this amendment will bring harm. The truth is that this is a proposed amendment to the State Constitution and therefore, New York State will still control the laws concerning marriage and divorce. Even the inequalities in Social Security benefits will not yet be corrected by this Amendment.

The uninformed person may not realize the difference between a law and an amendment and therefore not realize the need for passage. Yes, there are many laws on the books now to help equalize rights but laws can easily be repealed with a different administration or interpretation and if such laws make the amendment unnecessary why, recently in Long Island was there a discussion of giving male teachers higher salaries than female teachers?

The hysterical argument that, because NOW supports both ERA and abortion, so therefore ERA will lead to abortions is totally illogical. I belong to the Northern Dutchess Business and Professional Women's Club, a well-established conservative organization which does not support abortion. And yet we totally support the Equal Rights Amendment Organization such as Church Women United, the New York State Council of Churches and the United Presbyterian Church in the USA would have given careful consideration to the implications of this amendment before joining in their support.

Remember that the Equal Rights Amendment CANNOT change personal relationships by forcing a wife to work if she and her husband do not wish it. ERA CANNOT change morals or State laws such as who may marry, adopt or get an abortion (not until men can get pregnant.) ERA CANNOT make everyone the same but it CAN give men the rights which women have and to women the rights which men have.

Vote YES to the ERA Amendment

OUR AMERICA

Come on back to AMERICA and remember when a compliment was given for a sincere effort.

In 1972 I sat on the banks of the Hudson praying for spiritual guidance, something that has been separated from our way of life since we became involved in the business mechanics of society.

In 1972 my intuition took me on a TRANS AMERICA tour for some 5-odd months and 23,000 miles of journeying in each of the REAL AMERICA.

It wasn't really difficult, or rather it was difficult until I found a compatible path.

I found a HARMONY amongst the NON SILENT majority who not only worship with sincerity, but also hold fast to the same sincerely with themselves, and with their families. They are the ones that thru the years STILL choose to look through rose colored glasses, and seek employment in a business that maintains a harmonious balance and home life. They maintain an attitude of giving new ideas the benefit of the doubt—provided ALWAYS that the ideas are constructive and plausibly realistic.

This MAJORITY is successful because they are EXPERIENCED in the art of positive living and ethical business attitudes.

The NON SILENT AMERICANS are EXPERIENCED and have learned from the HARMONY and disharmony of life's moments. They hold themselves available but never get ACTIVELY involved until they see sufficient community concern—as KINGSTON saw with the multitude of names on the petition preventing the desecration of fertile lands into a garbage dump.

You will find them at the polls voting for the candidate's ABILITY to be CONSTRUCTIVE to the community at large.

The NON SILENT AMERICANS fly OUR FLAG and refuse to acknowledge a UNITED STATES that seems to be falling apart.

Come on back to AMERICA and bring your WRITTEN list of the candidates of your choice to the VOTING POLLS. Please be aware that our voting machines NOW read ROW A—DEMOCRATIC ROW B—REPUBLICAN.

PLEASE WRITE OUT YOUR VOTES FIRST, so that there will be no confusion.

Did you know the Democratic Assessors raised the assessments thirty per cent and in return only received a ten per cent raise in equalization rate? This Democratic failure has unnecessarily caused Rosendale Taxpayers to pay an average twenty per cent to the school districts and the county. The Democratic Assessors, with approval and encouragement of the Democratic Supervisor, failed to follow the instructions and guideline laid down by the state. This cost Rosendale taxpayers $120,046.00 for fiscal 1975-76.

Answers Darling

Editor, The Freeman:

Mr. Darling—are you completely confused or is this a normal procedure with you? You made statements about what should be done with the Municipal Auditorium without checking further into details about the status of the same. Next, you try to accuse me of conflict of interest concerning me as a fire commissioner and the renting of garage property to the City of Kingston for the storage of fire equipment, so let's set the record straight.

Now we are told by Mayor Koenig what can be done with the Municipal Auditorium, according to the laws and deeds of this property. So I will attempt to enlighten you on the status of the fire station or garage owned by Commissioner Kimbark.

The fire apparatus in my garage was purchased by a volunteer fire company, Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1 of Kingston, of which I am a member. This company raised funds to purchase this equipment. Furthermore, it will remain in my garage until I or the company decide otherwise. The other piece of equipment, the 1934 Sanford Cub, was placed in the care of the Kingston Volunteer Firemen's Association for restoration, and it required many manhours to accomplish this deed. My ability in auto service and repair (which you should know about, Mr. Darling) was also part of this repair. After completing it, the Association had no place to store this piece of equipment so I have allowed it to remain in my garage, at no cost whatsoever to the city, the volunteer fire company, or the Association.

Next, the use of the same portion of my garage as a polling place, including heat and light, for the Second District of the First Ward. I would like to answer your statement about "conflict of interest of Commissioner Kimbark." I do not receive rental for this property for any reason from the city or from any other source. Your "conflict of interest" is purely a civic-minded donation by Mr. Kimbark.

You also stated that you were interested in the improvement of the downtown area of Kingston. I understand that you have made plans to relocate your business in the central area. Why not downtown?

ORVEL G. KIMBARK
Commissioner

Calls It Insulting

Editor, The Freeman:

I am not affiliated with any political campaign in the town of Olive. Yesterday, however, I received a letter from the Republican Campaign Committee which made some very rash accusations. The letter branded citizens who have lived in the town under five years as unfit to participate in the political life of the community. Also included in this category were those who were employed by IBM and school districts outside of the town of Olive.

I personally know many citizens in all three groups who are deeply dedicated to the welfare of the town and its people. I am in two of the three groups mentioned and I found the letter insulting and irresponsible.

The reasoning of the Republican Campaign Committee seems to have as many potholes as the Traver Hollow Bridge.

HUGH McCLOSKEY
Shokan, N. Y.

Public Letter to Val Cadden

Editor, The Freeman:

As a past candidate for public office in Woodstock I feel it proper to write you. Recent issues of both local papers have carried several letters from supporters of your candidacy. These letters and your own statements have made it necessary for someone to sit down and discuss these points with you.

First you're asking for a full-time Supervisor. This would exclude all people who work for a living.

Secondly, your supporters seek a candidate who is not a teacher. This would have excluded from public service such prominent Americans as Patrick Moynihan, Henry Kissinger and Woodrow Wilson. Finally, your supporters imply a candidate should not be a parent. How many people do you want to exclude from public office? You seem to leave only housewives and welfare recipients.

How personal can you get? Is success worth it? Why can't we talk issues—issues the people are interested in? Let's raise the level of this campaign. Let's leave campaigning to the candidates.

JOHN BONILLA
Former candidate for Supervisor and County Legislator

BEGINNING NOVEMBER 15, 1975 ENDING JANUARY 10, 1976

The Weekend College—a new approach in scheduling college classes specially designed for men and women who cannot attend regular day or evening courses because of business or family responsibilities.

HOW IT WORKS You can now take college courses at Marist College on Saturdays and earn 3 undergraduate credits by attending only 6 classes.

- If you register for a Weekend College course, you attend classes from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., including lunch, for three consecutive Saturdays.
- During the following three weeks you do not attend classes but you are expected to do reading and independent research.
- You then return to campus for 3 additional Saturday classes to complete your course.

Freeman Readers Write

Unsupported Allegations

Editor, The Freeman:

This being close to election day I note the arrival of the political hit and run tactic. This comment is occasioned by the appearance in a recent Freeman of an advertisement by a group calling itself "Concerned Citizens of Rosendale" which indulged in unsupported allegations and name-calling on the issue of public ownership of the utilities.

Offering no alternative to present exorbitant electric rates, these "Concerned Citizens" attack public ownership as an "alien" philosophy. Similar language was used by the Tories of 200 years ago when our forefathers used the slogan of "No Taxation Without Representation" and dumped the tea into Boston harbor. Name-calling is no substitute for discussion of issues.

Public ownership is not "alien" to the more than 2,500 communities in our country (including the city of Los Angeles and the State of Nebraska) that own their own utilities. Public ownership is not "alien" to the people of the State of New York who own the Power Authority of the State of New York (PASNY) which sells its power to private utilities such as Central Hudson and to 47 communities in the State who own their own electric distribution systems. The same name-calling in the '30s was used to no avail to stop building the TVA system which has served the Tennessee Valley residents so well these many years. What is "alien" to the American tradition in finding new ways to serve the people when old ways are proving outmoded and counter to the people's interest?

These so-called "Concerned Citizens" seem more concerned about Central Hudson's profits than the welfare of the people. Central Hudson's profits for the past year were more than $2 million greater than the previous year.

This at a time of serious economic difficulty for its customers many of whom are threatened with shutoffs because of inability to pay. Note the high salaries being paid to the executives of Central Hudson. Last year the chief officer received over $300,000.00 in salary and dividends. This year he and another executive have been retired on annual pensions of $94,000 and $67,000 respectively. The Federal Power Commission has stated that publicly-owned utilities contribute to town treasuries as much as and often more than what privately owned utilities pay in taxes. Rates average 1% lower than those of private utilities.

The only consideration that should concern these "concerned citizens" is alternatives to the present high rates. They should request their town board consider a feasibility study by a reputable engineering firm as to whether public ownership offers a solution and what road the town should take on behalf of its citizens at no increase in financial burdens to achieve the goal of reducing utility rates for both the town and its members.

Very truly yours,
HENRY L. KLEIN,
Kerhonkson

Paid vs. Vols

Editor, The Freeman:

In recent non-months I have read and listened to much controversy over the Paid and Volunteer Fire Departments. It seems, however, that the Paid men seem to be a target for the Volunteers and Mayoral candidates.

In an article from Wednesday's Freeman, October 29, 1975, Republican Candidate William K. Darling states that the Paid Department received over four times the sum for new equipment than was spent on the Volunteer Companies, and that this was favoritism shown by Mayor Koenig toward the Paid Firefighters. However, the Paid Department is the first to respond to a call; it would only seem logical that the newer and better equipment should be in their hands. As a homeowner in this city, I would feel safer knowing that the better equipment won't be the last to show up.

As a closing note, I would like to see one of your readers write a letter that could possibly help me to understand why the Volunteer Firemen are angry at not being called out. It would give me the impression that if there have not been any fires that were serious enough to use them, that the volunteers should not be angry, but happy that they do not have to leave their jobs or homes to perform their "Noble Advocacy" unnecessarily.

Yours truly,
RALPH PITCARIN
Kingston, N. Y.

Justice for All

Editor, The Freeman:

In answer to Mrs. Kidney's remarks in reference to an incident which found its way into the court of Robert W. Jordan, Town of Esopus, I feel there must be a few facts which Mrs. Kidney is obviously unaware of.

In this particular instance a defendant was charged with attempted murder. Due to insufficient evidence Judge Jordan reduced the attempted murder charge to reckless endangerment, hardly the move of a "hanging-Judge." Upon strong recommendation of the district attorney's office that the bail of $100,000 not be reduced in the interest of the public's safety, Judge Jordan was in compliance and then ordered an immediate psychiatric examination of the defendant. The defendant was then held for grand jury action. How many days before indictment? Unfortunately, the local courts are not allowed to make appointments for immediate attention of the grand jury on the cases which they submit.

I understand your prejudicial views Mrs. Kidney but let us evaluate the "whole" situation. If my history is correct, many a president, dignitary, and statesman have been assassinated by individuals with "NO PREVIOUS RECORD."

Arness and Gunsmoke Dominated Saturday for Years

trying. During a luncheon negotiation with Bill Paley he fell asleep ("I had a terrible hang-over"), prompting Paley to remark to aides, "If he's that disinterested, you better give him the money."

When Jackie decided to do his show from Miami Beach and live in the Miami Country Club where he could play golf every day of the year, CBS officials swallowed hard and took his $650,000 keyhole-shaped, one-bedroom glass house off his hands. The network tried to sell the Peekskill house but wound up owning it for years.

In 1970 Gleason and CBS disagreed over the kind of show he should be doing. CBS wanted a full hour of The Honeymooners, which for a year in the mid-Fifties he had done as a separate half-hour show, but Jackie performed a variety package including "The Honeymooner." The CBS proposal would have meant memorizing 55 minutes of script in four days. Jackie claimed, "I could have done it, but I would have had to cut out everything else."

So Jackie politely said no to Bill Paley and retired to his new 14-room Glea Manor in Inverrary, Florida. Like a great xall club three-deep in every position, CBS officials reasoned that it pays to keep talent on the bench and thus out of the opposing club's lineup. CBS kept writing $100,000-a-year checks while Jackie sat on his ample derriere.

When Gunsmoke was to make the switch from radio to television in 1955, there was never any question in CBS circles as to who should play Marshal Dillon. The part was written for and tailored to the dimensions of John Wayne. The Duke was everybody's idea of the heavyweight good guy who tamed Dodge City with country wisdom salted with brute strength and peppered with lead.

John Wayne wasn't interested. But he did suggest a candidate—a big fellow named Arness who was under contract to Wayne's production company. At the time, James Arness was a candidate for actors anonymous. His biggest hit—the title role in The Thing—had required a virtuoso growling performance as a 250-pound vegetable from outer space.

When Arness showed up for a test, excited studio executives thought the man just reeked of horse sweat and manly charm. He was, in short, Right for the Part.

James Arness did not want the part. His agent, Kurt Frings, wasn't enthusiastic either. Still, Arness was free and Frings committed him to do the role.

On the night before Arness was to show up for wardrobe fittings, CBS was notified that he had changed his mind; he had decided against going into TV and was, in fact, already shooting a western for Republic Pictures. But the network had ordered sets, hired other actors and was already pouring thousands of dollars into the production. Tough luck, pard. You can forget that CBS contract. Arness had spoken.

He hadn't bargained, however, with William Dozier, then West Coast Director of programming for the network. Dozier was a determined man and a veteran of the kind of live-and-let-die warfare that is played in Hollywood as casually as viewers switch channels on TV. He picked up the telephone and bluntly told Arness: "You don't know me, but I want to tell you that you are about to do something very unprofessional."

Even an established star (which Arness wasn't) thinks twice about doing something regarded as "unprofessional" by an important entertainment-capital executive. Powerful people trade gossip at Hollywood parties, gossip that can end a career without the victim even knowing why his telephone has suddenly stopped ringing.

Dozier invited Arness to his house. At the meeting, Dozier and fellow executives explained the contract—why it was a good one for Arness and why he shouldn't break it.

Whether Arness saw the light or simply felt the heat, he lived up to the terms of his contract—and discovered a gold mine. Gunsmoke dominated the Saturday night scene at 10 p.m. for years, galloping along at or near the top of the ratings well into the mid-1960s. It was 12 years before NBC movies managed to gun it down. (At that point in 1967, Gunsmoke was actually canceled. But at the "suggestion" of Bill Paley, who always loved this endless western saga, the cast was resigned and the show resurrected and rescheduled on Monday night prime time—and it has remained there ever since.)

Network minions were at Arness's call to answer every whim in those golden years. When Arness wanted to get out from under his ranch, the cowboy crooked a finger and CBS came forward with its seemingly bottomless purse, kissed the financial bruises and bandaged them with greenbacks. This kind of bailout kept the stars happy, and happy stars make for a happier, more prosperous network.

James Arness mounted up and rode into Dodge City, finally loping off into the sunset after 20 years at the end of the Spring season in 1975. Bill Dozier guesses the man is worth perhaps $20 million today, and all because if a part he didn't want.

I am pleased that the Ulster, Sullivan, Delaware, Greene Counties Building and Construction Trades Council has approved my candidacy as Town Judge of the Town of Ulster for this coming election. The endorsement is significant to me in that my name will appear on the ballot on lines B and C, the Republican and Conservative lines respectively.

Although I take exception to some elements in the labor movement, I have always found the members, officers, business agents and responsible officials of the local trades council to be outstanding representatives of the labor movement. They have shown integrity in representing their membership and to my personal knowledge have always been aware of the problems of labor and industry in their area of representation.

I want to thank its leaders and the members of each craft for their vote of confidence and support.

Singer Charges 'Lies' in City-Town 'Deal'

KINGSTON

In one of the most strongly worded statements of the mayoral campaign, Conservative candidate Bernard Singer has labeled incumbent Democrat Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo a "bold-faced and maybe a pathological liar." Singer says that Gallo had earlier denied, at a Common Council meeting, that any such deal was in the works.

"Can you imagine the gall and deliberate insult to the people of Kingston?" asked Singer, "If (Koenig) still says he knew nothing about this plan then he too must be a liar on one of two counts. Either he knew about it or he and Gallo are not a team."

It is Singer's contention that there was to be a pre-election statement announcing the trade-off. As a result, he says, Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino would earn points for obtaining city water; Gallo and Mayor Francis R. Koenig could tell the voters that they successfully relocated the landfill out of the city.

Singer, however, says the supposed plan was just a smokescreen; that after the election the deal would be called off.

At this point, the alleged "plot" is academic. The Ulster Town Board announced in late September that it would forbid any outside dumping in the town. Sabino said at a press conference last Tuesday that although the town now has nothing to trade for the water, it was renewing its request on a "humanitarian basis."

With that statement, says Singer, Sabino "spilled the beans" and helped "Prove that Robert Gallo is a bold-faced and maybe a pathological liar."

"I will repeat once again and for the last time that there is a plan to put the dump back in the 10th Ward. Koenig knows it because it is his plan, and Gallo knows it. If I am wrong, then tell us where it (the dump) will go."

Singer continued, "Koenig and Gallo double-crossed the Liberal Party by seeking the Conservative Party endorsement. What will stop them from double-crossing the good people of the 10th Ward?"

Terming Koenig and Gallo

Election . . . 1975

"two men who are very loose with the truth," Singer added, "Teach them and all politicians once and for all to tell the truth or get out of office."

In a somewhat less harsh—but no less direct—statement, Singer has termed the Freeman's editorial endorsement of Koenig and Gallo a "Charlie McCarthy Dummy" for one of the candidates. He was referring specifically to one statement in the editorial which noted, "... it is good to know that the city is financially sound."

"A responsible editorial would give some evidence, no matter how little, to support such a statement," said Singer, "Since every claim Mr. Koenig made during this campaign and every promise for the future he is making depends on state and federal aid, I want your paper to tell the people what will happen if the state and federal people stop their allocations. I will offer my opinion and say total fiscal collapse boarding (sic) on bankruptcy."

"If your editorial board," he continued, "wants to really inform our residents and respect truth in editorializing, then give us some evidence that this city is financially sound and not merely repeat the candidate's political ballyhoo."

Cadden Attacks Assessment

WOODSTOCK Election . . . 1975

Val Cadden, Republican candidate for Town of Woodstock Supervisor, says that information obtained from the New York State Board of Equalization and Assessment disproves her opponent's contention that "Woodstock's high taxes resulted from this year's tax roll, which includes the recent reassessment under the guidance of the GOP candidates."

Ms. Cadden noted that state documents prove that the 1975 equalization rate for Woodstock was based on 1971 assessment figures, when her opponent, Democrat William Kronenberg, served as town assessor.

The Republican candidate quoted an Oct. 24 letter from William D. McKeever, chief of equalization rate operations for the state, to Supervisor

Verner L. May, which stated: "As you know, the regular state equalization rate for the assessment roll completed, verified and filed in 1974 is 43.80. This rate is based on the average of 1970 and 1973 market values which gives double weight to 1973. This is the full value standard used to determine 1974 state equalization rates for all cities and towns in the state. The assessment roll used as a basis for sampling in both the 1970 and 1973 market value surveys was the roll completed in 1971. The 1975 assessment roll has not yet been used as a basis for any of our survey samples."

"The assessment roll completed in 1975 of the Town of Woodstock reflected a complete reevaluation of all properties. The increase in level of assessment resulting from this revaluation program when applied to the regular equalization rate of 43.80, resulted in a special equalization rate of 135.41. This special rate was given to the proper school officials for use in apportioning 1975-76 school taxes in those districts which contain a portion of the Town of Woodstock. We have also provided the County of Ulster with an advisory ratio for the Town of Woodstock of 135.41 for use in apportioning the coming general county tax levy."

"The revaluation program had no effect on the total amount of school taxes paid by the Town of Woodstock."

Cadden charged that Kronenberg "misrepresented the facts" when he suggested that Woodstock's current tax rate resulted from this year's tax roll.

The Republican candidate for Supervisor also released a seven-point program for action should she be elected Tuesday. The program includes:

- Obtaining voter approval for all major capital expenditures for improvements.
- Seeking an innovative sewage system funded only by the users, with maximum state and federal funding.
- Pushing for home rule on welfare at the town and county level.
- A review of current land-use regulations in order to simplify procedures.
- Monitoring assessments to insure equality for taxpayers.
- Selecting the best qualified people for appointive posts.
- Promoting sensible and factual dialogue to elp solve problems.

Charter Approval Urged

KINGSTON
Bernard G. Matthews, a member of the Charter Revision Commission, has urged voters to approve the new proposed city charter on Election Day.

Matthews said the proposed charter includes several new features that justify its approval:

- "Centralized purchasing for all city departments (including Water), thereby eliminating irresponsible fiscal practices that cost taxpayers additional dollars for separate advertising, bidding and purchasing by each department of equipment, supplies and material. In addition the charter allows for effective inventory control avoiding one department purchasing what another has as a surplus . . .

- "A unified system of building, property and motor equipment maintenance for all departments (including Water), thereby eliminating wasteful spending and resulting in tax savings. In addition, a unified system of revenue collection for all city monies (including Water rates) is established, reducing costs and allowing for reduction in water costs.

- "Provides for responsible government with ultimate control of all city services (including Water) entrusted to the elected representatives of the people, the Common Council, and thereby preventing any possibility of an appointed board from independently making service available outside the city at city taxpayers expense.

- "Present local laws, ordinances, rules and regulations continue to remain in effect unless they specifically conflict with the charter. And new local laws, ordinances, rules and regulations can be adopted to implement the charter without the need to amend the structure of the proposed charter."

Ullmann Details His Campaign

MOUNT TREMPER
Edward Ullmann, Democrat Liberal candidate for county legislator in District Two (Kingston Town, Shandaken and Woodstock) says he wants to be elected in order to join "that solid minority of bright, honest legislators who want to see democracy work" in the county legislature.

Ullmann, a pharmacist by profession, whose hobbies include writing, sports and traveling, said that he has been following the activities of the county legislature for some time but realized that he could not effect significant change as an outsider, as it were.

"After running out of negatives to justify my apathy, I realized it was something that I had to do," he said.

"I see our county legislature and our area as faced with three outstanding problems—communication, regional planning and welfare," Ullmann said. He said he would augment communication by providing the media with a monthly report of his legislative activities.

He would foster cooperation between the county and the various town planning boards to strengthen home rule but says also that he favors the Catskill Study Commission as recommended by Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st).

He feels that the county should be in charge of administering welfare but that funding should be on a national level.

He supports the CSEA in its negotiations for higher wages and also supports the Ulster County Youth Bureau, the Office for the Aging, the Irate Consumers of Ulster County and "will also push vehemently towards a modern county refuse operation," he said.

Contini Scores Utility Plan

ROSENDALE

The Rosendale Conservative Party has taken a stand against the proposed Democratic plan to establish a municipal utility as economically unfeasible and socialistic.

Attilio Contini, town Conservative chairman, predicted it would take at least $3 million capital to buy Central Hudson's assets in the town, plus maintenance of facilities, loss of tax revenues, and an expected protracted court battle.

And he advocated that Supervisor Richard Glazer and friends from the Concerned Consumers go after the "cause of the problem rather than attack the effects. Big government and the super biggies of the oil industry such as the Rockefeller family are the cause of inflation and the economic problems we are faced with today."

Conservative Endorsement

TOWN OF MARBLETOWN
Adeline "Teri" DeBenedetto, Democratic candidate for a four year term as assessor in the Town of Marblertown has announced that he has received the endorsement of the Marblertown Conservative Party.

"I have in my capacity as secretary to the assessors for the past year shown both my ability and willingness to help solve problems area residents have with their assessments and exemptions," she said of her candidacy. "I am prepared to work full-time if necessary to get our town on an equal status with other towns that started their reevaluation before us. I am available to work six days a week since I have no other commitment to divide my time between."

"I want to see inequities straightened up as we proceed with recording each property in our town. I am concerned that our equalization rate is dropping each year. I feel it is terribly unfair for new town residents to be penalized for these inequities by having their assessments jump by as much as two or three thousand dollars on a purchase of home and land."

"If time were available for a reevaluation of surrounding property each time the assessors went out on a transfer of property, many of these inequities would not exist. The assessors have made a great start in having the data collectors gather information in several areas of our town, but is the time going to be available for them to follow up individually checking each property physically as well as keeping up with the volume of work flowing in and out of the office?"

Candidate Calls For Openess

STONE RIDGE
"Too many decisions are made now at special town board meetings in Marblertown and these topics don't necessarily come up for discussion at the regular monthly sessions which the public and press attend," charges Elsie Weglarz, Democratic candidate for supervisor.

"Too often, by the time an issue comes up for public discussion, the board has already made a decision and so public discussion loses much of its value," Mrs. Weglarz said. "Even elementary steps such as opening bids on town equipment and supplies at public meetings are not part of our present government routine."

"More public involvement and more open government have been the issues in my campaign for supervisor, and I feel our present Republican-controlled administration is not making the effort necessary to involve Marblertown residents in their town government."

Mrs. Weglarz also advocated preliminary budget hearings to allow citizens a voice in establishing town spending priorities before the budget assumes the final form presented at the one budget hearing now held.

"Certainly, copies of the budget should be available at this final hearing," she said. "I can't accept economy as a valid reason for not supplying copies of the budget any other than I can accept economy as a valid reason for opening only one polling place—the town hall in Stone Ridge—for local registration in Marblertown."

Spada Condemns 'The Tactics'

KINGSTON

"My opponent is not qualified to be county clerk, and no amount of mud-slinging on his part is going to convince anyone that he is qualified," incumbent County Clerk Albert Spada said today of Democratic candidate Lewis C. Kirschner.

Charging that instead of addressing himself to the issues, Kirschner has "continued to conduct his campaign with near-libelous, near-slandering and utterly outrageous statements," Spada said his opponent has "manufactured preposterous rumors, only to deny them in the same breath."

"In his lack of knowledge about the office he seeks," Spada continued, "he has attributed to the county clerk most of the powers and authority vested in the county legislature, the sheriff's department and the district attorney's office—all rolled into one."

Noting that Kirschner is a county legislator, Spada charged that he does not know "why he's there or what he's supposed to be doing" in the position of legislator. "By his own admission, he is not aware of the fact that the legislator, not the county clerk, handles

Kirschner is not aware that the state returns vehicle registration fees to the county of residence of the person registering his auto and that no revenue is lost by Ulster County through inter-county registrations.

"In conclusion," Spada said, "I condemn my opponent's campaign tactics. They are the tactics of a desperate man."

It's Time For a Change!

AND HERE ARE JUST A FEW REASONS WHY . . .

- * Bill Darling has over 30 years of successful Banking and Business background so necessary to streamline City Hall.
- * Bill Darling would create an Advisory Panel to actively work with the Chamber of Commerce—Industrial Development Corp. in seeking to bring needed industry and business back into the City of Kingston.
- * Bill Darling would seek to promote Tourism & Travel, making the most of our City's Proud Heritage and History.
- * Bill Darling proposes a Balanced Budget without Tax Increase!
- * Bill Darling and Emily Johnson propose a government which is truly responsive to the people's needs and wants!
- * Bill Darling and Emily Johnson stand nothing to gain by seeking Public Office, they are both successful people, who have only the city and its people at heart!
- * Bill Darling and Emily Johnson would build a closer bond between the people and their elected officials.
- * Bill Darling and Emily Johnson would implement SUNSHINE GOVERNMENT. A government with an open door policy rather than back room sessions and secret meetings.
- * Bill Darling and Emily Johnson ARE NOT Politicians and have never run for political office. They are merely CONCERNED Citizens who offer you a change from an organized Political Machine type of government to a government by concerned and efficient citizens!

Sanding Away

Inside the shop at Fabulous Treecraft Furniture, Martha Frankle works at sanding a piece. The sanding process, she says, is 90 per cent of the work.

Trees too big, too misshapen, too rotten for the mills. Often their quest takes them 40 miles afield, but when it leads them to an old, hollow tree that has weathered 250 winters, the rewards are great for a uniquely creative family of craftsmen.

'A Fabulous' Family of Craftsmen

BOICEVILLE

Along the wooded banks of the Ashokan Reservoir they roam and search—looking always for those trees the normal logger would disdain. Trees too big, too misshapen, too rotten for the mills. Often their quest takes them 40 miles afield, but when it leads them to an old, hollow tree that has weathered 250 winters, the rewards are great for the uniquely creative family of craftsmen who operate Fabulous Treecraft Furniture in Boiceville.

"We do our own logging," says Steve Heller, who started the family business, "because it's the only way to obtain the kind of wood we want—wood that can't be bought any place."

They also do their own milling and cutting and trucking to get the lumber that provides the public with an exciting line of artistic free-form furniture and accessories. Tailormade pieces that are simple and elegant, inventive and playful, adventurous and fanciful.

One of the specialties at Fabulous Treecraft Furniture is the use of spalted maple, a very rare, diseased form of hard rock maple. The unbelievable grain and color patterns in the wood resemble pen and ink drawings, or a strange form of marble.

"It's beautiful and incredible," says Steve Heller, "but very, very difficult to work with. So twisted, so many knots that it's hard to handle in order to make sturdy, straight and workable furniture."

It is a challenge the family of four has met many times over, however. Far more venturesome than most craftsmen, they have broken down the traditional barriers in furniture making. Captivated by the unexplored potential of such exotic hardwoods as black walnut, spalted maple, black cherry, aromatic cedar and yellow birch, they have pursued furniture construction as an exciting art form.

The showroom on Route 28 in Boiceville has the fascination of an art gallery. An 800 year old, 4 foot wide black walnut tree has become a dining table with butterfly inlays. A walnut butternut and mahogany backgammon set would do honor to a shah's palace. A spalted maple crosscut coffee table with sculptured chestnut base is both free-form and functional. Hutches, chairs, chopping blocks, mirrors—anything anyone wants made to order is there.

The showroom is a visual testament to the philosophy behind it. "We're a family business," the craftsmen quartet says in unison. "That's what we feel is different about our operation—we're all working together."

But the room says something more to a prospective customer. It suggests that a love of nature formed these craftsmen's preference for wood as a medium. Every piece of furniture is inherently different and alive. Every piece of wood has been shaped into something exciting, proving that the possibilities of design are limitless.

Steve Heller, who used to do sculpture, has applied that talent to his unusual contemporary designs. He learned his furniture construction techniques by working with an elderly Vermont craftsman; then taught his skills to his co-workers in Boiceville. Between them, they have basically built their showroom, shop and lumber storage sheds on Route 28 from a long-abandoned gas station and snack bar.

In the woods that fringe the yard, stacks of lumber are left to dry for two years, then moved indoors into buildings and attics for further drying. It is a system that not only allows customers to specify the exact dimensions of a table, chair, or cabinet, but permits them to pick a specific piece of lumber or log from which their furniture will be made.

The particular piece of wood chosen by the customer determines the price of the finished product, a price established by the difference in grain patterns and knots. Even so, says Heller, "We feel all of our things are low priced for what they are. There's no middleman in our business, and even our most expensive pieces are not priced out of anyone's reach."

And, so, like the cabinetmakers, rail-splitters, barn-builders, carvers of ship's figureheads, coopers and wheelwrights before them, the men and women of Fabulous Treecraft Furniture have become part of the wood craftsman's grain. The fiber of the Ashokan woods shapes the character of their work—work that is much in demand in galleries, craft shops, and area homes. There is only a handful of U.S. woodworkers who specialize in against-the-grain custom work . . . and, in that small and highly creative number, the four craftsmen of Fabulous Treecraft Furniture are highly regarded by their peers for their innovative designs in furniture that is beautiful, enduring, natural, and alive.

Inspired by the woods of the Catskills themselves, this is furniture that seemingly says that nature is the artist and the Heller "family" simply the craftsmen.

Steve Heller's image is reflected in a mirror on the wall of the showroom. Says Steve, "Hollow trees make beautiful mirrors."

It's Time For a Change!

AND HERE ARE JUST A FEW REASONS WHY . . .

- 1. THE OLD CITY HALL—The mayor has allowed this magnificent Structure to fall to wrack & ruin. BILL DARLING PROPOSES TO FIND A PROPER USE WITHOUT ASKING THE TAXPAYERS FOR A BLANK CHECK FOR EXPENDITURES OF APPROX. $1,000,000!
  - 2. DOWNTOWN URBAN RENEWAL—"City Hall Plaza", "Grand Union" all just promises—still no developers! BILL DARLING HAS PRIVATELY BROUGHT BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY INTO THE CITY AND WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR OVER 120 NEW JOBS. BILL DARLING CAN DO THE SAME FOR SAHARA LAND!
  - 3. THE CITY BUDGET—has risen from approximately $2,500,000 to a little over $8,064,000. BILL DARLING PROPOSES SOUND FISCAL PLANNING. WITH OVER 30 SUCCESSFUL YEARS IN BANKING AND PRIVATE BUSINESS, BILL DARLING KNOWS ABOUT BUDGETS AND SOUND FINANCIAL PLANNING.
  - 4. THE LANDFILL SITE?—Where is the 'DUMP' finally going to go. The mayor had many years for this decision! BILL DARLING OBJECTED TO THE CHAPEL STREET SITE. BILL DARLING CALLED UPON THE MAYOR TO REVEAL HIS PLANS BEFORE ELECTION. BILL DARLING PROMISES LONG TERM PLANNING SO THAT WE ARE NOT BOUNCED FROM CRISIS TO CRISIS!
  - 5. THE FIREMEN'S CONTROVERSY—You must remember this problem—the mayor is the first in our city's history to have problems between the Paid and Volunteer firemen. He has had this problem for a few years now! BILL DARLING HAS TAKEN STRONG EXCEPTION TO THE MAYOR'S HANDLING BY STRONG ARM TACTICS THIS PUBLIC SAFETY ISSUE. BILL DARLING HAS PROMISED TO NOT PHASE OUT AND OR ELIMINATE THE VOLUNTEER FIREMEN. BILL DARLING SUPPORTS THE LAW TO MAKE THE ENTIRE COMMON COUNCIL RESPONSIBLE FOR ABOLISHMENT OF THE VOLUNTEERS—NOT A HAND PICKED GROUP OF FOUR FIRE COMMISSIONERS SELECTED BY THE MAYOR!
  - 6. DECREASE IN CITY POPULATION—We have lost over 4,000 persons from this city recently. BILL DARLING PROPOSES TO ACTIVELY ENCOURAGE NEW RESIDENTS AND BUSINESS TO LIVE AND WORK IN OUR CITY.
  - 7. INCREASE IN CRIME—There has been an increase in crime, especially violent crime in our city! BILL DARLING PROPOSES AN IN-DEPTH REVIEW OF OUR POLICE DEPARTMENT WITH THE HELP OF CONCERNED AND QUALIFIED PRIVATE CITIZENS.
  - 8. BUSINESS LEAVING OUR CITY—We have literally lost hundreds of businesses since our mayor has been in office. The mayor boasts of filling a few stores uptown—how about the hundreds from all over town that left? BILL DARLING BELIEVES THAT KINGSTON CONSISTS OF MORE THAN JUST AN 'UPTOWN'. BILL DARLING PROPOSES TO HELP ALL AREAS OF THE CITY IN REVITALIZING ITSELF.
  - 9. LACK OF CENTRAL PURCHASING—The mayor runs the city with other people's money much like the movie theatre he invested in—(OUT OF TOWN). Ask him how his theatre business is doing? BILL DARLING PROPOSES TO RUN THE CITY LIKE A BUSINESS WHICH MUST BE SUCCESSFUL IN ORDER TO CONTINUE. THE MAYOR DOES NOT THINK WE COULD BE ANOTHER NEW YORK CITY!
  - 10. DOUBLING OF CITY EMPLOYEES—When our businesses are leaving and over 4,000 persons moved out of Kingston—The mayor can boast of more than doubling our city employees. Sound like a political machine? BILL DARLING IS AS MUCH IN FAVOR OF WORK FOR PEOPLE AS IS THE NEXT GUY—BUT TWICE THE NUMBER OF CITY EMPLOYEES—WHO IS THE MAYOR KIDDING? Only the taxpayer!
  - 11. CENTRAL BUSINESS DISTRICT AND DOWNTOWN—What has the mayor done in these areas? BILL DARLING PROPOSES TO SHOW AS MUCH CONCERN FOR UPTOWN AS DOWNTOWN AND ALL AROUND THE TOWN! IT IS TIME FOR A MAYOR WHO LOVES OUR WHOLE CITY NOT A PART OF IT!
  - 12. CITY WATER & SEWAGE SYSTEMS—When the mayor took office over six years ago he had these problems! BILL DARLING, OVER SIX YEARS LATER PLANS TO DO SOMETHING TO UPGRADE OUR OUT-DATED WATER AND SEWAGE SYSTEMS. HOW? BY A COMPREHENSIVE PLAN TO START TACKLING THE PROBLEM NOW—NOT SIX YEARS FROM NOW!
  - 13. TRANSPORTATION FOR SENIOR CITIZENS—So we finally may have a couple of mini-buses—We needed them and much more over six years ago. Maybe will get them just before election! BILL DARLING FEELS THAT THE SENIOR CITIZEN HAS BEEN SHORT CHANGED AND LIED TO! DARLING HAS OUTLINED PROGRAMS TO HIRE AND HELP OUR SENIOR CITIZENS. We need him now!
  - 14. HISTORIC RESTORATION—Ask the mayor for the real story on Tremper House and the Hoffman House! BILL DARLING DOES NOT THINK THAT REPAIRING THE ROOF OF THE SENATE HOUSE IN OCTOBER IS INDICATIVE OF MAYOR KOENIG'S BEST INTENTIONS TO SHOW HIS CONCERN FOR ALL OF OUR FINE HISTORIC BUILDINGS.
  - 15. DEITZ STADIUM SWIMMING POOL—We have only waited for 3 years and now we have a HOLE in the ground! BILL DARLING FINDS THIS ONE HARD TO BELIEVE! NOT ONLY THE THREE YEARS IN THE MAKING—BUT FOR A COST OF $208,000—SEEM A LITTLE HIGH FOR A SWIMMING POOL?
  - 16. DROP IN CITY'S EQUALIZATION RATE—Ask the mayor about this one, but be sure it's before Election! BILL DARLING HAS SPELLED OUT IN SEVERAL NEWS RELEASES, HIS PLANS TO CORRECT THIS PROBLEM!
  - 17. RECREATION & CITY PARKS—Notice how the mayor attempted to clean-up some of the parks in the last few weeks. Does he really think that none of us notice the flurry of activity, every two years, just around election time? BILL DARLING'S RUNNING MATE—EMILY JOHNSON HAS ISSUED DETAILED PLANS ON RECREATION AND OUR PARKS. LET'S GIVE EMILY A CHANCE TO GET IN THERE AND FIGHT FOR YOU!
- FELLOW TAXPAYERS AND FRIENDS . . . THE LIST GOES ON AND ON . . . YEAR AFTER YEAR . . . THE SAME OLD PROBLEMS . . . THE SAME OLD PROMISES . . . THIS YEAR VOTE ROW B FOR DARLING & JOHNSON!

Nuptials Announced

Marlene Elizabeth Lavery of Esopus and Bradley John Feil of Port Ewen were united in marriage at Ponckhockie Congregational Church, 93 Abruyn Street.

The Rev. Cecil L. McFarland, pastor, officiated at the ceremony. Wayne Cushman, organist, accompanied Miss Rita Horvers who sang wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Lavery of 14 President's Place, Kingston. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Joan Feil of 148 Broadway, Port Ewen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a gown of imported silk organza, fashioned with a shaped and fitted modified Empire bodice, a scalloped Sabrina neckline, and long, sheer tapered sleeves. Handslipped and seed pearl appliqued peau d'ange lace formed the neckline and accented the bodice and waistline. A scalloped border of lace encircled the hemline of the demi-bell skirt which swept back to form an attached cathedral train.

Susan Hamilton of 14 President's Place, Kingston, was honor attendant for her sister. Other attendants were Mrs. Richard Quinn of West Hurley, sister of the bride; Mrs. Robert Lavery, 53 Spring Street, Kingston, sister-in-law of the bride; and Mrs. Robert Cade of Kerhonkson.

Steve Saura of Port Ewen was best man. Ushers were Richard Quinn, West Hurley; Charles Martin, Port Ewen; and Robert Cade of Kerhonkson.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1971. The bridegroom, an alumnus of KHS, class of 1969, is a self-employed ferrier and is employed also by U.S. Postal Service.

The couple will reside in Esopus.

Catherine LoCicero, daughter of Mrs. Adelaide LoCicero of New Paltz, was united in marriage to Timothy Smith of Highland at St. Joseph's Church in New Paltz. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Marie Elliott of Highland and Theodore Smith of New Paltz.

The Rev. Christopher Dietrich officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Andrew LoCicero. Honor attendant was Nina Benjamin of Highland, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kathy Smith, sister of the bridegroom, Highland; Cathie Tozzi of New Paltz; and Karen Bishop of Gardiner. Miss Lori Brown of Highland, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Ted Smith of Esopus was best man for his brother. Ushers were Philip Palazzo, brother-in-law of the bride, Highland; David Elliott of Kingston; and Jeffery Owin of Saugerties. Ricky Sparling of New Paltz, nephew of the bride, served as ringbearer.

A reception was given at the Capri '400' Restaurant in Port Ewen.

The bride, a graduate of New Paltz High School, attended Ulster County Community College, and is employed by Marine Midland Bank. The bridegroom, an alumnus of New Paltz High School, is employed by Northeast News Company.

After a wedding trip to Maine, the couple is residing at Port Ewen.

Hamlet Group Concluding With Two November Plays

WEST HURLEY The Hamlet Theatre will conclude its 1975 season with two one-act plays: "The American Dream" by Edward Albee and "I'm Really Here" by Jean-Claude Van Itallie. Performances will be on all Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 throughout November. Opening night is Nov. 7.

The author of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" has described his shorter play as being "an evocation of the American scene, an attack on the substitution of artificial for real values in our society, a condemnation of complacency, cruelty, emasculation and vacuity, it is a stand against the fiction that every thing in this slipping land of ours is peachykeen." The cast will include John Haag as Daddy, Sue Pasternack as Mommy, Harriet Winkelman as Grandma, Dolores DiPuccio as Mrs. Barker and Ken Brett as the American Dream.

The second play is by the author of "America

Hurrah," Jean-Claude Van Itallie. "I'm Really Here" deals with a peachykeen young American woman's trip to Paris and her subsequent "love affair" with a handsome European tour guide. In this play, Van Itallie probes the myths of eternal safety and universal happiness. The role of the young American woman, Doris, will be played by Karen Sue Goldstein. The part of Rossano, the guide, will be played by Ken Brett, who has recently won the "Outstanding Acting Award" for his creation of Rossano in the Hamlet's production of "I'm Really Here" by the Regional Theatre Festival.

The production of "I'm Really Here" by the Hamlet Theatre has been recommended for the finals of the New York Theatre Festival to be held at Cortland at the end of November. The remainder of the cast of "I'm Really Here" will be made up of Vincent Hars, Ellen Pucci and Mary Fitzsimmons. Both plays are directed by Alan Croce.

UCCC Staffer Pens Story

An illustrated article written by Jim Haviland, Stone Ridge Assistant to the president at Ulster County Community College, has been published in the November issue of After Dark, the national magazine of entertainment.

The piece is about the 1937 destruction of the German airship Hindenburg on which the new disaster movie, "The Hindenburg," is based. In the Universal Pictures film, scheduled to open late this fall, George C. Scott will play a Luftwaffe intelligence officer assigned to protect the dirigible threatened by sabotage.

In the article, Haviland reports that the fiery doom of the dirigible Hindenburg is "One of the most dramatic and best remembered air disasters of all time."

He says that "The Hindenburg" film is in keeping with the growing list of catastrophe films — like "The Poseidon Adventure," "The Towering Inferno," and "Earthquake," "which have captured the interest of the movie-going public — almost fulfilling a need to the time."

A staff member at UCCC since 1966, Haviland has taught courses in Journalism and Technical Writing at the college in addition to performing administrative duties.

In his spare time he has written free-lance articles published in a variety of publications including the New York Times, Family Circle, Retirement Living, NRTA Journal of the National Retired Teachers Association, Hudson Valley Magazine and others.

Haviland earned an A.S. Degree from Champlain College and B.S. and M.S. Degrees from Northwestern University. He has taken additional graduate courses at Columbia University and the State University of New York at Albany.

Woman's Guild Speaker At Nov. 23 Breakfast

Dr. Marion Van Horne, staff member of the Division of Overseas Ministries of the National Council of Churches, will be guest speaker for the Women's Guild of Christian Service breakfast scheduled for November 23. The fifth annual women's event will be held in the Reformed Church of the Comforter, Wynkoop Place, Kingston. The communion service will begin at 7 a.m. and breakfast will be served in the Fellowship Hall.

Dr. Van Horne's topic will be "Reveal Christ Anew."

Dr. Horn spends a large part of each year overseas training writers and assisting publishers and editors in their literature programs. As executive officer of the Committee on Christian Literature for Women and Children, she is actively engaged in working with editors in the production of children's books. The newest project of the committee, "Developmental Literature for Women," is aimed towards helping women in newly developing countries to take their rightful place in society.

General chairman of the program is Miss Beverly Reese. Serving on the committee are Mrs. Harnet Lown, Helen Wood, Mrs. Janet Schrowang, Mrs. Helen Scheffel. Special music for the occasion will be handled by Mrs. Frances Kolts, Mrs. Anita Aird and Mrs. Kay Sours.

The chairman may be contacted for reservations.

Overlook Country Fair

WOODSTOCK
It's billed as A COUNTRY CHURCH MOUSE FAIR. But don't let that keep you away. Each November brings a unique opportunity for the wise shopper seeking the unusual in arts and crafts and on Saturday, Nov. 8, the Country Church Mouse Fair at Overlook United Methodist Church, Woodstock will afford everyone of that chance.

The opportunity will be there for all to decorate their own burrow or choose for friends or family from a wide variety of gifts, all handcrafted by Overlookers.

In addition to handmade craft items such as corn husk dolls and Mexican mobiles, miniature calico wreaths and pine cone Christmas decorations, the Country Church Mouse Fair this year will feature fine plants and delicious baked goods from A to Z (apple pie to zucchini bread.) And that's not all. Talented hands have been busy all year creating knit and crocheted items.

And at Overlook's annual fair there's always an abundance of activity for the small fry as well, keeping them happy while mothers browse — movies, special cookie room where larger-than-life-sized "spice mice" (molded from an original design created especially for this occasion) will await the creative energies of the youngest generation who will surely delight in applying their own icing decorations to the mouse cookies.

Another highlight will be a colorful display of antique and unusual quilts which have been in local families for generations. A special display of this nature has become part of Overlook's Fair tradition.

Many who sampled last year's lunch will certainly remember it and want to come again to enjoy the homemade soup and sandwiches to be served between noon and 1 o'clock.

And, of course, the traditional Overlook tea and cookies will be available throughout the shopping hours from 10 to 3 on Saturday, Nov. 8.

Friends and visitors from far and near will find a warm welcome at Overlook that day.

Elbert Varney is an interested listener as Claire Knickmeyer (L) and Barbara Sullivan show off some of the wide variety of items to be offered at the fair Nov. 8. The two women are co-chairpersons of the event. (Freeman photos.)

PAP Shuffle

The community service program, People as Parents, has undergone a reorganization, according to a report submitted to The Daily Freeman.

by attending a meeting and meeting the staff.

The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.

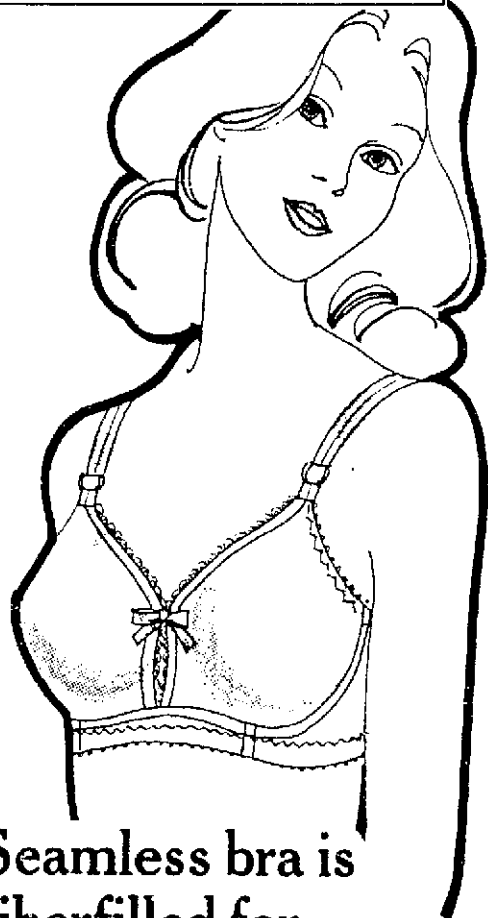

Currently, any interested parent may meet with Dr. Susana Bouquet-Chester, a certified clinical psychologist, at the Parent Workshops held the first and third Thursdays of each month at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Route 212, Woodstock.

A spokesperson for People as Parents said an invitation is out to those interested in improving family communication.

Luscious Lola Resumes Career

Q: Is it true that the ex-Mrs. Dean Martin is going to marry singer Andy Williams?—T.G., Elkhart, Ind.

A: The very popular Jeanne Martin is having the time of life since her divorce. She dates Andy Williams, Stuart Whitman and other eligible bachelors, but isn't serious about any of them.

The Gossip Beat

Q: I just saw "A Little Night Music" in London. Why is it called that?—J.G., Oakville, Calif.

A: The original agreement, giving Hal Prince stage rights to Ingmar Bergman's film, "Smiles of a Summer Night," stipulated that the title could not be used. However, the famed Swedish director recently saw the show and liked it so much that he has waived the restrictive clause — and "Night Music" will become "Summer Night" for the German and Swedish productions.

Q: I see Craig Stevens, who used to be in "Peter Gunn" on television all the time, but I don't see Lola Albright, the beautiful blonde who starred in "Peter Gunn" with him. Has she retired?—J.W., N.Y., N.Y.

A: Not on your life. Luscious Lola was retired briefly while she was married to Bill Chadney. Now that they're divorced, Lola has resumed her career. At this writing she's filming a segment of "McMillan and Wife."

PROGRAM NOTES: CBS's Morley Safer is still working on an hour-long TV documentary on Britain's economic crisis. The show was never scheduled for "Sixty Minutes" and wasn't held up because of pressure from the British government as we said a few weeks ago. In any event, CBS promises a penetrating look at the situation in Britain. Airing is set for some time after the first of the year.

Q: Why can't they make a car for President Ford that would be crash-proof?—R.O., Raleigh, N.C.

A: That seems like a tall order but they might look into a new vehicle being assembled in England for a South American head of state. It is a lozenge-shaped car that looks something like an armored personnel carrier and has the same aluminum skin as a British tank. The window glass is four inches thick and the interior is finished in mink and suede with TV and bar facilities. The $150,000 price tag, however, might not do much to help Ford's anti-inflation image.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why is John Kennedy going to boarding school next year? The main reason is that in some circles it's traditional to send young teenagers off to sleepaway school. If he goes to Hotchkiss, as predicted, he'll be out in the Connecticut countryside at a prep school that even has its own golf course.

WIN AT BRIDGE

West Saves It for South

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South knew that his fourspace call was a slight overbid. When he saw dummy, the overbid became really apparent. There were two sure diamond losers, one probable club loser and an adverse ace of trumps as the clincher against him.

Now it was South's time to think but he solved his problem by playing dummy's jack of clubs to make his impossible game.

Still, while there's life there's hope. South gave no indication that he had any problems at all. He won the heart in his own hand and led a small spade.

West thought a while, nipped up with his ace and led the suit back. South won in dummy, cashed dummy's king of hearts and led the deuce of diamonds. South's 10 lost to West's queen. West decided that South held the king of diamonds and that a club shift was imperative. He led the 10 of that suit.

Hymns to Highlight Concert

CENTRAL VALLEY
A richly varied concert of organ music will be offered at 7:30 Sunday evening, Nov. 9, at the Central Valley United Methodist Church by Wilma Jensen, one of the country's outstanding organists.

Ms. Jensen's program covers a wide range of music composed by great masters of the past four centuries. The music includes compositions from the French and German Baroque, such as a Bach Fugue and three French Noels, and several movements from a Widor Symphony of the great Romantic period.

Contemporary music will be highlighted by traditional American hymn settings composed by Dale Wood, a prominent American church music composer.

Other pieces include the best of such master composers as Marcel Dupre, Jehan Alain, and Norman Dello Joio.

A student of Catharine Crozier, Ms. Jensen was awarded the George Eastman Honorary Certificate in organ at Eastman School of Music. Ms. Jensen is presently on the faculty at Oklahoma School of Music. She is a regularly featured recitalist at National Organ Guild conventions in the United States and Canada. She has performed at the Riverside Church in New York, the National Shrine in Washington, D.C., the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, First Congregational Church in Los Angeles, and Saint Paul's Cathedral in Toronto.

Plan Reformation Service

J. Anthony Hummel Jr., choral director, goes over anthem to be presented by mixed chorus, brass quartet and congregation at the Festival Reformation Service 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 9 at Trinity Lutheran Church. The second annual event is sponsored by the Kingston Lutheran Council. Participating pastors are the Rev. Arne Bendtz (L), St. Paul's the Rev. Alvin Messersmith, host pastor; the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, Redeemer and the Rev. Gary Mehl (R), Immanuel. Adult and children's choirs from the four churches will be performing. (Freeman photo)

Religious Socialism Revived?

Capitalism, a group of American Christians recently declared, is a basic contradiction to the Biblical faith.

In the past, if not unthinkable, such a declaration would have been considered the extremist rhetoric of a small, fringe group with no influence on the churches.

But that is no longer the case. Increasingly, respected church leaders are beginning to question the economic presuppositions of American society in a way unheard of even during the church's heyday of social activism during the civil rights struggle and the antiwar conflict of the 1960's and early 1970's.

Respected magazines like the ecumenical "The Christian Century" and the United Church of Christ's "Journal of Current Social Issues" are raising questions about the American economic system and some writers in those magazines are suggesting the exploration of socialism as alternative that is compatible with the Biblical faith.

Several impulses seem to be at work in the current mood, but the primary one seems to be the very practical problem that the economic system does not seem to be capable of solving the social problems of hunger and poverty on either a domestic or global level.

The group that found a basic contradiction between capitalism and Biblical faith for example, was brought together under the auspices of the National Council of Churches to struggle with the food crisis.

"To end hunger," they concluded, "means to work for radical change in the economic, political and religious values and institutions of this society."

But they are not alone in suggesting radical economic change.

The nation's Roman Catholic bishops, in their pastoral plan of action aimed at the world food crisis, adopted last November, specifically called for modification "of the free market system, especially the impact of large corporations, when it stands in the way of justice."

Another major factor in the increased questioning of established American economic patterns has been the growth of "liberation theology."

Primarily Latin American and Roman Catholic in origin, the theology of liberation is beginning to have its impact on North American religious thought.

A combination of Marxist economic analysis with the ethical vision of the Old and New Testament, the theology presents a vision of Jesus as a liberator of the poor and oppressed from "colonial" industrial capitalism.

While such a vision works in the poor and developing nations, it faces difficulties in the United States where it strait-jackets most Christians into the role of oppressor.

This has led many, who accept some of the basic premises of liberation theology, to begin the task of seeing if there are resources in the American religious and political tradition — some of the ideas of the early 20th century Social Gospel movement, for example — that might provide a framework for the uniquely North American version of the theology that would be true to most church people's experience.

Whether the activists can find the language, exploit the present economic discontent and appeal to the person in the pew with a Biblical message that challenges some of this nation's most cherished beliefs about itself, remains to be seen.

Free Spirit, a group of young musicians in a unique ministry will be appearing at the Free Methodist Church, Thomas and Sheryl Streets, Elmendorf Heights, Nov. 6 at 7 p.m. The program includes familiar hymns, contemporary sacred music, testimony and the CYC gang, Bible puppets for children. The Rev. M. Dwight Sweazy, host pastor invites the public to attend.

On Wood or Fuel

In the rural community, it was often said, if you had your own wood lot, you were as well off as if you had a gas or oil well. Woodlots used to produce the fuel for heating the home, a farm shop and other out-buildings. In addition, the woodlots produced an environment and habitat well suited to wildlife. Cottontail rabbits loved these brush piles and bramble patches as food, shelter, and escape from the fox and birds of prey. Whitetailed deer could always be found in the brush lots, browsing on new growth or hiding in the dense growth of oak saplings that held foliage until late fall and sometimes much of winter. Grouse and woodcock found the open spaces and poplar clumps to their liking, especially along the fertile banks of a small stream or marsh adjacent to the woodlot cutting. It was surprising how fast those woodlots grew back and filled the vacuum nature abhorred. (This was an example of managing and using factors to consider. Fortunately many wood burning units have been designed and installed in homes for complete combustion of wood fuel. Fireplaces have been included as an integral part of many housing developments, due to the urge for an open fire by homeowners and apartment dwellers alike. A well designed fireplace, with a heat converter or regulator, is most efficient and controls help keep warm air from escaping up the flue, once it is not in operation. Fireplaces are a historical part of our past and are a cheerful place to gather the family during Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons. It is not used for heat, but mainly decoration in your home, why not convert it to good use for saving fuel and energy?

In obtaining wood for fuel, keep the following points in mind. A standard cord of wood measures 4'x4'x8' or 128 cubic feet. Other

Easy Way

Spray paints offer an easy, effective way to decorate hundreds of objects in and around the home. Hard-to-paint objects, such as this wicker chair, are a snap to paint with a spray paint, and even an amateur can obtain professional-looking results with a minimum of effort. Spray paint manufacturers, concerned about a controversial theory that the propellants used by some spray products may be damaging, not that approximately 95 percent of the spray paints on the market today use hydrocarbon propellants, which are not suspected of harming the ozone layer.

Modern Tri-Level Home

By Chuck Gaudet

PROVIDENCE, R.I. The trend towards tri-level homes is a well deserved tribute to a method of house construction that for too long has been prevented from proving its great value. A fine example of just how valuable, is contained in today's feature by Architects Home design in a plan called the "Toledo."

In the past it was almost a tradition that such a design could be used on a plot of land only with changing and irregular elevations to compensate for its various levels. But thanks to modern thinking, the tri-level has become readily adaptable to most any given site — and in many cases more suitable than some other designs.

In the "Toledo," the architects have done a masterful job of layout. They particularly used rare imagination in the design of the levels given over to the main quarters. An expansive living room, richly enhanced by a large awning-type picture window and side-wall fireplace, flows into a formal dining area with just the right amount of separation between the two rooms to retain the theme of open planning. The three bedrooms have good wardrobe space and there are three additional closets in the hall area.

Masterful Job Of Layout

The level on grade at the left side contains a one car garage and family room with additional stairs to the full basement below the living room.

The outside at the front is finished with a combination of white cedar shingles left natural and inverted board and batten over, and stone or brick around the living room picture window. Sides and rear used painted or natural wood shingles. The size of the "Toledo" plan is 48 by 26 feet and contains 1,228 square feet through the main levels.

Complete working blueprints (Plans) are available to readers at the moderate cost of $35 for the first set and $12 for each additional set by writing to the Associated Blueprint Co., 595 Plainfield Street, Providence, R.I., 02909. Plan booklets are also available for 50 cents each and a new popular book of past newspaper features for $1.25.

By William H. Palmer

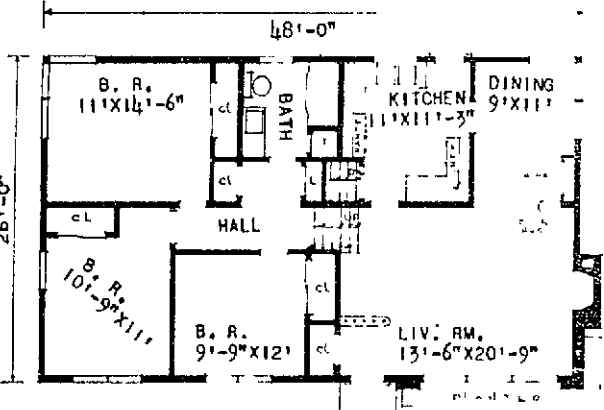

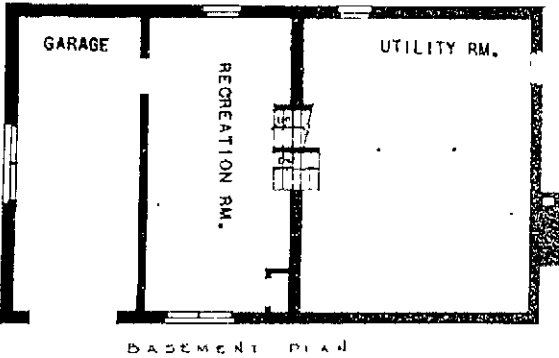

a renewable resource to advantage and not wasting it.)

Since the turn of the last century there has been a steady decline in the use of wood for fuel because of the easily obtained and more convenient substitutes as coal, oil, gas and electricity. These substitutes are commonly used today in heating both the rural and urban home. However, if you live in the country and own a woodlot, you should consider some of the advantages of wood as a fuel in heating at least a part of your establishment. Hunting camps and hide-away lodges still use wood in many cases for cooking, heating and the romance of a cheery open fire in the living rooms.

By using wood to help heat your home or camp this winter, you may save some money, if the wood can be obtained readily and be prepared for use with a minimum of handling. A properly designed heater or furnace used in conjunction with a well designed interior chimney are important units sold as "face cord" or "fireplace cord" are not standard and sometimes are misleading. A standard cord of well-seasoned, (six to ten months) wood from such species as beech, hickory, maple or oak produce as much heat as 200 gallons of fuel oil. Other wood may be less efficient but possesses other properties worth considering — stated another way —

Beechwood fires are bright and clear if the logs are kept a year. Chestnut's only good, they say, is for long its laid away. Birch and fir logs burn too fast, blaze up bright and do not last. Elm wood burns like a churchyard mould; E'en the very flames are cold. Poplar gives a bitter smoke, Fills your eyes and makes you choke. Apple wood will scent your room, with the incense like perfume. Oak and maple, if dry and old, Keep away the winter cold. But ash wood wet and ash wood dry, A King shall warm his slippers by. —Anon.

Pure Line

As with any "crop" new lawn-grass varieties are generally honed to a high degree of uniformity and perfection. Such is the case with two outstanding bentgrass from the University of Rhode Island, EXETER (a colonial type) and KINGSTON (a velvet type). With sexually crossing grasses, a pure line is typically created by roguing "off-types" from repeated generations grown in isolation.

In Kitchen—Watts Up?

The rising costs of electricity and the increasing scarcity of natural resources needed to produce it make it important that we conserve electricity at home. Small economies, such as turning off lights when leaving a room, add up to savings in energy and money.

Thoughtful use of your kitchen appliances can reduce both your energy consumption and electric bill, according to the Metal Cookware Manufacturers Association.

Utility companies measure and sell you electric power by a unit called a kilowatt hour. To determine how many kilowatt hours you use for any given household appliance, multiply the exact wattage of the appliance by the number of hours you use it. You can figure the time according to the day, month, or year, as you wish. Divide the result by 100 (a kilowatt equals 100 watts) and the result is kilowatt hours.

Electric ovens, for example, are most efficient when filled to capacity. But if you are heating a few dinner rolls, an electric skillet or bun warmer will use energy more efficiently than the electric oven. The latter has larger heating units to accommodate a bigger cooking area. So more electricity is required.

Generally, small portable appliances can perform cooking chores using less energy than your electric range. Appliances such as electric skillets and slowcookers can double at the table as serving dishes — that means fewer dishes to wash, saving water and the electricity needed to heat it.

Most beginners can handle simple repairs on an old trunk like this flattop. Leave major restoration for experts.

Restore Old Trunk With Tender Care

By Jean Barnes
(First of two columns)

"Refinishing a trunk is hard work," declared Fran Thompson. She and Carol Gawthrop owned and operated Treasure Trunks for more than seven years, specializing in restoring and refinishing a wide variety of these nostalgia-laden relics.

When asked, they eagerly consented to share their knowledge and the fruits of their experience with Today's Treasures readers. And, even though it is hard work they both agree that a beginner can do a creditable job by exercising care and patience.

"Be sure you start with a trunk that is in good condition" was their first bit of advice. "Leave the restoration to the expert. Don't try to replace a bottom or missing tin."

Each part of the exterior must be handled separately, they said.

The first step is to remove the handles. Be sure and keep the handles and the hardware in a safe place so you will have them when the time comes to put them back on.

Tighten any loose hardware — hinges, lock, strap guides. If hardware or ornaments are missing from the front or sides, they may be replaced with identical pieces from the back of the trunk where it won't be seen when set against a wall.

Most large trunks are either tin or canvas-covered. If tin, nail down any loose edges or corners. Clean with a wire brush to remove loose paint and rust. Don't try to replace worn or torn canvas. Instead, our experts recommend that you use a single edge razor blade to cut away the canvas. Cut closely along the edge of the wooden or metal slats. There will be wood underneath the canvas which can then be refinished or antiqued.

"Don't remove the slats (the strips of wood or metal reinforcement) or you're liable to have the whole trunk fall apart," they warned. If the slats have been painted strip the paint and sand until smooth.

Now you're ready to tackle the inside. To clean the interior and get rid of the musty odor most trunks have, you will have to scrape off all the old paper, they explained. This involved more than tearing off what's loose. You will have to use a paint scraper and take it down to the bare wood.

A combination of vinegar and hot water usually will cut the glue under the paper and also helps to dispel the odor. When the interior is clean, set the trunk with lid open to air in the sun. This should get rid of the last vestiges of mustiness.

In the next Today's Treasures column, the specialists will talk about refinishing and lining trunks.

84-Year-Old Thinks It's Never Too Late

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 84 and my wife is 77. We've been married for six years. It's the second marriage for both of us. First, let me tell you that we're both in excellent health.

My problem is my wife. She makes me feel like a dirty old man every time I approach her for sex. She keeps saying, "We're too old for that stuff. You're a sex maniac and ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Abby, my first wife and I were married over 40 years and we enjoyed a fulfilling, active sexual relationship right up until the time she died. She was in her 70s.

At what age are people supposed to quit having sexual relations?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: There is no reason why normal, healthy people should not be sexually active as long as they live.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a military man for 12 years. I started snooping through his things when he was home last and found some love letters from three different women. One lives in the Canal Zone, one lives in Virginia and the other lives in Florida.

All three women are under the impression that he is married but separated from me, which is a lie.

Their letters contain some sickening descriptions of their sexual encounters. The woman in the Canal Zone keeps ARIES (March 21-April 19) This should be a fun, active day, but if the festivities spill over into the evening you're likely to run out of steam early.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be sure to consider your mate's wishes today when making plans. If you're not in accord, friction will result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have buyer's remorse about anything you buy impulsively today. Think before plunking your cash down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Concentrate on having a good time today. Dismiss financial and business thoughts for the time being. They can be attended to later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Toward evening you'll lack patience with those who do not jump immediately to your commands. Be careful or you'll stir something up at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're going to do any traveling today, check connections and accommodations well in advance. Something could get fouled up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't make any deals with a friend at this time who wants a piece of the action for helping. Wait till he produces, then talk terms.

The ABCs on Sweet Sorghum

Is the high cost of maintaining a sweet tooth getting you down? Well, you might take kindly to sorghum molasses. It's an easy-to-process, healthful food — rich in iron, sulfur, and other minerals — which can replace sugar or honey in many recipes as a delicate sweetener.

Although sorghum is traditionally a southern specialty, it will grow anywhere corn flourishes, and only a quarter of an acre — plus a little patience — will supply your family with 10 to 15 gallons of good molasses.

The seed (you'll need 5 to 10 pounds per acre) is available from many farm supply stores. Just be sure to ask for molasses — not silage — or sorghum. The seeds can probably go into the ground any time from late May through the end of June.

When the seed plumes begin to appear on the topmost shoots in the fall, cut a stalk near the ground, peel off the hard outer skin, and chew the inner pith which contains the pale green juice. Is the flavor fairly sweet? Good! It's time to begin your harvest.

Take a knife (or two strong hands) and strip the leaves from the stalks as they stand in the field. Then cut the stems close to the ground, remove and save the seed clusters (good, ground or whole, for livestock or poultry feed), and haul the canes to the grinding mill.

The grinding doesn't have to be done at once, but it is essential to use sorghum before the first real cold snap, since rainfall after a frost will cause the juices to ferment.

You might be able to borrow a cane mill from a neighbor or find one advertised for sale in this newspaper. Or, small amounts of sorghum can be processed by putting the stalks through a shredder-grinder and squeezing out the juice in a cider press.

Mother Earth News

For each 8 gallons of juice you extract, you'll wind up with 1 gallon of molasses — once you've boiled it down in an evaporator. If you can't find such a container for sale, you can make your own. Simply obtain a piece of sheet metal 3 to 4 feet by 8 feet and bend up the two ends to a height of 6 inches. (Remember: galvanized metal is an undesirable container for food — especially food which is heated — because of possible contamination from its zinc coating.)

Cut two 1x6 boards — it's best not to use a resinous wood such as pine, which might add an "off" flavor to the molasses — to fit exactly between the tray's turned-up ends. Then attach the metal to the wooden sides with small roofing nails.

ADVICE FOR OUR READERS

Dr. Lamb:

Illness, Alcohol

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: — My husband is 63, weighs about 100 pounds and is 5-feet-7. He drinks beer 365 evenings a year and eats very little. He has diarrhea periodically every day and night. I tell him he has no solid food in him to stop his diarrhea and his food gushes straight through his system. How much longer can he live this way?

DEAR READER — Diarrhea can be caused by excess, persistent use of alcohol. A large number of medical illnesses and disorders are actually caused by alcohol. The cause of the problem may go unrecognized, because the patient doesn't think his or her alcohol habit is important. And sometimes the doctor is not as alert to the wide spectrum of problems alcohol can cause. You might be interested in reading more about the effects of alcohol on the body. Just address your request to me in care of The Freeman, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer.

Many people do not realize that a daily intake of alcohol, short of being stoned, is part of alcoholism. I am talking about the person who drinks four to six cocktails or beers a day. He will not be identified as an alcoholic, but his performance and his health may be seriously affected.

Diarrhea in some people, from such levels of daily intake of alcohol, is not just because of the liquid diet, far from it. Liquid is absorbed and eliminated through the kidneys. The diarrhea is caused by the toxic action of alcohol itself on the digestive tract.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In several of your articles you mention avoiding permanent nerve damage. I would like to know what occurs with permanent damage, beyond not having any feeling in a given area.

My left thumb is numb and has been for two years. The top of my right foot has been numb for three years. I have had surgery twice on my back. To what extent can this get worse?

DEAR READER — Since you don't state why you had back surgery I can't really tell you what to expect. However, I can tell you about nerve damage.

The brain and spinal cord are called the central nervous system, and once you destroy a nerve cell here it won't work again or be replaced. You can have swelling and minor injuries that heal, but you can't regenerate the cells.

Your Astrographs for Today and Monday

Your Birthday

November 2, 1975

This coming year you will be able to bring off situations you had difficulty getting off the ground in the past. The lessons you've learned have prepared you for success.

For Monday, Nov. 3, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in your business affairs today. Matters could suddenly take an unusual turn. You might be caught off-guard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Agreements you enter into today should be screened very thoroughly. Be sure even the smallest clause is spelled out clearly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're very inventive today. You'll come up with a better method for doing a repetitious task that tied you down previously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be fortunate only with carefully calculated risks. Should you press your luck too far it won't stand the strain.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An unusual day for you, one of endings and beginnings. Something from the past will be terminated as your interests shift to something new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Weigh your words very wisely today or you might blurt out something that shouldn't be divulged now. Think before speaking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are unique for you materially. Gains could come from two least expected sources. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be both bold and clever in handling situations affecting you today. The results will be gratifying, yet your tactics will surprise others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your best ideas will come to you today if you're off somewhere alone where there's peace and quiet. Jot them down for later use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An interesting new acquaintance will suddenly enter your life. This person will be introduced to you by an old friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll not be deprived at this time of rewards rightfully due you. Just be patient. Let events run their course.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success is yours today if you add a new twist to something you've recently learned from an unusual experience.

Your Birthday

November 3, 1975

The coming year has some pleasant surprises in store. Your routines will be disrupted occasionally. Though you may complain at the time, you'll like the end result.

High School Students on Stage for Festival

STONE RIDGE Mid-Hudson area students were on stage last weekend participating in the Second Annual High School Theater Festival at Ulster County Community College.

The highly successful workshop sessions featured acting, make-up, stage managing, directing and mime under the direction of theater professionals.

Internationally known professional mime, Jon Harvey (L) limbers before illustrating significant gestures for class (R).

The chorus line (C) rehearsed prior to student productions which highlighted the two-day event, sponsored by the Department of Speech and Theater at the college's Stone Ridge campus.

part from 12 area high schools. Kingston High School drama students presented some scenes from their production of The Crucible while UCCC reciprocated with its production of The Devil's Disciple.

In addition to Harvey, professionals on tap were Bob Kelly, one of the leading producers of theater make-up in the nation and Phil Meister, director of the National Shakespeare Company.

High schools taking part in addition to KHS were Coleman, Ulster Academy, Rondout Valley, Ellenville, Ontario, Saugerties and New Paltz, all in Ulster County.

Safety Contest Applicants Sought

NEW YORK

Students throughout New York State are being asked to devote their artistic talents to highway safety by entering the American Automobile Association's 32nd National School Traffic Safety Poster Contest.

According to the Automobile Club of New York, the youngsters will be competing for nearly $10,000 in prizes to be awarded for artistic merit and originality of posters on twenty safety themes. The themes are assigned according to region and grade level throughout the United States.

Two grand awards of $500 Savings Bonds, intended as one-year art school scholarships, will be presented for the best posters in the primary, elementary, junior and senior high school grades. One hundred and forty other awards for prize winning entries will range from $100 to $25.

This year, students in grades 1 through 6 have been assigned the themes, Cross Only at Corners and Wear White After Dark. Upper grade students have been assigned, Cyclists—Watch for Roadway Hazards and Expect the Unexpected.

Conducted in cooperation with local school officials, the contest is open to students attending public, parochial or private elementary or secondary schools who have not reached their 21st birthday by the deadline date, February 20, 1976. School groups or classes may submit combined entries.

Ten first-place posters will be reproduced and distributed to elementary and junior high schools throughout the country as part of AAA's year-round program of school traffic safety education. More than twenty-five million reproductions of the winning posters are distributed annually.

Last year's competition drew more than 2,000 entries and produced over 100 prize winners from the metropolitan area.

The contest has the approval of the National Association of Secondary School Principals of the National Education Association.

November Offerings for Teens

KINGSTON

The YWCA continues its exciting new program for teens with special offerings this month.

In the dance department both Modern Jazz Dance and African Dance Rhythm classes will be starting in November.

Modern Jazz classes taught by Liz Orwig will start Nov. 4 and continue for six Tuesdays 4 to 5:30 p.m. The instructor has had extensive experience in dance teaching and performance.

African Dance, open to both adults and teens will start Nov. 6 at the Brigham School. Instructor will be Vicki Bales, a State University College at New Paltz student who is currently performing in two plays, and teaching dance at the college. Most sessions of the African Dance group will have live accompaniment.

Several trips are scheduled to the New Paltz Campus. The first will be on Friday, Nov. 7 to see the play, A Lost and Forgotten Society. On Nov. 21, there will be a trip to the college to see Gypsy, the award winning musical fable about the life and times of Gypsy Rose Lee.

A special field trip to see the Center for Living Force Dance Company in rehearsal is planned for Nov. 14. Anyone interested in meeting the dancers and talking with them in a behind-the-scenes atmosphere may participate.

The film, JT, will be shown to youngsters seven to 12 at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, Saturday, Nov. 15. It is the story of a shy, lonely Harlem child whose only friend is a one-eyed alley cat named Bones. As part of the new program, the Y will offer a monthly Saturday morning film for youngsters.

Further information about these and other programs for teens may be obtained by contacting Ginger Licopoli, teen director at the YWCA.

Youth in the News

College careers began for a number of area young people with the start of the fall semester and Youth in the News is still receiving reports enrollments on campuses near and far.

Richard C. Gross of 9 Fieldstone Road, West Hurley had a personal welcome to Northeastern University, Boston, Mass., from Dean Philip McCabe at the opening of fall quarter classes there. A freshman, Gross is majoring in electrical engineering.

Cadet Charles S. Lewis, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lewis of Orchard Place, Tillson, recently entered his freshman year at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

He has begun four years of academic study and military training that will lead to a Bachelor of Science Degree and a commission as a second lieutenant.

A 1975 graduate of Kingston High School, Cadet Lewis received a congressional appointment to the academy.

Twelve students from Ulster County and one from Northern Dutchess are among the largest group of new students in the history of Clarkson College of Technology.

County enrollees include

Not everyone stops to flip through those bins of records that many stores sell for under three dollars—usually only those who are quite thrifty. Or pretty cheap, depending on whether you're talking to their friends or their enemies. Those who do shop the bins generally save a lot of money, though—and they assemble fascinating record collections.

The bargain bins, which may offer albums at as little as 59 cents, are generally full of a rich variety of records ranging from "Percy Faith Plays Great Hawaiian Movie Themes" to original Fats Domino albums, still in their cellophane sleeves. Some of the best picks can be found in the used record bins. Most of these used records appear to have been played by a blunt ice skate at some time in their career. Our "Free-Wheelin' Bob Dylan" album looks like it was sand-paped. It also includes among its twelve cuts, the original "Don't Think Twice, It's All Right," and "Blowin' in the Wind." It's a real collector's item, if you know anyone who collects sand-paped classic folk songs.

The bargain record bins are also the final resting place for many pirated discs and reissues of old recordings by artists who have since become famous. Also for what looks like half the country-western record production for any given year. And for disks by well-known artists who broke up or cooled off, leaving behind an inventory of unsold records. Also, perhaps most sadly, it is the last stop in the hopes of a most recorded artists who never made it onto the charts. Among the categories, there's a lot of good listening.

It was in a department store closeout that we found a Sun Record reissue of Johnny Cash's Sun recordings for a dollar. They sound awful. That's the whole point. There's a version of "Folsom Prison Blues" on it that sure isn't the one that made the charts, but it's the original, unpunished sound of Johnny Cash and the Tennessee Three back when Luther Perkins was with him and June Carter wasn't. The songs got power. And no applause track.

We found The Mamas and Papas and the Lovin' Spoonful and Ravi Shankar at the dime store. Nobody's been buying them much in the last few years. Every time we hear Mama Cass Elliott do "Monday, Monday," we remember it was on a Monday that she died. John Phillips and John Sebastian and Ravi Shankar contributed a lot to the music that's selling big right now, and they sound good all over again.

We found Tiny Tim at a rummage sale for a quarter. It was worth more than that to relieve that insane moment in which the sinister Viper hisses to his victim why he has arrived—"I have come to vibrate windows!" There is the stirring and grimly humorous "Stay Down Where You Belong," that should have dispelled for all time the image of Tiny Tim as a twittering ninny. Unfortunately, not many people bought the album.

Not many people even know that Peter Sarstedt made an album. He made at least two of them that we found in a dusty box in a small, mellow store over in Rosendale. We got them both for the price of one because of the scratches. Peter Sarstedt writes and sings fine, ironic songs with lush melodies and rich orchestral backgrounds. Songs that have lyrics that twist and match and flicker like a ballet of cobras. We wonder what he's doing now. Drinking, and working in a factory somewhere in England probably—and hopefully still writing songs. Perhaps songs that voices will never sing. And that reminds us of the Simon and Garfunkle record that we bought at the drug store....

And Melanie and James Taylor and Edgar Winter at the record department close out.... Somebody threw out the Rolling Stone's "Aftermath" album.... And the lady at the secondhand store who sold us Ray Charles and Aker Bilk had never heard of either of them. "Are they any good?" she kept asking....

And that hot new release that's going for six bucks at the record store? We heard it, it's great. But wait and see how good it will sound five years from now for fifty cents!

The Who: The Who By Numbers (MCA-2161).

The Who By Numbers is billed as a return to simplicity and the basic values of rock on the part of the group which popularized rock opera. But, although the synthesizer which dominated Who's Next, Quadrophenia and the soundtrack to Ken Russell's Tommy has been discarded here in favor of basic guitar-bass drums tracks, The Who By Numbers is both as complicated and as conceptual as either of composer Peter Townshend's operas. It does not have the continuity offered by the operas, of course, but that just means the listener has to work proportionately harder to get the point.

Even the musical simplicity of this album is deceptive. The increased use of acoustic guitar is the most immediately noticeable difference between this and other Who records. Townshend also features ukulele and banjo on a single song each, and in the background of "Blue, Red and Grey," the prettiest, most understated song The Who have done recently, muted French horns add depth. Much of the rest is patented Who guitar-and-drum explosiveness, but recorded with more restraint and played more conventionally than this unorthodox group has managed previously.

The best songs on The Who By Numbers ("However Much I Boogie," "They Are All in Love," "How Many Friends") combine the eloquence and power of the Who's Next period with newfound grace. This has always been a most inelegant band—they've learned while playing, and it has showed—but now, they seem almost like normal musicians, without losing the amateurish zest which made them fascinating in the first place. If there is a problem, it is that Peter Townshend's vocals have become so much richer and more spirited than lead singer Roger Daltrey's. Townshend's vocal on "They Are All in Love" is the best on the record.

As for the concept, it is concerned with the nature of rock, the nature of aging, and the nature of stardom. All of these have been Who themes from the beginning ("Hope I die before I get old," Daltrey sang in "My Generation") but I don't think they've ever been expressed so cogently and lucidly. There was something about rock opera which diverted attention from substance to form. Here, where the group has spent so much time pretending to be anti-conceptual, the themes come through in their own time, naturally rather than artificially. Because the music is so vast—you can't take this record in one or two listenings—the lyrics give it renewed depth; as they become clear, it becomes ever more obvious that The Who, always practical jokers, have now pulled the fastest one of all. The work they've sold as trivia is actually one of genius and importance.

Gala Homecoming Weekend Planned

Kingston High School's Homecoming Committee goes over final plans for next weekend. Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor

On my way to getting tossed off the Cincinnati Reds bench before the first game of the 1975 World Series at Fenway Park, I was able to renew acquaintances with George (Sugar) Scherger, the first base coach of the Reds.

Our relationship goes back to 1947, when Scherger managed the first minor league baseball team in the city's history — the Kingston Dodgers — to a pennant in the newlyformed Class D North Atlantic League.

One of Scherger's top operators on that 1947 team was a tremendous young third baseman — Walter Kowalski, who now resides in Red Hook and is employed at IBM Kingston. In that first season, Kowalski was strictly Golden Glove, batted .318 and led the league with 23 triples.

There were no fences at Dietz Stadium in those days like there were for later minor league franchises and many of Kowalski's blasts up the alleys would have been homers in other ball parks.

"Walt was one of the finest players I ever handled in the minor leagues," said Scherger before the Fenway Park bulls escorted me out of the dugout. "He could hit, field, run and throw. He had everything to be a big leaguer but you and I know the rest of the story."

The story was this: In Kowalski's time (1947) there was no rule requiring major leagues to advance minor league prospects up to the major league roster after five years or put them on the open market.

Those were the days of baseball bondage when big league clubs could "burry" good talent in the minors for years rather than sell them to opposition teams.

In Kowalski's case, the Dodgers had Spider Jorgensen at third and he was followed by the Billie Cox, one of the Boys of Summer. Where was Kowalski going to play? He refused to be converted into an outfielder.

Scherger toiled for 20 years in the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodger chain after leaving Kingston, advancing as high as Calcs A.

How Scherger quit the Dodger chain and joined the Cincinnati Reds organization is an interesting story in itself and reveals the kind of stuff Sparky Anderson is made of. As you may have gathered during the series, he is one of the true humanitarians in baseball.

"Anderson played under Scherger at Santa Barbara in 1953," says Kowalski. "They struck up a warm friendship and one day Anderson told his manager: if I ever make the major leagues as a manager, you'll be one of my coaches."

Sparky didn't forget the promise — he never does — and one day several years later, Scherger picked up the phone in his Charlotte, N.C., home. Sparky Anderson was on the other end.

"I've just been named manager of the Reds, George. You'll be one of my coaches." Just like that George Scherger moved into the big time.

We asked Scherger about some of the boys on that 1947 squad. Wiley Williams, the slugging first baseman, Chris Kitsos and a few others.

"None of them really went too far," he recalled. "Chris Kitsos (shortstop) did get up to the Chicago Cubs for a cup of coffee (one AB in 1954) Carl Sawatski of Pennsylvania and Walt were probably the two best players in the league."

Sawatski, the home run king of the North Atlantic League, moved up to the Chicago Cubs in 1948 and played with four other clubs — White Sox, Milwaukee Braves, Phillies and Cardinals — in 11 years. He hit 58 home runs, with a high of 13 for the Cards in 1963.

The Reds' press guide shows that Scherger was born Nov. 20, 1920 in Dickinson, N.D. and has been in baseball since 1947. At 56, he's certainly not too old to manage in the bigs.

Does he have designs on the Reds' managerial job when and if Sparky Anderson departs? "No," he replies. "I'm very happy as coach for Sparky. I was his first manager in pro ball in Santa Barbara in 1953 and we've been friends every since."

"Furthermore," he quipped. "I think Sparky's going to be here forever." ***

Never underestimate Fred Davi's power in the baseball world. Who else but Fred could have persuaded Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the Baseball Writers Association of America to allow Lou DeCicco, our city clerk, to sit in the working press box and tread the Fenway sod for pre-game practice in the sixth game of the World Series?

That was a splendid gesture on the part of three area golf clubs — Twaalfskill, Wiltwyck and Woodstock — to present Alex Gerlak with an honorary life membership at his retirement party at Holiday Inn. He leaves his Twaalfskill post after 28 years at the end of the 1975 season and will be succeeded by George Hughes, the club's all-time amateur great.

During the hijinks of the speaking program, Bill Gressick, the Northeastern New York PGA secretary-treasurer, pulled off a nifty.

"Alex was some kind of player for a guy who admits he never could putt," said Gressick. That was half fact and half fiction, of course. Nobody could even have achieved Gerlak's fantastic Northeastern PGA record and 10 trips to the PGA and five to U.S. Open without getting the ball in the hole once in a while.

One Northeastern veteran, who was always amused by the Gerlak putting legend snorted, "Yeh, Alex missed putts . . . but for birdies and eagles."

The legend about Gerlak's putting has been as carefully nurtured through the years, as the picture of Yogi Berra as a good natured, amiable dumkopf in baseball.

In between creating all those malaprops and jokes attributed to him, all Yogi Berra did was hit 358 major league home runs and play on a zillion World Series teams with the New York Yankees. And became a millionaire.

Alex Gerlak may have missed a putt here and there along the way, but, as Bill Gressick put it, "he was an inspiration to every golfer who came in contact with him. He was true to the PGA Code of Ethics."

There is no Northeastern New York PGA Hall of Fame. If there were, Alex Gerlak would be the No. 1 inductee.

Pine Bush Rolls Over New Paltz, 48-14

By Tim Schuster

NEW PALTZ

Gathering momentum as Saturday's game progressed against New Paltz High, the hard-hitting Pine Bush football varsity amassed seven touchdowns of every description to crush the Hugies, 48-14.

Said winning coach John Shaughnessy after his club swept to its sixth consecutive victory, "I guess I lost my sleep last night for nothing." The coach thought he might have had difficulty getting the team up after last week's impressive win over Highland, but if the players had been any higher they couldn't have touched ground.

The Bushmen, now 6-2, continue to bulldog 6-1 Roundout Valley. The showdown between these offensive and defensive UCL powerhouses is scheduled for next Saturday at Pine Bush. New Paltz, now 3-3-1, has been knocked from the league pennant race.

Of obvious help in bolstering an already talented backfield was Wayne Shurter, who had been out with injuries. He paced Pine Bush scoring with three touchdowns — one 80 yard pass play, one 80 yard run and one 20 yard interception return.

Instead of playing end, his former position, Shurter replaced Dave Hillriegel late in the second quarter at fullback after the heavy duty runner became ill. No matter; Hillriegel had set up one touchdown and scored another running straight ahead like an express train.

And slight and speedy half-back Dave Kirby added two TDS on almost identical off tackle runs, timing his cuts to take advantage of some outstanding blocking by tackles Ned Roebuck and Vic LaMonica.

Shaughnessy didn't need a passing game against New Paltz (QB Mark Warren was two for two — both touchdowns) but commented, "We have several patterns we've been working on."

Pine Bush capped a 71 yard drive with a 16 yard end run by Kirby to kick things off, and followed with a Hillriegel one yard scoring plunge after the hefty fullback's 72 yard run to make it 14-0 at the first stop.

Tom Merone went six for seven on conversion kicks in the wind, missing his fifth try that was blocked by Hugie guard Mike Davis. New Paltz tightened up on an eight yard TD pass from Mike Beck to halfback Bob Scavuzzo crossfield in the end zone and a pitchout to John Savago failed.

From this point, with the score 14-6, Pine Bush rolled up the score to 41-6 by the end of the third period.

Several were shockers. Shurter took a Warren pass to the right sideline from his own 20 yard line and outlegged defenders 80 yards to score, giving the halftime score of 21-6.

If the Hugies were not out of it then, they were several minutes into the third quarter. A fumble recovery by Steve Magetich of Pine Bush on the New Paltz 42 culminated several plays later in a TD pass to end Richard Mommeler from the ten, who was standing still all alone.

Then New Paltz, taking a kickoff from its own 15, was intercepted by Shurter at the 20 and he ran untouched into the end zone, making it 34-6. The Bushmen took the ball from the New Paltz 38 shortly thereafter and Dave Kirby scored off right tackle from the 15. There was still more than three minutes left in the quarter.

New Paltz scored on the fourth period first play as 5-8 halfback John Savago ran 49 yards to the end zone, and then took Beck's conversion pass to make it 41-14.

But the joy was promptly cancelled when Shurter, on the first play from scrimmage, raced 80 yards down the left sideline for the capper.

While the Pine Bush offensive unit's work was prodigious, there was no denying the effect of constant defensive pressure on New Paltz quarterback Mike Beck, who launched several desperation heaves before getting sacked.

Coch Shaughnessy felt that while Wallkill was very good, he thought Liberty was the toughest team his club has faced — thus far. New Paltz concludes its season hosting Marlboro next Saturday.

Red Hook Stops OCS, 13-0

By Charles J. Tiano

RED HOOK

Rising tempers replaced the chill winds that swept across the field most of the day Saturday, but in the end it was a merciful clock that terminated what might have been a bad scene, as Red Hook kept alive its Ulster County Athletic League pennant hopes with a decisive 13-0 victory over OCS.

There was never any doubt about Red Hook's superiority. Led by the brilliant running of Tim Moul, a 145-pound senior scatback, the Raiders dominated the game from start to finish.

Moul, who has been something of a disappointment to Raider rooters, scored both touchdowns and racked up 107 yards in 19 carries in one of the best individual performances of the season against the Indians.

A blocked punt by John Ljutich on the OCS eight in the second quarter set the stage for Moul's first touchdown on the first play from scrimmage. In the fourth quarter two costly 15-yard penalties helped the Raiders in a 48-yard touchdown drive, with Moul going the last 18 after being seemingly stopped at the line of scrimmage.

Red Hook's superiority was not lost on Coach John Meehan of OCS. He gave full credit to Moul and the Raiders, declining to second guess the officials on what seemed like two fast whistles during Red Hook's second touchdown drive.

"Moul did us in," said Coach Meehan. "We were outplayed and Red Hook impressed me more than any other team we have faced this season. We didn't tackle too well. We'll now have to get ready for the finale with Liberty and close out the season with a win."

On the two 15 yard penalties, Meehan said, "I thought the game was getting out of hand near the end but all the penalties on both sides were deserved."

Red Hook's powerful defense contained Fran Castaldo's inside thrusts, harried quarterback Ben Hill so doggedly that he was able to complete only one of 14 passes for 8 yards. The Raiders rolled to 241 yards on the ground against 76 for OCS.

Castaldo collapsed during the fourth quarter but revived quickly and moved off the field under his own power. He had been hit hard on the previous play. "He's okay," said Coach Meehan.

OCS recovered a Red Hook fumble on the Raiders' 29 on the opening kickoff but failed to capitalize. The Indians' futility was apparent in the third quarter when they had three shots to make one yard for a first down and failed. Their deepest penetration was via a fumble recovery on the Red Hook 19 in the second quarter. Two plays later the Raiders recovered a fumble on their own 15.

With 5:27 left to play, Red Hook started from the OCS 48 for its second TD. After a 2-yard loss, a 15-yard personal foul penalty shoved OCS to its own 33. Two plays later another personal foul gave Red Hook the ball on the 18 and Moul did the rest.

Red Hook was penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct on the extra point attempt but Barry Reddick split the uprights from 27 yards out to convert.

Tempers exploded all over the field in the closing minutes of the game ended with Red Hook incurring two successive 15-yard penalties and being pushed back to their own one as the game ended. One call was against Coach John Nielsen for rushing out on the field to protest the previous 15-yard call.

One Raider was banished from the game for unsportsmanlike conduct and things were getting ugly in the waning minutes. Thank God for the clock.

Wallkill Romps, 36-6

WALLKILL

Wallkill High's slumbering offense woke up Saturday, and that combined with a defense that shut off Liberty's wishbone in the second half enabled the Panthers to keep their UCL hopes alive with a 36-6 triumph.

The Redskins kicked off to start the second half and had to take it while the Panthers stuffed the ball down their throats. George Thomas cracked in from the one for his first TD of the day and a 13-6 Wallkill lead, then coach Jerry Trezza had Thomas run the conversion.

"We thought it was going to be one of those seesaw things," Trezza said explaining why he declined the services of automatic PAT kicker Greg Palen. "We thought we'd need all the points we could get."

But it didn't work out that way. The Liberty wishbone, an attack that had moved the ball in the first half and fought to a one point 7-6 deficit, stalled against the Panthers' revamped offense.

A Liberty fumble then a 64 yard scoring bomb from Harry Collier to Dennis Lloyd eased the winners into a comfortable lead. More turnovers led to two more Wallkill scores in the fourth period as Thomas and Collier each ran additional six-pointers.

Liberty elected to kick off to start the game on the windy field, but that strategy backfired as Wallkill matched 69 yards in 17 plays Collier took it in on a sneak, and Palen booted the conversion.

Liberty swept back up the field with Tom Nolan capping a 65 yard drive with a three yard run. The Redskins continued to threaten in the second period, but the threats ceased when Wallkill defensive backs Roger Brooks and Bob Lee started attacking the Redskins runners in the third quarter.

Dan Inkel set up the second

Panther score with a long kick runback and grabbed an interception that led to the fourth TD.

Senators Win, 2-0

Ulster Boots Kingsborough

BROOKLYN The Ulster County Community College soccer team polished its credentials for a high seeding in the Region XV tournament by whipping host Kingsborough Community 2-0, Saturday.

Not particularly big or talented team, Kingsborough was unable to keep the sluggish Senators out of the net in either half. Segundo Zapater booted a goal early in the game, and George Vassilaras boosted the count at 26:45 of the second half to provide the margin of victory. Goalie Leo Lynch kept things secure with his second shutout of the season.

"The spark was missing," said UCCC coach George Vizvary. "They had kind of a low pressure defense, but we didn't really break through it."

Ulster still had enough of its game together to stay out of danger. Zapater's goal, which came off a free kick play started by Aldo Sergovic, gave the Senators a lead at 2:28. Sergovic went on to turn in an excellent effort at fullback that helped blunt any attack by the losers.

Vassilaras, who has hustled his way to becoming a big part of the UCCC front line, saw his efforts pay off with the shot that eased UCCC to its fifth win against a loss and three ties.

Ulster has two regular season games left on the scheduled a Mid-Hudson Conference test at Sullivan Tuesday, and a regional encounter at Manhattan Saturday. Undeafated thus far in regional play, Ulster, along with Nassau, is a strong candidate for top seeding in the Region XV tournament.

The stats:

Ulster 1-2
Kingsborough 0-0-0

The scoring:
FIRST: Segundo Zapater (Sergovic) 2:28
SECOND: George Vassilaras (Pratt) 26:45

Shots on goal — Ulster 24, Kingsborough 7; corner kicks — Ulster 7, Kingsborough 3; saves — Ulster (Lynch) 4, Kingsborough (Langsner) 17.

Monroes Lead Marlboro, 13-0

MARLBORO Monroe Boys, Ron and Perry, was two of the big reasons. Earlier in this decade, the coached by Dennis Burkett is to become a contender next year, its set of Monroes, Anthony and Terry, will be looked upon to carry much of the load.

Saturday, each Monroe scored a touchdown as the Dukes pinned Ellenville with a 13-0 setback. Anthony's was on a three-yard run and Terry's came from two yards out. The scores came in the second and fourth quarters respectively.

"The game went pretty much the way I thought it would," said Burkett, whose team upped its record to 2-6. "I have to say though, that I was impressed by Ellenville's defense. The ball was in their end most of the day and we just couldn't put it over more than we did."

Terry Monroe picked up 92 yards on 20 carries to spearhead the Dukes. Anthony gained 50 yards on 11 tries and was superb defensively, sacking Ellenville quarterback Bob Greenstein once and knocking down two passes. Also strong for the Dukes was quarterback Dave Onusko.

Marlboro concludes its season next week at New Paltz, while Ellenville hosts Wallkill.

Cortland Nips Hawks

NEW PALTZ Tom Perrazzo's second goal of the game Saturday broke a tie and gave Cortland State a 2-1 double overtime soccer victory over New Paltz State.

Perrazzo's game-winner was a carbon copy of a first period goal which had put his side ahead. Both tallies were rebounds of shots that had gone off the goal post.

The New Paltz goal was scored by Felix Okeke, assisted by Art Freer, at 15:43 of the second period.

"We played good soccer, but not good enough," said NP coach Bob Joly. "Cortland is a tough club with good teamwork."

A host of New Paltz injuries depleted the Hawks and both sides were hampered by a strong wind cutting across the NP field.

New Paltz dropped to 4-8 on the season. Its next scheduled game is Saturday against York. Cortland is 7-3-1.

RVC Ties OCS in Soccer

KYSERKE The Rondout Valley soccer team produced its best effort of the year Friday in a defensive battle against unbeaten Onteora High. The result was a scoreless tie that lasted two overtimes.

RVC coach Andy Lutz called it a moral victory. "We were up. Onteora didn't play that poorly, but they weren't able to dominate us until the fourth quarter. Our goalie, Gary Sidoran, just played an excellent game."

The Indians, who came into the game with a 9-0-0 record, had but one clear opportunity to settle the issue. It came in the fourth quarter when Bob Nussbaum intercepted a goal kick and fired an 18-yarder that bounced back off the goal post.

"We had a couple of shots, but nothing like that," Lutz said.

The Gender defense, led by fullback Mark Berlanga, kept the usually potent Onteora offense limited to 14 shots. Junior halfback Tom McClusky gave the OCS midfield a challenge to help keep things even.

Onteora will seek its tenth win in Section Nine competition which begins next week. Rondout finished the UCAL season with a 5-3-2 mark good enough for third place.

The stats:

Lynn: 'Why Wait'

BOSTON (UPI) — Outfielder Fred Lynn, the American League Rookie of the Year, Saturday said the Most Valuable Player award is announced too late in the fall.

Lynn, the leading candidate for the MVP honor, said, "Right now it's the furthest thing from my mind. The regular season already has been over for a month and they (the Baseball Writers Association of America) are waiting until Nov. 26 to announce the award. They should do it right after the season ends."

The Boston Red Sox star, who batted .331 with 21 homers and knocked in 105 runs, made the comment before appearing with fellow-rookie Jim Rice at the International Auto Show.

Lynn said it was unfortunate the award will be announced at a time he and his wife will be traveling home to California. "I won't be anywhere that the press can talk to me when it is announced. We should be driving across Colorado around that time."

Kingston Booters Snap Sectional Jinx With Wild 8-7 Win

POUGHKEEPSIE
Kingston High School broke a long-standing sectional soccer jinx Saturday as the Tigers beat Yonkers, 8-7, in a wild penalty kick shootout to advance past the first round of the Section One AA tournament at the Oakwood School field.

Tied 3-3 after the regulation four quarters, still even after two overtime periods, and still deadlocked after two sudden death decisions, the game was finally decided on penalty kicks. And even then, a sudden death penalty kick showdown had to be staged before the issue was finally settled.

The deciding goal was scored by Eric TimBrooke, after KHS goalie Rich Colvin had stooped a Yonkers drive at the net. Earlier, Emil Jordan's two penalty kick goals, and one each by Danny Perkins and TimBrooke had kept Coach Ron Chaisson's Tigers neck and neck with the second seeded Yonkers club. Sixth-seeded Kingston, winning the first sectional soccer game in its history, jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the opening quarter on goals by Jordan and TimBrooke. But a pair of goals by Yonkers' William Ishou evened the count at halftime.

TimBrooke scored the second of his four goals early in the third quarter, but Antonio Santos scored two minutes later for Yonkers, tying the score and sending the game into its marathon finish.

"It was a tremendous win for us," chortled KHS coach Ron Chaisson. "This team just never quits." He said Perkins, the Kingston sweeper, was first rate and noted that Jim Brown, inserted a center mid-field early in the game after Tim Dell was injured, also was strong. Also coming in for his praise were Jordan and TimBrooke, the big offensive stars, as well as Bill Wynkoop. "It takes that sectional jinx off Charlie Murphy, and Kevin our back."

Kingston's next game will be a semi-final match Tuesday. "We knocked off about the finest team we've faced this year," Chaisson emphasized. named.

Coleman Third in Section Nine

BEAR MOUNTAIN
Coleman High's cross-country team, along with the rest of Class B-C of Section Nine, got a shock Friday when Sullivan County's Jeff-Youngville walked off with the team trophy. The Statesmen had planned to do battle with John S. Burke of Goshen for the top spot, but the Jeff-Youngville team, behind a second place by Joe Cowen, totalled 84 points to 47 for Burke and 81 for Coleman.

Red Hook, bumped up to Class A this year, placed seventh, right where coach Jim Cauldwell figured it would, but Raider ace Mark Gravino, the UCAL's two time individual champ, nailed down fifth place with a strong effort and won a berth in the state meet.

Gravino will represent the UCAL along with Sam Horton of Pine Bush and Lorenzo Simmons of New Paltz, who also qualified in Class A, and Tom Nee of Coleman who with a fourth place qualified in the B-C Class.

"Jeff-Youngville did a beautiful job," conceded Coleman coach Joe Keller. "The problem we have in Ulster County is that everybody else is running better competition than we are. We've shown we know how to win. I guess we had to show we know how to lose too."

Not so disappointed was Cauldwell who called Gravino's race his best of the year. "Mark finished ahead of five of Albertus Magnus' men. And he was breathing on the kid from Nanuet."

Albertus Magnus, ranked third in the state, won the Class A easily as Pat Chambers and Jamie Kempton ran 1-2. Behind them were Mike Hall of O'Neill, Dennis Matuzka of Nanuet and Gravino. Chambers won with a time of 14:55.9, and Gravino's 15:15 was only five seconds behind Matuzka's pace.

Horton placed 11th to lead the Bushmen to a sixth-place team finish. Simmons was in 12th place. The top team and the top seven individuals from each class qualified for the state meet.

Arlington Harriers Prevail

BLUE MOUNTAIN
Arlington High, the DCSL cross-country champion, added the Section One title to its trophy case Saturday, walloping defending champ Mahopac by 47 points for the team title. Admiral Steve Francis streaked to the finish in 14:28 for a three second victory over Vince Veltre of Ketchikan. Arlington totalled 47 points to 94 by runnerup Mahopac. Kingston High placed eighth in the team competition with 261 points. Saugerties scored 279 and tied for tenth place with Mt. Vernon.

Stegen Wins City Race

Scholastic Standings

KINGSTON
Art Stegen, a man who logs a lot of miles on skis in the wintertime, didn't do too badly on his own two feet in the Kingston City Cross Country Championships at Dietz Stadium Saturday. An Olympic Biathlon competitor, Stegen clocked 13:23 and won the 26-35 age division title with the day's best time.

Fred Schwitz, Gary Myers and high school cross country coaches Bernie Stahl of Ontario and Joe Keller of Coleman were other age group winners. Cathy Boice captured the women's race.

Stegen posted a 12 second victory in his group over runnerup Craig Hubbell. Schwitz, running in the 36-45 bracket, won in 15:47 to the 17:24 of second place Joe White.

Stahl took the 46-55 title in 16:15 over Link Crosby, winning by two-and-a-half minutes. Keller was timed in 18:10 in the 56-65 age division. Myers won the 18-25 race in 14:25.

A Homeowner's Guide To Choosing A New Bathtub

For Anyone Who Plans A Tub Or Shower Replacement

WITHIN THE PAST FIVE YEARS there has been a dramatic change in the bathtubs people use for new homes and remodeling.

Everybody stopped making cast iron tubs about five years ago. That was about 90% of what was used. At about the same time, a lot of companies got into the fiberglass bathtub and shower business.

A lot of those companies didn't make it. In some places the whole idea of a fiberglass bathtub got a bad name when the first tubs didn't work out . . . cracking, chipping, leaking, etc.

There are still a number of companies in the business, most of them the large old manufacturers of plumbing fixtures.

There's one exception. Owens-Corning Fiberglas.

OCF USES FRP

It makes sense that a company which knows about fiberglass could learn about bathtubs a lot faster and easier than a company which knows about bathtubs learning about the complications of fiberglass.

The OCF tub and shower units are actually FRP . . . that's short for FIBERGLASS REINFORCED PLASTIC.

FRP is widely used to manufacture boats, aircraft components, appliances and lots of other things. It's so easy to clean with a mild household detergent that it quickly found its niche in the bathroom. Because there is no need for grout or tiles, dirt and soap scum can't collect. There is never any mildew. Even the shelves are molded in to eliminate dirt collecting cracks.

BUT WHY SHOULD YOU CHOOSE OCF?

Easy installation is the most obvious answer.

Each Owens-Corning unit comes in four lightweight pieces that can be installed anytime during rough or finish construction. A unit can be installed against studs or in a finished recess over drywall. An experienced man can install the whole thing in about 30 minutes.

BUT YOU'RE NOT EXPERIENCED. So leave yourself about half a day with a break or two for beer or coffee.

The hardest part about putting in a cast iron or even a steel tub was getting it to the place you wanted to install it. Four strong men had all they could handle with a cast iron tub. You can pick up the whole OCF tub and walk right up to the second floor without flinching.

BUT IS IT STRONG ENOUGH?

You'd kind of think that anything that light would have to be fragile. But that's not so. The tub bottoms are formed under tremendous pressure (on a 4,000 ton hydraulic press to be exact) to assure dimensional stability and outstanding strength. Molded-in ribs give added strength. Your OCF tub can withstand heavy impact without failure. It's passed all kinds of strength, durability and color tests.

But anything can be damaged. Fortunately, the repair of Fiberglass Reinforced Plastic is simple.

There's a great deal more to be said. Send us the coupon. We'll give you more complete information. No charge.

If you're sold already you can buy any of the OCF units from any Lloyd Lumber building center. It takes a week or less to get one from the central warehouse.

Pittsburgh Steelers Facing Trouble at Halfway Mark

The National Football League season reaches the halfway mark today and the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers could be in trouble.

It's not that the Steelers are playing badly—they've won five of their six games and allowed the fewest points in the league—it's simply a case of the rest of their division keeping on the pressure.

The Steelers are in Cincinnati today to face the unbeaten Bengals in what must be considered for them a must game. A loss to the Bengals, whom they have not beaten in Cincinnati since 1971, would drop them two games behind with seven to go. It could also cost them a shot at the AFC Central Division title.

But there's also another factor involved. The surprising Houston Oilers are tied with Pittsburgh at 5-1 and a Steelers loss to Cincinnati today and a Houston victory over Kansas City would drop the World Champions to third place. With Miami and Buffalo waging a dogfight in the AFC East and Oakland, Denver and Kansas City battling it out in the West, Pittsburgh might be faced with the prospect of fighting for a wild card or top runnerup berth in the playoffs.

Adding to the Steeler problems is the condition of star running back Franco Harris, who's been bothered all season with a bad foot and may not play today. Also, quarterback Terry Bradshaw was cartwheelled last week and forced out of the victory over Green Bay with a leg injury. He's expected to be ready today.

Bengals Coach Paul Brown, who's been through many a tight race before, still fears the Steelers despite some possible advantages.

"This is an important game and the Steelers have shown this is when they are at their best—when the chips are down," said Brown. "Both teams know it'll be an all-out effort. Nobody is kidding anybody. We're not slipping up on them and they're not slipping up on us."

In Pittsburgh's final two important games last year, their defense gave up only 62 yards. Sixty-two yards. That's a combined total. I think Pittsburgh is even stronger than last year. They've got the same starting defense and now even have a top draft choice to back up the defensive backs. And they didn't have room to add too many people. They have so many strengths you don't know where to start but they're generally credited with having the strongest defense in football.

"Their front four is like a who's who of professional football. And on offense, Franco Harris and Terry Bradshaw are two of the premier backs in the game.

"We've just slipped by some teams by the skin of our teeth. We don't feel we've had an easy one yet. It's becoming extremely difficult to win anywhere in the NFL. It's become really balanced."

The Steeler defense will be faced with the task of stopping one of the finest passing combinations in the NFL—Ken Anderson to Isaac Curtis. In one game last year, Anderson hit 20-of-22 passes against Pittsburgh and the key could be second-year middle linebacker Jack Lambert.

"That was probably the worst game I played all year," Lambert said. "We were thinking Isaac Curtis all week. We covered him well but Anderson kept dumping the ball off. On that play, the line-backers have to react back to the football. It was one thing I didn't do. I don't know what was wrong with me."

But the Steelers are looking forward to the game, which could put them into first place.

"I just want to play 'em," said Bradshaw, who ranks second in passing in the AFC. "I don't want to talk about them. It's going to be a good game and it's an important one. I just want to play it."

Another key game today will send the Dallas Cowboys to Washington against the Redskins. Dallas leads the NFC East by a game over Washington but has struggled the past two weeks, losing to then winless Green Bay and edging Philadelphia (1-5) in the final seconds.

"We have not played good football the last two weeks but I think we spoiled a lot of people early in the season," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "A young team, which we are, can feel the pressure when it is on top."

"This is the tough part of the year for most teams. The teams that can win in this area of the season are the teams that will make the playoffs. And as the playoffs approach,

"We feel very strongly about Washington. It is always a great challenge. Washington is always capable of playing well because of its vast experience. But right now I don't think they are any better than we are and I don't think they are any better than St. Louis. I think we are all in a group and it's going to be a thrilling race. I think this game is a little more crucial to Washington because the Redskins are a game behind. This is a game they probably feel they must win."

In other games today, Houston is at Kansas City, Oakland at Denver, Miami at Chicago, Minnesota at Green Bay, Detroit at San Francisco, Buffalo at the New York Jets, New England at St. Louis, Cleveland at Baltimore and Atlanta at New Orleans. Los Angeles is at Philadelphia Monday night.

Oakland, which looked last week like it might be coming out of its doldrums, needs a victory today to hold on to first place in the West. A Denver victory combined with a Kansas City win over Houston could cause a three-way tie for first in the AFC West.

Miami, which overtook Buffalo for the AFC East lead last week with its fifth straight victory, tries to hold it against Chicago while the Bills' O.J. Simpson goes for 1,000 yards against the Jets. He needs just 89.

Minnesota, with a three-game lead in the NFC Central, looks to remain unbeaten against Green Bay.

And a new coach makes his debut today when Ernie Hefner leads New Orleans against Atlanta. Hefner was named interim coach Monday to replace John North, fired after losing five of six games.

Sanford and Howard Head For Hall of Fame

KINGSTON Kingston Woman's Bowling Association will induct Marion Sanford and Ethel Howard in its Hall of Fame at the annual installation dinner Sunday, Nov. 9, at 5 p.m. at Kurta's Restaurant in Glenford.

Mrs. Sanford moves into the pantheon of bowlers with some impressive credentials. Since the 1962-63 season, she has averaged 170 or better in eight of ten seasons, a high of 179 in the 1969-70 season in Sangi's Women's Classic.

In 1967-68, she fashioned in 186 average for 56 games in the Sangi Classic and 178 for 52 sets in the Women's Summer Classic.

She achieved career highs during the 1966-67 seasons, with a 290 solo and 672 triple, both KWBA highs. Mrs. Sanford led the Quads League in averages with 174 in 1967-68 and 175 in 1970-71. The 290-672 marks were rolled in the Bowlerama Quads.

In 1968, she captured the KWBA Tournament singles title with 611 and in 1968-69 earned a WIBC Award for a game of 275 or more with her 290. Her 631 in 1966-67 led the Women's Invitational. She also rolled with a team that posted a 1000 scratch game in the Schenectady Press Tournament. Other members of the team were: Lucille Steen, Gloria Anderregg, Karen Woodvine and Joan Jameson.

Ethel Howard, who is being cited for distinguished service to bowling, has been an active KWBA member for many years. She served as a KWBA director for 15 years and served on several committees, including chairperson and worker, such as legislative, auditing, Hall of Fame and others.

Mrs. Howard has been active as worker and chairperson for both KWBA and 600 Club tournaments. In addition, she worked on several committees in preparation for the 1950 and 1962 New York State Tournaments held in Kingston. In addition, she has served as delegate to both New York State and national WIBC conventions. On the league level, she has served both as president and secretary.

The dinner is open to the public and tickets may be purchased from any member

Strongest PGA Field

CALLAWAY GARDENS, GA — A star-studded field of more than 350 players, headed by three former PGA champions and six of the seven former winners in this event, will answer the starter's call in the 8th annual $110,000 PGA Club Professional Championship at this west Georgia resort Nov. 13-16.

Agless Sam Snead, winner of three PGA titles and winner of the Club Professional Championship in 1971 at Pinehurst, again looms as the logical choice to challenge defending champion Roger Watson of Cary, N.C., who defeated Sam for this title in a sudden-death playoff a year ago.

Other past champions who will be on deck include Rives McBee of Dallas, the 1973 winner; Rex Baxter, who won it in 1974 at Sunol, Calif.; Howell Fraser of Panama City, Fla., winner of the first PGA Club Professional Championship at Scottsdale, Ariz., in 1968, and Don Massengale, the 1972 champ.

But a whole host of seasoned alumni of the PGA Tour have filed entry in this blue-ribbon classic for the home pros. To name a few: Mike Souchak, Laurie Hammer and Dean Reftam, up from Florida; former PGA champion Dow Finsterwald and PGA Seniors' Championship runner-up Freddy Wampler, from Denver; Tommy Jacobs, who lost the 1966 Masters' title to Jack Nicklaus in a playoff and Bob Toski, the former Ryder Cup star and maestro of the lesson tee who is making his first appearance in this event.

Northern Trainers Flock To Florida's Pompano Park

POMPANO BEACH, Fla.—Pompano Park, housing an unprecedented number of horses for an early training period, continues as one of the busiest centers of activity in South Florida.

Officially, the Pompano Beach harness plant was scheduled to open its gates for training Saturday, but ions before that almost 200 trotters and pacers were at work daily for the 109-night meeting which begins Nov. 20. More than 1,700 horses are expected for Pompano Park's 13th season which will end April 10.

Stall Superintendent John Visconti said the numerous requests arriving from trainer-drivers at northern tracks indicate a large array of trotting and pacing champions again will be spending the winter in South Florida. Bill Haughton, harness racing's all-time money winning driver with approximately $23 million, will have the biggest contingent of 160 horses.

Among the royally-bred equine celebrities will be two of the highest priced yearlings sold recently at Tattersall's Lexington, Ky. They are Hustling Time, a colt, Weeping Cherry, a filly, purchased by Trainer-Driver Stan Dancer, New Egypt, N.J. and MacCuddy, Strathroy, Ont. Hustling Time was acquired for $120,000, while Weeping Cherry was obtained for $115,000.

Owner James Urell of Saratoga, N.Y. will be represented by two other colts, Darting Speed and Crash, also bought at the Tattersall's sales. Darting Speed joined the Urell stable at a cost of $59,000 and Crash for a bid of $42,000.

Stedge Timetable (Documented)

June, 1975—Conservative candidate for Town of Ulster Supervisor Stedge changed his enrollment from "Republican" to "Conservative"—did not reveal this fact to the Republican Party.

Mid-August, 1975—Conservative Party caucus held—at which Mr. Stedge, who had repeatedly stated he was a Republican, questioned REAL Republicans who were seeking Conservative endorsement in anticipation of running for Republican nomination.

August 18, 1975—Republican Party caucus held, where Mr. Stedge allowed his name to be entered for nomination, not telling Republican voters at the caucus that he had changed enrollment. Professed allegiance to Republican Party. MR. STEDGE DELIBERATELY DECEIVED REPUBLICAN VOTERS WHILE SEEKING THEIR SUPPORT FOR HIS CANDIDACY! (He was, however, defeated on the first ballot.)

Oct. 27, 1975—Town of Ulster Kiwanis Club "Candidates for Supervisor Meeting" held. Mr. Stedge stated that Democratic Candidate for Town Supervisor George Starkman invited him to his (Starkman's) home for a meeting. Mr. Stedge further stated that at this meeting, Starkman offered him the Town of Ulster insurance business if he (Stedge) would withdraw from the race—assuming that Starkman would win the election.

MR. STARKMAN'S HEATED RESPONSE TO THIS ACCUSATION WAS THAT STEDGE, IN EFFECT, LIED! Mr. Starkman said that since he (Starkman) knew that Stedge dealt ONLY in life insurance (which the Town does not purchase), that he would not and did not make such an offer.

Nov. 4, 1975—Voters decide if Mr. Stedge felt it necessary to lie about Starkman and Sabino both!

THAT HE (STARKMAN) OBTAINED MONEY OR PROPERTY ON CREDIT . . . BY MAKING OR PUBLISHING OR CAUSING TO BE MADE OR PUBLISHED A MATERIALLY FALSE STATEMENT IN WRITING RESPECTING HIS FINANCIAL CONDITION . . .".

vb Oct. 14, 1975—JOHN H. SAXE, THEN PRESIDENT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK NATIONAL BANK, opposed the bankruptcy on the grounds ". . . THAT SAID BANKRUPT IS AN ACCOUNTANT AND KNOWINGLY AND WRONGFULLY PREPARED FALSE STATEMENTS IN WRITING CONCERNING THE FINANCIAL CONDITIONS OF OTHERS . . ."

Sept. 24, 1959

Nov. 12, 1959—George B. Starkman admitted to the United States District Court that his financial statement was false.

Dec. 10, 1959—The Small Business Administration, an agency of the U.S. Government, filed an objection wherein it stated that Starkman's financial statement was not a true one, and that Starkman knew when he submitted it that it was not true.

Nov. 4, 1975—Voters, decide whether you can expect more false financial statements and a possible bankruptcy if you elect Starkman.

Disney World PGA Qualifying Test Vital Test to Tour

By IRA MILLER
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most important golf tournaments of the year takes place this week, even though it won't be televised, there's little money or prestige at stake, and hardly anyone has heard of most of the players.

It's the PGA's fall qualifying school.

Some 380 golfers will be playing for nothing less than their very futures when they begin a 108-hole grind Monday at Disney World in Florida. On Saturday, perhaps two dozen — the exact number has not been announced — will receive their cards to play on the pro tour.

They will be the lucky ones. But even most of them will soon find out that earning playing privileges and earning a living on the tour are two completely different things.

For every Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller, there are dozens not making it, living and hoping from week to week and eating hamburgers at roadside stands. More than 500 players earned money on the PGA tour last year but less than half of them made as much as $1,000. The attrition rate is high. Of the 942 players who applied for the school in the period 5 to 10 years ago (1965-1970), 169 got their playing cards and more than two-thirds of them already have given up the tour. Only 57 still remain.

Despite the long odds, there are more who try it every year. Most of them usually have a promise of financial backing — expenses on the tour run $500 a week and up — if they survive this week. But at least one of the better players in this year's school is confident enough of making it that he's going to risk his own money.

"I could get 100 sponsors, but none of them would want to give me a deal I'd like," says Jerry Pate, who won the U.S. Amateur championship in 1974 and earned $13,500 late this summer in pro tournaments in New York, Switzerland and Japan.

"If somebody's going to put some money up, they're looking for something," he said. "They want 25 per cent, something like that. That's no good."

So, Pate plans to take out a loan of perhaps $20,000 to add to the money he has saved from his 1975 winnings.

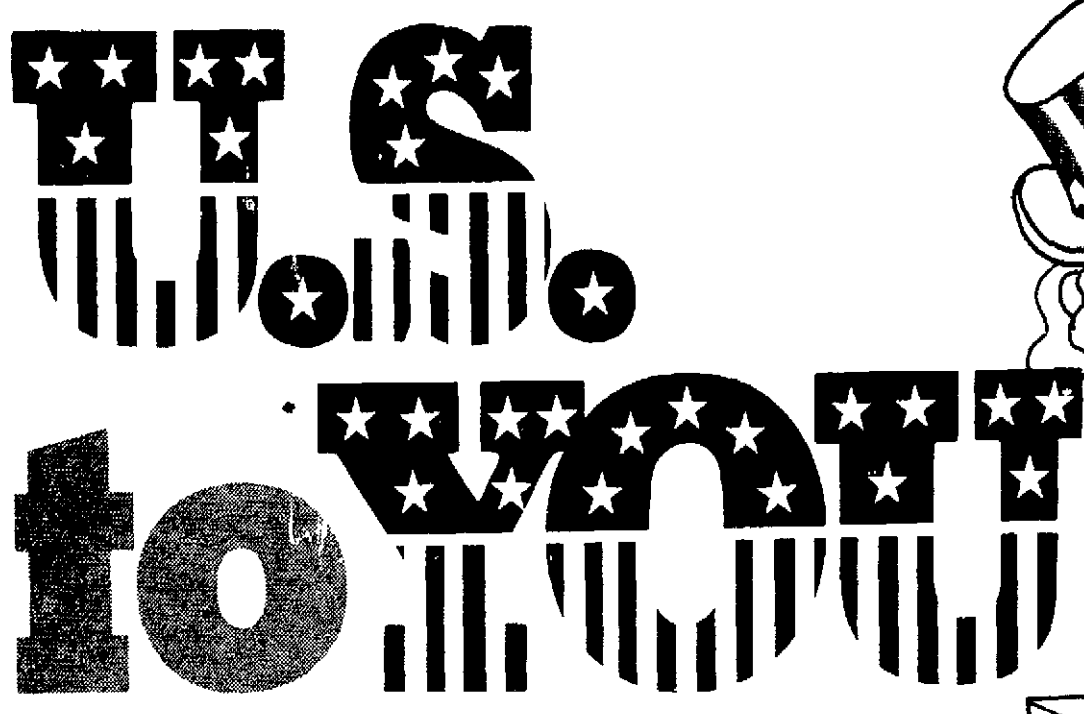

"I'd prefer to make it on my own," he said.

Some of the other "name" players in this year's field are George Burns, who already has won two tournaments in Europe since turning pro this summer, Gary Koch, Andy Bean and Craig Stadler, all of whom have impressive credentials as amateurs; Maurice Bembridge of Great Britain and Dale Hayes of South Africa.

There is, however, no guarantee that anybody in particular will qualify. And for those who don't, the year after missing out is a long one because they are ineligible to play in most events on the PGA tour.

Many go overseas to play, many take club jobs, and many come back to try a second or a third time. There are some successful tour pros, including Hubert Green, Peter Oosterhuis, Eddie Pearce, Forrest Fezler and Leonard Thompson, who needed more than a year to pass the qualifying school.

Carbo's Series HR Won't Haunt Rawly

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rawlins J. Eastwick III, just turned 25 and sporting the slightest hint of a bearded winter to come, says Manager Sparky Anderson's credo of "accept some of your failures" is the key to his prominent season as a Cincinnati Reds bullpen ace.

"So much of the game is mental," said the handsome right hander who posted two World Series victories against Boston last month and refused to be devastated by Bernie Carbo's three-run homer in the sixth game that triggered a Red Sox extra inning victory.

Eastwick says he had "a certain thing in mind" when he faced Carbo. He intended to keep the ball high and tight, but the ball drifted inside—"It was a mental mistake."

"That sixth game was the most unbelievable game I've ever seen or participated in. But I learned from Sparky that the most important thing is that you have to be able to accept mentally whatever happens. Your body isn't going to produce every time out. I've already forgotten Carbo's homer, except when the media brings it up. I slept well that night."

Overall, Eastwick made five appearances in the Series, gave up six hits and two earned runs in eight innings for a 2.25 era. Rawly Eastwick, a native of Camden, N.J., thinks of himself as a maverick among most young players. He believes the 18-20 age bracket is the most formative period of a player's career and should be spent gaining professional baseball experience instead of going to college.

Eastwick turned pro in 1969 with Bradenton, where he was "with people totally involved in baseball. You don't play that much in college."

Then the minor league jumps began. There was Tampa, Raleigh-Durham, Three Rivers and finally Triple A ball with Indianapolis. The Reds brought him up for the first time in 1974 and he was impressive, allowing four earned runs in 18 innings for a 2.00 earned run average.

As a short reliever, Eastwick was 5-3 during the regular 1975 season and is content, for the moment, to continue toiling in the bullpen.

"I'm not nervous about coming into tight situations. Maybe in about 3 or 4 years, I might want to become a starter. I'm doing the reverse of what used to be the normal progression of a pitcher. He'd start, lose his fast ball and then be put in relief."

When Anderson had him in spring training three years ago, Sparky told him to concentrate "because when you concentrate heavily, you don't hear the crowd. I'm not aware of the crowd, whether their pro or anti me."

This advice paid off for the 63, 180-pound right hander who believed his chances of pitching in a world series "were only a dream."

"When I was a kid, I'd go to Philadelphia and watch Chris Short pitch. And Dick Allen, what a hitter. He was truly unbelievable when I saw him play in Connie Mack Stadium. Naturally, Sandy Koufax was the idol of all the 'pitching' kids in those days."

Eastwick is a bachelor, living alone in a three-level house in Haddonfield, N.J. He relaxes with an easel and paint brush and intends branching out into sculpture during the off season.

Anderson hopes Rawly will go into reprints next season. He'd love to have the youngster turn out a carbon copy of his 1975 success.

"Ulster's Taxation Ranks Among Lowest In New York State"

—Daily Freeman Headline 10/15/75

"The findings of a privately commissioned survey that Ulster County ranks a low 34 among the 57 counties in New York

State in per capita taxes has to be welcome news for the majority of us who are being squeezed in the inflation/recession wringer. The issuance of these good tidings just before a county legislative election might be looked upon with a jaundiced eye by some with a suspicious bet, since the survey was conducted by The Citizens Public Expenditure Survey Inc. the timing of the release and its findings cannot be questioned."

$1 Billion Sales Mark

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Agway Inc., the nation's second largest agricultural cooperative, reported Thursday that sales exceeded $1 billion mark in the 1974-75 fiscal year for the first time in its history.

Agway is a 117,000-member farm supply and food marketing cooperative in the 12 northeastern states.

Ronald N. Goddard, executive vice president and chief executive officer, reported that sales during 1974-75 increased $131.4 million over the previous fiscal year, bringing the total to $1,000,702,000. Net margin after taxes was $17.5 million, an increase of $2.8 million.

Goddard spoke at the cooperative's two-day annual meeting here, with some 5,000 members attending. Goddard told the members of his concern for the long-term situation for natural gas supply in the Northeast. "Natural gas is essential to the production of nitrogen fertilizer materials," he said, "and Agway has sufficient quantities to operate its Olean nitrogen plant through the next planting season, barring an unforeseen crisis."

However, he said, continued supplies of natural gas were still uncertain and Agway was working with various regulatory agencies to develop a long-range allocation program that will assure adequate supplies for agricultural purposes.

A second major concern was the uncertain situation in the reorganization of the northeastern railroads.

"Efficient rail service is extremely important to agriculture," Goddard said. He cited a study showing that farm production costs in New York and Pennsylvania would increase by some $45 million annually if railroad service were severely affected.

Goddard said the sale of surplus grain and other food products to Russia was helping to stabilize the economy by maintaining a favorable balance of payments in international trade. He said this was especially important now that petroleum imports were putting a heavy drain on dollar reserves.

George Steele, a Pocopson, Pa., dairyman, who is Agway's board chairman, reported that membership had grown by 4,000 during the past year. Membership is limited to farmers, their wives and school-age children actively employed in farming enterprises.

VIP Account Now Free At Kingston Trust Co.

KINGSTON Kingston Trust Company is introducing a new convenience package of eight bank services including checking, Master Charge and others free of charge. Bill Stevens, president at "The Bank" has announced.

Known as the VIP account, the package is available free to anybody who qualifies for a $1,000 line of credit at Kingston Trust.

In addition to free checking and Master Charge, the VIP account also features preferred interest rates on personal installment loans of $1,000 or more, rent-free safe deposit box, free travelers checks and money orders. Also included are saving accounts with the option of automatic transfers and a cash reserve under which you can get an automatic loan of up to $1,000 through your checking account.

Stevens said the new program has been developed to tailor the Bank's services to the needs of modern consumers. "This is part of our continuing program of updating banking services in line with customer needs including convenience and economy," he said.

Kingston Trust is an affiliate of First Commercial Banks. It has offices in Hurley, Stone Ridge, Kerhonkson, Marlboro, Poughkeepsie and three locations in Kingston.

VIP accounts can be opened at any of The Bank's offices.

Crisscross Waiver of Premium, found as an extra benefit in a CML contract, can prove to be extremely valuable in Buy-Sell Agreements of insurance owned by a husband on the life of his wife. What is it? Normally, the disability benefit is on the life of the insured. With crisscross waiver—both the insured and the premium payor are covered in the event of disability and all future premiums will be paid by CML. So if you have a situation where you are buying life insurance on the life of another person... call me... this benefit is not found on all life insurance policies and can mean the difference between maintaining important protection or letting it lapse.

Proposed Sale Details

WOODSTOCK The proposed acquisition of Rotron, Inc. by EG & G, Inc. would provide an approximate cash payment of $11,079,000 to Rotron stockholders, it was announced recently.

Based on a total of 643,362 shares of Rotron common stock, the acquisition would result in the payment of about $17.22 for each share of Rotron stock.

The acquisition is subject to the execution of a formal agreement and the approval of Rotron stockholders. If consummated, the agreement would leave the Woodstock manufacturing company as a wholly-owned subsidiary of EG & G Inc. The proposed acquisition has been under study since 1974.

Rotron officials have noted that there would be no administrative or personnel changes at its Ulster County locations should the sale take place.

UBPA Christmas Ad Plan

TOWN OF ULSTER At the conclusion of a recent special Board of Directors meeting, Sid Musiker, president of the Ulster Business and Professional Association (UBPA) announced that an extensive Christmas advertising plan is being put into effect for the entire Ulster Shop City area.

Don Briggs of Thriftway Beverages was appointed chairman and serving on his committee will be Virginia Baltz of Statewide Savings Bank and Norma Goldberg of Card 'n Party shop. William and Marie East of Lake Katrine, were also appointed to work with the committee as advertising consultants.

Musiker also revealed that a letter was to be sent to all business establishments in Ulster Shop City, which is located in the heart of the Town of Ulster. Every businessman and woman will be encouraged to take part in this special holiday promotion.

The UBPA is optimistic that retail sales in the fourth quarter of this year will match their expectations.

Dividend Declared

The board of directors of Hercules Inc. today declared its fourth-quarter dividend of $2.20 per share on common stock, payable Dec. 3, to stockholders of record at the close of business Nov. 14. This brings the total dividend for the year to $8.80 (eighty cents) per share.

That's Anthony A. Martino talking. He started Aamco on a shoestring and built it into an empire. Today he heads up another business with even greater potential. auto painting and refinishing. The potential is greater because practically every car will someday need repainting and body work. And there's no company in the field with a quality national image. The market is virtually untapped.
As the owner of MAACO Auto Painting Center, you'll have a substantial cash flow from the very first week you're in business and every week after that with net profit of as high as 25%. And we have the books and

Jackie Concerned Over Caroline's Safety

Mrs. Jackie Onassis (R) and unidentified luncheon companion leave fashionable East Side eatery as Jackie heads back to her office at Viking Press in New York City. Reports indicate Mrs. Onassis is concerned over the safety of her daughter, Caroline Kennedy, in London. Caroline, 17, reportedly refused her mother's plea that she return to the U.S. in the wake of Caroline's narrow escape in a bombing incident in London last week. In London, it's reported that Scotland Yard has refused a demand by Mrs. Onassis that an armed guard should be provided for her daughter, according to a London newspaper report. (UPI)

Busing Overriding Issue

Elections come Tuesday in the two areas of the nation most tormented by school busing. The issue is a sizzling public controversy and a baffling political factor in both.

No one in the contests for governor of Kentucky and mayor of Boston favors the busing of children between neighborhoods to achieve racial balance in the public schools.

But both Louisville and Boston are in the throes of court-ordered school desegregation plans and incumbents in both are concerned about a convulsive voter reaction against everyone in public office regardless of their position.

The issue is out in the open in Kentucky, where Republican challenger Charles Gable, a businessman seeking statewide office for the first time, has attacked the record on busing of Democratic Gov. Julian Carroll.

Carroll, who stepped up from Lieutenant Governor last year when Gov. Wendell Ford was elected to the Senate, has worked hard to make clear his distaste for busing, but the GOP candidate claims the governor did not do all he could to keep it from happening. Carroll, however, is favored to win.

In Boston, State Sen. Joseph Timilty has not publicly attacked Mayor Kevin White on the busing issue but the incumbent has had some criticism for helping carry out the federal court's orders.

Both are Democrats, and while Timilty has campaigned hard in the Boston neighborhoods most upset by busing, he is not expected to oust the two-term mayor in the non-partisan contest.

Mississippi also elects a new governor Tuesday, but race has not been a campaign issue there. Charles "Cliff" Finch is the Democratic candidate to succeed Gov. William Waller, with opposition from Republican Gil Carmichael.

Both men have surprised political odds-makers in the past. Finch by whipping Lt. Gov. William Winter in the primary this year and Carmichael by pulling 40 per cent of the vote in a 1972 challenge of Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional study said Saturday New York City's default — inevitable without federal help — will slow the nation's economic recovery, add $4 billion to the federal deficit and throw 300,000 people out of work.

The analysis by the Joint Economic Committee said New York City has done more than any large city except Detroit and St. Louis to cut expenses and increase taxes to combat the effects of the recession on its finances.

But the report was critical of New York City's leaders from 1960 to 1974, when the number of New York City employees increased by 70 per cent while other cities were increasing municipal employment by an average of only 36.5 per cent.

Leaders were unwilling or unable "to undertake the difficult austerity measures necessary to keep the budget in balance," the report said.

At the same time, it said, the state and the banks tacitly went along with "questionable budget practices."

"If the state or the financial community had required the city to adhere to legitimate budgeting techniques, the current market access crisis could conceivably have been avoided," the report said.

Disputing President Ford and Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, the report said the city's default, probably in early December, is "inevitable" without help from The Federal Government.

New York owes $12.3 billion. Unable since March to sell bonds to pay debts as they come due, the city expects to default when a new round of debts falls due in coming weeks.

If default occurs, state and local governments everywhere will cut expenditures, banks will follow more conservative practices, interest rates will rise and all these factors "could reduce the strength of the economic recovery" from the recession, the report said.

A committee economist, Ralph Schlosstein, calculated the impact this way: a 1 per cent decline in the gross national product; a three-tenths of 1 per cent increase in unemployment, which translates into joblessness for 300,000; a loss of $3.5 billion in federal tax revenues and an increase of $500 million in federal expenditures to aid newly unemployed.

Among other findings: — New York City's default could cause the state and many local governments within the state to default also.

— The increase in municipal borrowing expenses as a result of New York's troubles will cost cities across the country $150 million a year in additional interest for 10 years and $150 million extra for short-term borrowing this year.

— With older cities which have lower credit rating forced to pay significantly more to borrow, "many soundly managed communities may have difficulty marketing their securities at reasonable and affordable interest rates."

— If default occurs in December, the city will be forced to cut controllable expenditures by more than 50 per cent to live within its revenues.

— Expenditure cutbacks by the city will force the state to spend more and reduce state tax receipts by between $100 million and $150 million.

The Montgomerys of Rhinebeck

"Her first inkling was his half-smiling request for her to make a black ribbon into a cockade for his hat, and her first reaction was panic. 'What is it you ask of me—my God, you are not engaged to fight!'"

The scene, reconstructed in Katherine M. Babbitt's recently published "Janet Montgomery: Hudson River Squire," gives readers a prophetic clue to the tragedy that was to mar the life of the subject of her book. One of the most notable women of Colonial American history, Janet Montgomery was briefly wife, then widow, of General Richard Montgomery, glorified as a national hero after his death in the battle for Quebec in 1775. Indeed, only for George Washington's funeral had such a show of respect for a national hero taken place as that accorded to Montgomery.

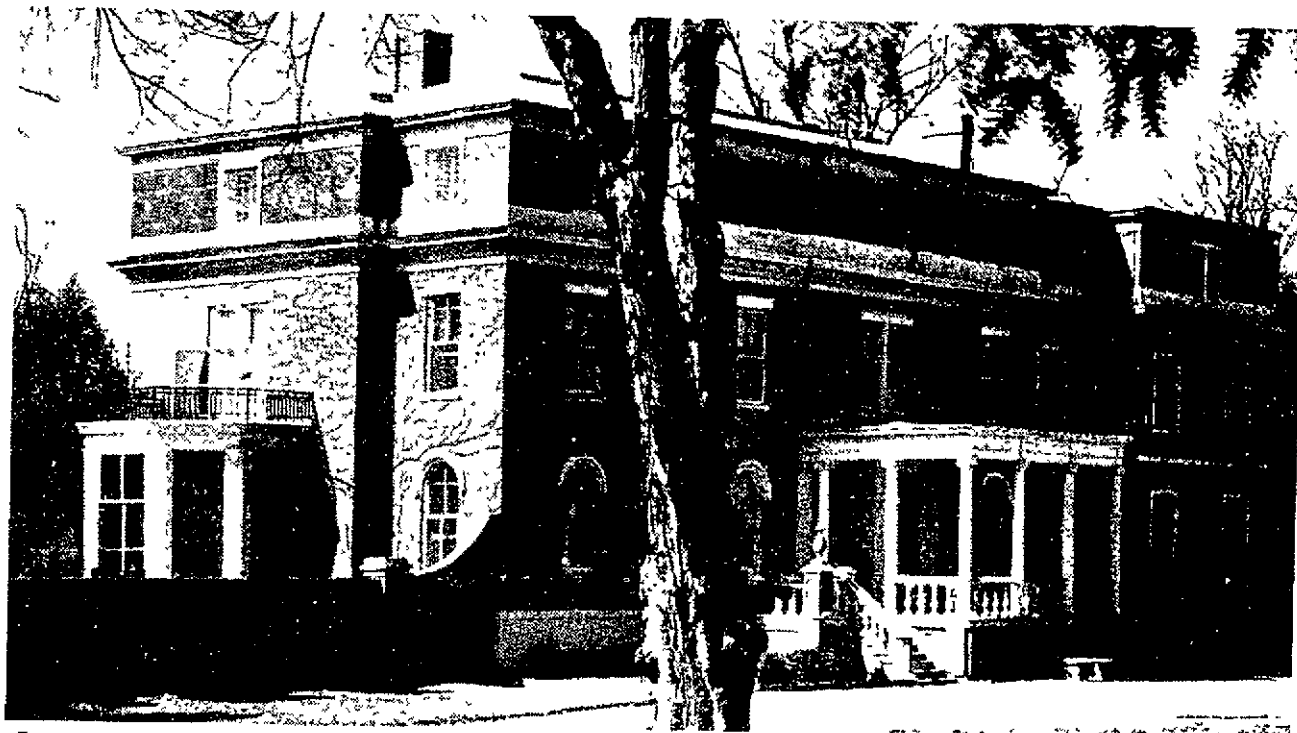

The memory of Montgomery has been much in the news of late in connection with Bicentennial events. The Northern Dutchess County area has just paid tribute to his fame in a three-day Richard Montgomery Memorial Observance celebration. Even ore grandiose an undertaking is MEMO (Montgomery Expedition Memorial Observance), an early October re-enactment by embers of the Brigade of the American Revolution of Montgomery's march from New York to Canada with his invading force, and a mock battle for Quebec at route's end involving over 1,000 combatants.

Now the memory of Janet receives equally deserved tribute in author Babbitt's biography.

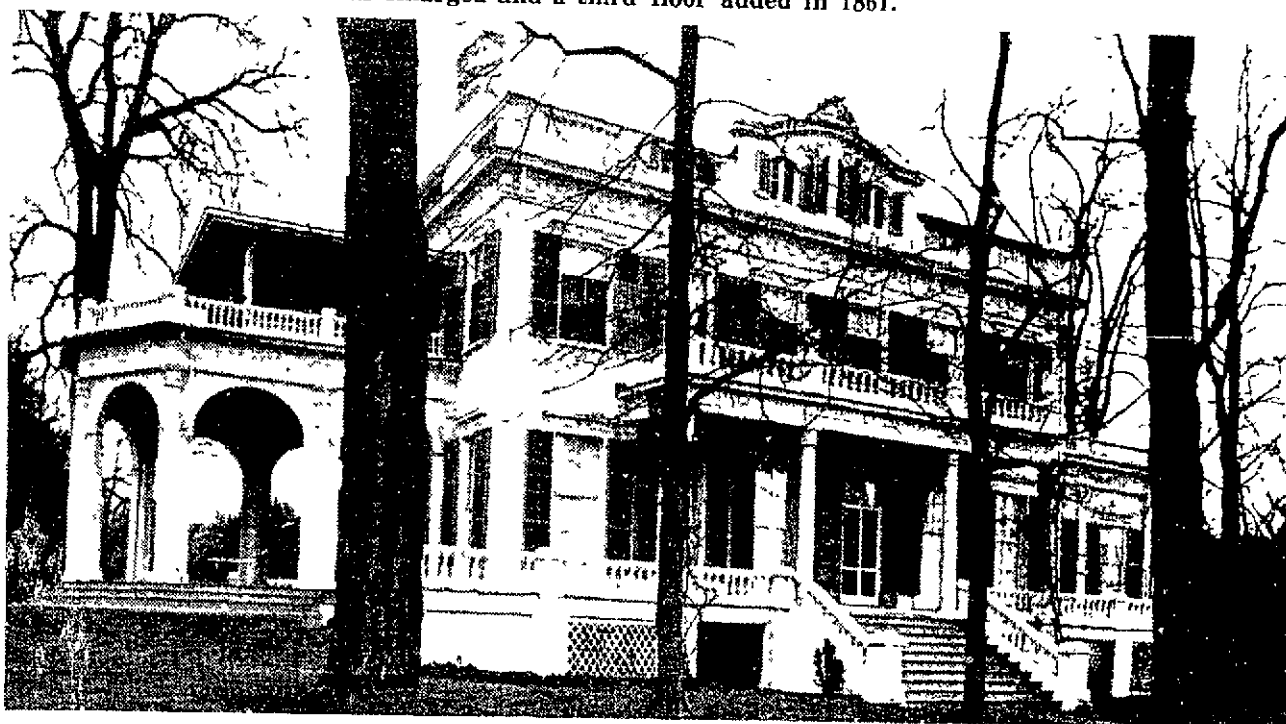

For, if the death of her young husband was a traumatic experience from which she never fully recovered (she remained devoted to his memory throughout the many years she survived him, never remarried and lived alone with her sorrows in her remote Rhinebeck mansion), there were other facets of her life that make her a woman for all seasons. Unhappy widow she might have been, but also a woman who carried on her life's work in a legal and social atmosphere of almost entire freedom. A businesswoman who bought and sold, administered and executed as adroitly as any career woman of today.

She also met, knew, entertained, corresponded with or was connected with most of the prominent people of her day. Her eldest brother, Robert Livingston, negotiated the Louisiana Purchase with Bonaparte and Talleyrand. She entertained and visited the Washingtons; was courted by Genreal Horatio Gates; feted Lafayette to dinner at her Rhinebeck home; attended Washington's Inaugural Ball as first President of the United States.

Katherine Babbitt's biography owes much to the many letters written by Janet and to the "Reminiscences" penned by the General's widow. But the author can take full credit for the way she has incorporated them into a fascinating and highly readable book. A paperback edition of "Janet Montgomery" is available for only $2.45 from Library Research Associates, Dunderberg Road, Monroe, N.Y. 10950.

Janet and Richard began building their Grasmere estate in 1773. Janet lived there alone after its completion. After she eventually sold it, the original house burned down, and this reconstruction was built in 1828. The house was enlarged and a third floor added in 1861.

Montgomery Place in Red Hook was the second house built by Janet Montgomery, after she left Grasmere because of its sad associations. It is owned today by a Livingston descendant who is restoring and preserving the entire Montgomery Place environment, from the elegant house and furnishings to the forests, landscaping, and magnificent Hudson River views.

Alexander Yosman —

little sung giant of Urban Development

HUD recently honored Kingston's Housing Authority Director with a coveted award presented to only 12 others in the nation.

Alexander Yosman has been described both as "... a man for the people," and as "... a man who wants everything yesterday." He refers to himself as "the carpetbagger from Brooklyn," but delivers that line with a broad smile.

Since he came to Kingston in 1950, Yosman's blond hair has turned grey, he has achieved success as an administrator and, with his wife Sophie, raised a family of two. He's a man with a warm "hello," and a firm handshake. He leaves you with a lasting impression that here is a man with drive, ambition and a tremendous capacity for hard work.

He started in the banking business in Brooklyn, studied accounting and business law at Hunter College, saw service in the U. S. Navy, took on foremen's job with a local printing firm and went on from there to win accolades from professionals in the field of housing and urban development for — a job well done!

But he's also the same man who will help a youngster stay on the "straight and narrow," try to help solve a couple's problems and ease a senior citizen's worried mind.

Yosman's name came to the fore again recently when Kingston's record in housing and urban development received national acclaim. As executive director of the Kingston Housing Authority, the local administrator accepted a citation from H. R. Crawford, assistant secretary of the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington, D. C. The award cited Yosman for his leadership in the development of one of the most successful limited income housing programs in the United States and for his continued contributions in the field of housing.

He was the 12th in the nation to ever receive the award from HUD and he says: "I felt it was a distinct honor."

The past 23 years haven't been easy ones for Yosman. When he and his family arrived in the area from Brooklyn, he said the pace was much slower. He was accustomed to bustling crowds and crowded subways. In Kingston, everything was so much more relaxed, that the family made weekly visits back to the old neighborhoods. In time, however, visits to the city diminished and the Yosman family melded into the Hudson Valley's life style—with one difference. When it came to work, Yosman maintained and still maintains a metropolitan approach. He moves along cutting through problems at home and in the nation's capitol with concentrated directness. He is outspoken, to the displeasure of some, doesn't have time for the frills of diplomatic talk because—"There's too much to be done."

Yosman applied for and obtained the directorship of Kingston Housing Authority. He passed his Civil Service exam with flying colors. About those early days, he says: "We had to fight a social climate that brought rebuke at the mere mention of 'public housing.' We were accused of putting our hands in the pockets of others." Yosman also states that social services weren't available to the extent they are today. Not only was he faced with building a housing project but winning over public opinion in an area that was dominated by the needle trades industry.

"It's my job to manage the Housing Authority," Yosman says. "This is actually the only requirement, but over the years I have found myself in a position of expanding my energies to assist in many other areas."

Yosman was at the helm for every federal program brought into town. It was Yosman who suggested the Community Center Downtown. It was Yosman who suggested filing for the Home Improvement Code Enforcement Program for Central Broadway.

"I want to see that the best is done for the City of Kingston. If there are programs and monies available to us—let's get them," This was a motivating reason for his support of an office for the aging.

"The housing authority is a big financial task. There are endless reports, staff to supervise, evaluations to be made. You just don't sit here and collect rents!" Yosman says.

"He's a hard taskmaster," say those who work with him.

"We have to constantly fight to see that we are operating efficiently. We have to make sure our projects are not in the red because if they are, the City of Kingston would have to make up the difference. This has never happened here. In comparison, however, 60 per cent of the state aided projects are operating in the red.

"The housing authority is a political sub-division, you know," Yosman continues. "You have to worry about state budgets, federal budgets . . . and our chief objective of all projects is to be fair with everyone. We deal with more than 400 families of different backgrounds, and I play no favorites. We have rules and everyone observes them. Our tenants are proud of the projects," Yosman told this newspaper.

"There is no stigma attached to living in our apartments," he says.

The administrator's tolerance for hard work is very high. But as a member of his staff put it: "Mr. Yosman doesn't ask of us anything he, himself, wouldn't do. He is a hard task master but after working with him you not only like him, but respect him."

Yosman's attitude about office work is simple. "If a letter comes in on Monday it is processed that same Monday. 'I do not tolerate letting things drag. If a problem arises, we want to conclude it as rapidly as possible. I look at it in this light. If I am paying rent—I want service. And service is what we give.'"

In discussing the housing authority, Yosman is quick to point out: "Remember, I am only an employee. We have five commissioners on the board."

This doesn't diminish the fact that Yosman has been responsible for increasing the authority's facilities from 98 units to 336 which today are home to senior citizens, and families requiring low cost housing. He is currently involved in the planning an additional 100 approved units scheduled to be built on the site of the former St. Anne's property on Broadway in Kingston.

"It's not just sitting and collecting rents!"

His job does not preclude his working in behalf of the community in other ways. He has been instrumental in organizing the Senior Citizen's Advisory Council, has held local, state and international offices in organizations concerned with housing and redevelopment. He has championed the causes of service clubs, scouts, PTA's, and his masonic lodge.

And, what is most important of all, Yosman is a man who understands people. Young couples, senior citizens, teenagers, children, all have Yosman's ear when needed. The administrator, the man, is revealed many times over.

It is revealed when a child in the project drops his ice cream cone and Yosman walks over to him and gives him money for another. It's revealed when a youngster needs help with his homework, when someone needs a job or when a couple finds marital problems getting rocky.

Alexander Yosman is proof that compassion for people and administrative abilities can, after all, go hand in hand.

Over the back fence is as good a place as any for discussing tenant problems with Patricia Watzka, Linda Longendyke, and Gloria Kinard.

Yosman gives much of his time to senior citizens. Here he meets with Julia Fisher, Ella Schuler, Evelyn Relyea, Helen Connell, and Mary Bilyou.

The letter that comes in on Monday is processed that same day.

When will women get credit when credit is due?

A new bank, The First Women's Bank of New York, has been formed, thought of by some as an off-shoot of the Women's Lib Movement and the Equal Rights Amendment. A closer look reveals a need for a financial institution dealing with the needs of women specifically.

Being born female inspires a negative reaction to applications for loans, mortgages, department store charge accounts and credit cards unless accompanied by the name of a husband whose work and credit record is relatively unblemished, or the name of a gentleman with his own thriving business to act as a co-signer.

Woe to the female who has made the mistake of being divorced, widowed, or who has preferred to remain single. Tsk! Tsk! to the woman who thought that paying by cash (and oft-time receiving substantial discounts for same) would create an acceptable credit atmosphere if and when she had to apply for credit.

The lady who may have had a particularly bad experience, both financially and emotionally, during some time in her life, finds no sympathetic ear in the credit department. Even if she has managed — by both hard work and guts — to pay her debts and emerge unscathed! Although many a woman has been left holding a bagful of debts by a so-called "provider", and many more have been the backbone of the family's income by working themselves, they still remain second class citizens in the field of credit.

The question arises then as to what constitutes a good credit risk in the eyes of lending institutions.

Since discrimination in salaries is still the way of business, when a woman's rate of pay is less than that of a man for the same work, her request for a substantial loan would no doubt be turned down, but the male's request probably not, for he receives a greater income for the same job.

Due to the fact that she is a woman, it is suspected that if not married she may wed and leave her job and, thus, may not have the money to complete payment of her debts. Her new husband is not expected to assume any of her "single status" bills, only those incurred after the wedding day. Her ability to meet her obligations with or without his help is suspect. So the not-yet wed constitutes a bad risk in the banking world, although it is all assumption on the part of lenders.

For the man, tenure in his job seems to be tantamount to acceptance as a credit risk. In this day of widespread unemployment, with massive layoffs in every business, just how good a risk is he really? He'd still be a better bet than the female, it would seem.

The woman who suddenly finds herself a widow, burdened with her husband's debts and no estate to speak of left to her is in for a surprise. Granted, the departed spouse's credit may have been fine — when alive — but what now? It is assumed that she is responsible for debts and loans outstanding and that she will most likely seek a job. However, her request for credit at this point is looked upon with a jaundiced eye, because of the outstanding obligations which she must satisfy.

For most women, making application for a loan is hardly a rewarding experience. Alarmed by her financial plight, she still must undergo interrogation by erally male, and must file a fairly complex credit application for the bank to approve or disapprove her loan request. Many of the questions asked could certainly be construed as an invasion of her privacy, and some facts as to why she needs a loan could be embarrassing to her (especially if a rocky marital situation has been a cause of her financial dilemma).

Any woman who's "been there" knows that there is a need for change. The Equal Rights Amendment Act coming up for vote on Tuesday could help if approved. With more and more women entering the mainstream of the business community every day, biased credit practices should be abolished. More women executives are needed in the banking world to understand and meet the problems of the female.

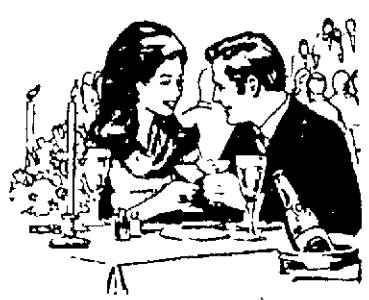

The creation of The First Women's Bank of New York is certainly a step in the right direction. The financial concept of this institution could be incorporated into the outlook and practices of any far-sighted existing bank.

Over the radio recently a D.J. blithely delivered the following phrase, "A woman's place is in the home — and she should go there right after work."

The working woman deserves the same respect accorded her male counterpart. Problems unique to her role in society must be taken into consideration. Very few of today's women care about burning bras. But the ability to earn a living . . . obtain a mortgage . . . and have the same financial opportunities now extended to men . . . that's a bottom line.

Editor's Note: The ERA Act can be found on your ballot under the heading of "Proposed Amendment Number One.")

BRONK

Long-time favorite of movie buffs, Jack Palance, is starring in CBS's new one hour action drama "Bronk". He plays the part of Lt. Detective Alex Bronkov, a police detective assigned to special duty by the mayor of a large city. In this week's episode Bronk is called in to investigate the puzzling evidence that turns up following a plane crash. One body from the accident turns up miles from the scene and Bronk sets out to find the man's true identity and his mysterious mission. An international criminal, it seems, has worked out a plot to fake his own death so that he can disappear without a trace. Dane Clark guest stars as the desperate man who is planning still more murders to avoid being found.

How A Book Is Born

The author writes a book and sends the neatly typed manuscript to a publisher (a company that prints and sells books.)

2.

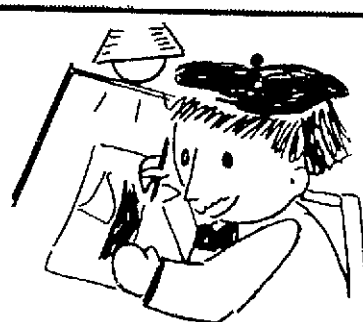

If it is to be published, the editor makes suggestions on how the book can be better. The final decision is up to the author.

3.

If the author is not an artist, and the book needs an illustrator, the editor finds an illustrator.

4.

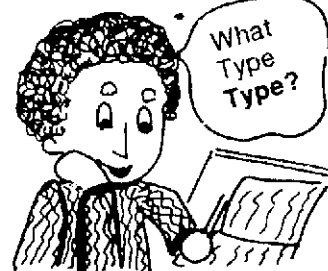

The artist prepares sketches of the pictures so the editor and art director can see what is planned.

5.

A copy editor checks the manuscript for type mistakes, bad punctuation and other errors.

6.

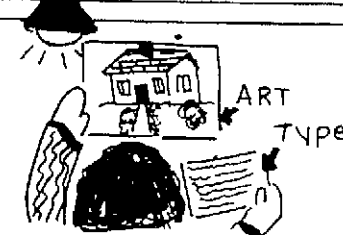

The art director (or book designer) chooses the typeface or size and style of type to be used.

7.

The manuscript is set on long sheets of paper called galleys. Proofreaders check for mistakes again.

8.

If the book is illustrated, the type is put with the finished art and sent to the printer. The art director checks the colors.

9.

Finally the book is bound and the jacket is put on. It is now ready to be shipped to bookstores and libraries.

The Ulster Planning Board's vision:

Build a better bike route

A creative concept, beautiful in its frugality — would convert existing service roads on the NYC Aqueduct, abandoned railroad beds, and tow roads into a safe cycling route.

here's dealing for wheeling in the not-too-distant future as the Ulster County Planning Board attempts to get their bicycle path network into tenth gear.

One out of every three citizens in this nation owns a bicycle. Applying this proportion to our county, that amounts to 47,000 bicycles! Many of these cyclists are children, but the advent of more sophisticated bikes, a growing awareness of the need for exercise and the energy crisis have all conspired to interest adults in purchasing a bike.

Right now, these 47,000 cyclists must compete with the auto for their share of paved surface. In an area as rural as ours, with little of no public transportation available, most youngsters are forced to peddle to the homes of friends and recreation areas.

The planning board has come up with a very creative concept to solve the cyclists' dilemma. They have prudently seized upon existing routes for development. Not only are the proposed routes practical; they are scenic, as well.

Many of the paths would take advantage of established railroad routes. How beautifully simple! These straight direct lines, many of which have outlived their usefulness, slice through miles of forests . . . follow waterways . . . cut safely through the cities and townships.

Another proposal concerns the old tow-path of the D & H Canal. What a great ride that would be!

Yet another existing resource that looks custom made for the cyclist is the aqueduct that takes our pure mountain water to the thirsty New York City populace. It's already the right width, five to eight feet, and cuts through the county in a straight line with no steep grades to make the route arduous.

The Route: Kingston

The most promising opportunity is along the Ontario & Western railroad in the Rondout Valley, portions of which are already owned by the county. This would be a Class I bike path. Small bridges would have to be built in places, and the owners of the exceptions to the deed contracted for the necessary easements. The bikeway would connect the City of Kingston with the outlying towns, extending to Ellenville, winding through High Falls and UCCC with off shoot trails.

The proposed bike route affords cyclists such sylvan scenes as Perrine's Bridge.

To Accord

The route crosses the Rondout via 28A, across Lucas Turnpike, then south along the D&H Canal to Accord. At Accord, the railroad right-of-way is picked up again and followed to Kerhonkson.

To Ellenville

An off shoot could follow Old Route 44/55 east, then on to Rock Haven Road to the utility right-of-way. The utility path would lead to Lake Awosting where carriage and horse trails are established. The proposed 209 bypass could include a bikepath to provide access to Ellenville. Offshoots might connect the Ellenville School, Napanock and the Rondout Reservoir.

To Shokan

The Catskill Mountain Branch Line owned by the Penn Centrql Railroad is slated for abandonment. If and when this occurs, a bikepath would connect Kingston to the Ashokan Reservoir, Wittenburg State Park and other mountainous regions.

From Kingston Shopping Center to Cornell Street, the Ulster and Delaware railroad is slated for abandonment. When this occurs, acquisition by the county provide safe cycling through the city of Kingston. The remaining U&D access will be used to ship coal to the Hudson Cement Corp. Future plans should include the acquisition of this spur should it become available.

Other railroad bed possibilities include the West Shore Division of the Penn Central and the Wallkill Branch.

Ashokan to Wallkill

The Catskill aqueduct, owned by New York City runs from the Ashokan Reservoir, past Wallkill. The maintenance road on top would provide a ready bikepath if permission were granted by the city. In the southern portion of the county, it parallels Route 208 where 3,000 to 4,5000 vehicles per day provide a very serious threat to cyclists. The aqueduct would provide a safe alternative.

New Paltz

Existing bikeroutes use State, County and local roads. The college community at New Paltz represent a high percentage of cyclists. Route 32 needs wider shoulders to accommodate bikes, providing a link with the county park at Perrines Bridge. If the state will not improve the road, an alternative would be Central Hudson's transmission line which runs behind the town park on Pioneer Trail to Horseonden Road and Route 32 at the bridge over the Wallkill.

County Road 18A (Springtown Road) would make a lovely link in the bike chain. Gentle grades and good sight distances and a lovely view of the Shawangunk Mountains and the Wallkill River would provide a scenic ride.

Cow Hough Road and North Ohioville Road, connecting with Horsenden Road would provide an easterly route from Perrines Bridge and connect the system to Highland via Van Norstandt and Black Creek Road.

Horsenden Road over the Thruway to North Putt Corners Road, south to Fulton Road, and North Oakwood Terrace added to the existing routes would connect the system to the college at New Paltz.

The county park at the 150 acre County Home property on Libertyville Road should be included in the plans. Libertyville Road is well surfaced, but lacks suitable shoulders.

Lloyd

The Town of Lloyd has two parks; one was formerly a reservoir, the other a scenic overlook of the Hudson River make by converting the old Mid-Hudson approach. These parks, the high school on North Road, and Highland should be connected.

Bridge Road connecting to the old bridge approach, Oakes Road and Bellvue Road as far as Clearwater Road would provide a scenic waterfront loop. North Road, Maple Avenue and Lower Grand Street would complete the route.

Upper Grand Street, North Street and portions of Breseia Avenue could connect the other town park at the reservoir site and the high school.

A proposal to develop a nature center around the proposed power plant in Lloyd/Esopus would make this area ideal for inclusion in the system.

UCCC

Route 32 to St. James Street, on to Route 213 west of the bridge, below St. Peters Church as far as Binnewater Road. The route would follow Binnewater, continuing west at Keators Corners to UCCC. On across Route 209 to Mill Dam Road, on to old Tongore Road. Following the valley's corn belt, it would join the aqueduct just off Route 213.

Ashokan Watershed

Access to the reservoir via Bearsville Road and a covered bridge over the Esopus. Route 28A south of the Aeraator and the Board of Water Supply Road over the dividing weir would connect to the Catskill Mountain Branch Route and the City of Kingston.

Woodstock-Onteora

Woodstock would be connected via the Catskill Mountain Branch Route, Cold Brook Road, County Road 46 and Route 212. Onteora school should be included. Route 28 has adequate shoulders at this point. Access to Wittenburg State Park is desirable.

Cooper Lake

The Ulster Cycling Club has a scheduled ride in Woodstock. It includes Cooper Lake Road, Route 212, Glasco Turnpike, Byrdcliffe Road, and Rock City Road. Designation of this scenic and historic route should take place immediately. A rest stop at Cooper Lake and a historical markers along the route would complete this loop.

Really Smelly Books

This boy is blind. He is using his fingers to read braille. He is using his nose to sniff the scents in a special braille scratch-and-sniff book.

With the scratch of a fingernail and the sniff of the nose, smelling readers can enjoy such scents as chocolate, vanilla, strawberry and even smoke.

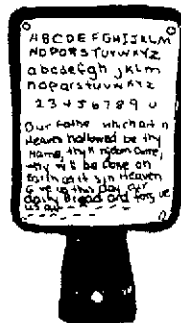

The scratch-and-smell scents are made by a special process that locks smells into tiny, tiny bubbles. The smells trapped in the bubbles are the real thing or they are man-made.

When you scratch, you break some of these tiny bubbles. Because there are so many, the smells will last for months or longer.

As many as 50,000,000 tiny bubbles can fit in a square this size!

Colonial Times

There were very few books in Colonial times. The main reason that children learned to read was so they could read The Bible. Young readers used a hornbook.

A hornbook was a paddle-shaped piece of wood with a paper attached to it. It was covered with a thin piece of cow's horn that you could see through. On the piece of paper were written the letters of the alphabet and some letter combinations. Sometimes The Lord's Prayer also was on it.

Super Illustrator: Garth Williams

Garth Williams is the artist who illustrated "The Little House" books written by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

Mr. Williams visited the Wilders on their Missouri farm and studied the family records and photographs. He worked on the pictures for almost ten years.

Garth Williams is now 63 years old. He was born in New York City where his parents were both artists. He has three daughters and lives in Mexico.

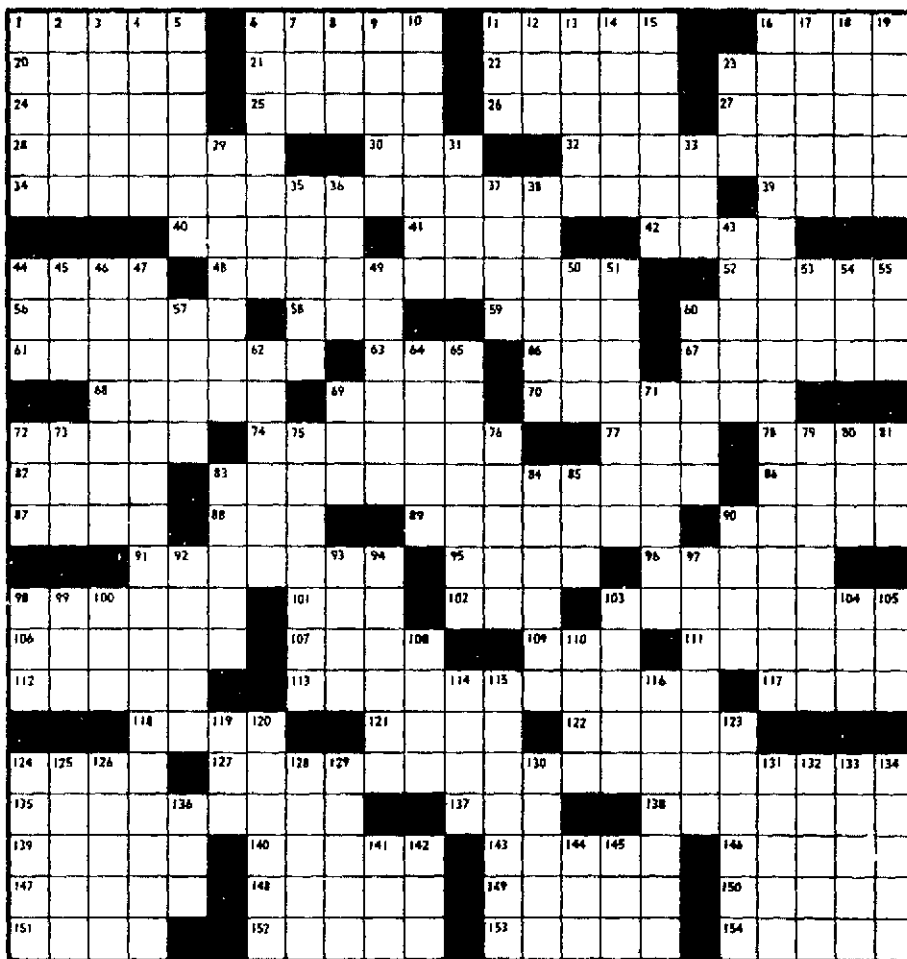

He also illustrated "Charlotte's Web" by E. B. White.

JOE FORRESTER

Joe Forrester faces a variety of problems in part one of "Weekend" as the hard-working cop goes through a Saturday and Sunday filled with such problems as a robber who has attacked an old friend, and efforts to learn the location of a rumored gang fight. The series, starring Lloyd Bridges, follows the career of an 'old pro' who is convinced that computers and electronic gadgets have a place in police work, but that nothing beats personal contact. He's convinced that the cop on the beat with his person-to-person contact is still the best hope of controlling neighborhood crime.

THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN

Lee Majors continues his starring role of Steve Austin, a former astronaut whose body seemingly irreparably damaged in a crash while he was testing an experimental aircraft. A team of surgeons recreated his body by means of aerospace biology and cybernetic medical science at an estimated six-million-dollar cost. Although he has speed, strength and vision far surpassing that of the average man, Steve is still vulnerable to a karate chop or a bullet. His ability to wreak havoc upon his adversaries is tempered by his conviction that life is sacred. He is given assignments in which only a man of his extraordinary skills could succeed. In this week's episode "One of Our Running Backs Is Missing" Larry Csonka and Dick Butkus guest star as pro football players who get Steve caught in the middle of a battle of the giants when a star player is kidnapped in a betting scheme.

Bike Route . . .

Saugerties

Saugerties, the second most populous community in the county, has two major areas for recreation—Cantines Memorial Field and a small beach on the Esopus. Bristol Beach, a 53 acre site not yet developed, on the Hudson just north of Malden should be included in the route. Washington Avenue would connect the village with Cantine Field and the high school. Mike Kraut Road, Fiero Road, and a portion of County Road 89 should be designated to connect Bristol Beach when it is developed.

Montgomery Street, a section of Partition and Beach Street could link with the beach on the Esopus.

The Saugerties Lighthouse, designated as a NYS landmark would be an interesting spur to the network using Post Street and Lighthouse Drive should development take place.

The Esopus bridge will have to be used by cyclists until East Bridge Street is reached, the Mill Street, Burt Street, Barclay Street, Simmons Street, and Spaulding Lane, avoiding Route 32.

The Dominican Sisters have a lane paralleling the ridge over the Hudson which connects Spaulding Lane with York Street in Glasco. Acquisition of this route would again avoid overcrowded Route 9W and 32.

Ulster Landing Park

From Glasco, follow York Street, Delaware Avenue, and County Road 118 to Route 32, south to Ulster Landing Park.

The City of Kingston may be linked to the County Park by the signing of First Avenue and a short section of Route 32.

City of Kingston

Dietz Stadium and Forsyth Park offer an excellent opportunity. Service roads provide the heart of the system. Terrain and surroundings would establish an enjoyable trail. A connection to the J. W. Bailey School and the regional network via Taylor Street to the old O&W Railroad.

The City of Kingston presents problems that necessitate an extensive traffic pattern study.

Port Ewen

The Kingston arterial, with sections already under construction, will connect Port Ewen with downtown Kingston and eventually Route 32. The N. Y. State Department of Transportation should be persuaded to include a bikepath in the construction of the arterial.

9W, from Doris Street to County Road 124 should be designated. This portion of 9W has suitable shoulders. County Road 124 could connect to River Road (County Road 81) to form a complete loop.

The bikeroute through Port Ewen will depend on the final alignment of the arterial. Park Street should be included to connect the town park as well as Bayard Street which parallels 9W.

County Road 4, Soper Road and County Road 82 could connect with Perrines Bridge.

Shawangunk

The Town of Shawangunk is passed on the east by the Catskill Aqueduct, paralleling County Road 129. Connecting bikeroutes should include the schools. Straw Ridge Road could link with the aqueduct. The system might then run south into Orange County to Walden. Marabec Road connects Route 208 and County Road 129. The Wallkill River Road would complete a loop with the hamlet at the center.

The Town of Marlborough boasts 80 acres in its extensive school system and a 54 acre park. These lands should be included in the network. Route 9W shoulders would have to be expanded for access to the park. The high school can be connected to the hamlet via Cross Road and South Street. Birdsall Avenue could be used to connect the middle school.

If you're still peddling along with us through this maze of Ulster's Roads and have an interest in seeing the bike network come into being, there's much to be done. The plan has been submitted to all the towns, the N.Y.S. Department of Transportation, bike clubs and the press.

Communities are urged to review the proposed routes and make their own recommendations. An advisory body on cycling should be established to guarantee the continuity of a system from town to town. Membership might include representatives from each town having knowledge of road and traffic in the town, NYS Department of Transportation, local cycling club members, and members of law enforcement agencies. The Youth Board could act as a clearinghouse for such information. For further information and a copy of the plan, contact the Ulster County Planning Board in the County Office Building.
